Gross Family Named York Ag Award Winner

JOYCE BUPP

York Co. Correspondent
MANCHESTER (York Co.) —

With an eighth generation now growing up on their Manchester-area farms, the Harold Gross family is firmly planted in the rolling hills of northern York County.

The Gross clan was honored recently as the Farm Family of the Year by the York County Chamber of Commerce, York Agriculture Extension Service and York County Farm Bureau. The trio of organizations combine efforts annually to recognize outstanding service to agriculture and agribusiness in the York area. Presentations were made during the annual awards dinner, held January 23 at Wischaven hall.

Four generations of the Gross family are currently involved in the agriculture operations at the Manchester crops and livestock farm.

Grocery Chains Want Local Produce Growers

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) —

Growers heard optimistic news at the three-day Vegetable Conference held in Hershey this week.

Several large supermarket chains want local produce and need more growers.

Representatives from Riverside Markets of DuBois and Giant Foods of Landover, Md., held sessions on how they have successfully incorporated local farmers into providing produce and how they plan to expand by using more local produce instead of buying from York County's Farm Family for 1997 award went to the Harold Gross family. Seated is Harold Gross, fifth generation on the Manchester farm. Standing, from right, are his son, Steven, Sr., and his wife, Phyllis, and their sons, Daniel, and wife, Tina, and Steven, Jr., and wife, Becky.

Water Supplier: Most Farmers Responsible In Pesticide Use

ANDY ANDREWS

Lancaster Farming Staff
GUTHRIESVILLE (Chester Co.) — For the most part, crop producers are responsible in their use of pesticides, according to a Chester County water supplier representative.

But every once in a while, a "bad apple" surfaces — a producer or custom applicator who mishandles pesticides and creates a problem for everyone downstream.

Preston Luitweiler, manager of research and environmental affairs with Philadelphia Suburban Water Company, Bryn Mawr, spoke to about 100 producers and agri-industry representatives on Tuesday morning at the Chester County Crops Day at the Guthriesville Fire Hall.

According to Luitweiler, recording devices that sample an area near an intake in the Chester Creek watershed picked up a "spike" of unacceptably high concentrations of a pesticide that was released in early June 1996.

Luitweiler showed those who attended the Crops Day a chart of farms located in the watershed, but didn't specifically identify any one farm location as suspect to the late spring "spike," as he referred to it. Luitweiler said the spike could have been caused by someone who may have been spraying atrazine in a swale area or possibly washing out the tank near the creek, possibly right before a major rainfall.

Philadelphia Suburban Water Company serves 280,000 customers in counties surrounding Philadelphia, including Chester County. They process about 100 million gallons from seven surface water plants and seven local streams in a watershed area encompassing 1,000 square miles,

Atlantic, Land O' Lakes Merger Discussed At Length

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — From the World Wide Web to the Hoffman Building here in town, farmers were talking about the proposal to merge Atlantic Dairy Cooperative in southeast Pennsylvania with Land O'Lakes, Inc., a Minnesota-based farm and dairy cooperative with growing coast to coast and overseas ties.

In the next eight or nine weeks, a series of meetings are being held with members of both cooperatives to inform the members about the merits of the merger. Farmer representatives from both sides will vote on the issue later this month and in early March. But if the meeting Monday night was any indication, not all members see the merger in as favorable light as the boards of directors (both organizations' directors have approved the merger) would hope.

Because Atlantic's Holly Milk

National Egg Market

JANUARY 29, 1997

Prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady. Demand covered the full range and was mostly moderate. Supplies on the West Coast remained short from local production, and elsewhere, supplies were generally te. Breaking stock supplies were about adequate, shortest in the South, and some plants ran reduced schedules due either to insufficient shell supplies or slow finished product sales. Live hen supplies remained adequate.

Delmarva Broiler

JANUARY 29, 1997

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds remained light to fair at best. Seller offerings were fully adequate to ample and were generally more readily available on the lighter weight sizes. Live supplies were at least moderate; weights were mixed and irregular. Processing schedules were moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged at 56 to 70 cents. Trade sentiment was steady to weak. All parts were generally noted in a range of fully adequate to available for immediate delivery. Leg items were in the closest balance.

NY Phil Frozen Eggs

JANUARY 24, 1997

Prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady to instances fully steady as raw material prices trended higher. Demand was mostly fair, and many buyers had secured commitments for product through the end of March. Frozen product floor stocks were adequate. Shell egg supplies remained tight when sought, and most plants limited breaking schedules to process regularly committed supplies only rather than look for extra eggs. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the East for the week ending January 18, 1997 were 15% less than last week, and 30% more than last year (same week).

JANUARY 29, 1997

Wheat bids lost most of yesterday's gains as U.S. export demand remains slow and Europe along with Australia continue to be strong competitors. Corn bids were mostly steady, however, trading remains dull. Soybean bids regained some ground after yesterday's losses. Another light export sale overnight, kept soybeans bookings climbing. However, sales continue slow and like corn bids, there's not a lot of fresh news around to spark much of a fire. Wheat 3 to 4 cents lower. Corn steady to 1 cent higher. Sorghum 1 cent higher to 1 cent lower. Soybeans 5 cents higher. U.S. Export Sales: Purchaser Commodity Tonnage Del date South Korea Soybeans 40,000 Jan/Mar Totals: Soybeans 40,000 tonnes. FEBRUARY 3-9, 1997

NEW MOON, FEB. 7.

SHIP REPAIRS IN ORDER

According to the ancients, the fourth of February is considered an auspicious day for the repair of ships. In case you haven't got a good wooden ship to repair, you can always resort to the next best thing — reading about them. Some of the classic possibilities include Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island, Jack London's The Sea Wolf, Joseph Conrad's Lord Jim, and Rudyard Kipling's Captains Courageous. If you want a whole string of sea yarns by a single author, launch yourself on the novels of Patrick O'Brian. But reader beware! Once you get hooked on O'Brian's seafaring adventures, you may never surface for air!

Any book worth reading by children is also worth reading by grown-ups.

— Arthur Ransome

TIP OF THE WEEK

Always keep a book with you in the car, in case of unplanned delays.

CREAMED CRAB

4 ounces cream cheese, softened
1/2 cup cream, divided
1-1/2 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons flour
3/4 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
pinch of cayenne
1 pound flaked, cooked crabmeat (fresh or frozen)
2 large egg yolks

cream. Set aside. Melt butter and stir in flour, then slowly stir in milk. Cook over low heat, stirring until thick; then remove from heat. Add seasonings, cream cheese mixture, and crabmeat. Beat egg yolks with remaining cream, then mix with the crabmeat. Heat briefly but do not allow to boil. Serve immediately over rice or toast.

Makes 4 servings.

THE OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

When the Moon runs low (Feb. 4, this month), expect warm weather.

Hawks flying high means a clear sky; when they fly low, prepare for a blow.

OK City Feeder Cattle

OKLAHOMA CITY, OK
JANUARY 29, 1997

Compared to last Monday: Feeder steers and heifers 1.00 lower after recovering half of early losses. Calves and stockers firm. Feeder demand moderate early, good after noon. Most feedlots trying to bring cattle more in line with projected slaughter market and higher cost of gains as winter weather takes a toll on feedlot performance. Demand remains very good for stockers and calves despite -20 degree wind chill. Quality of supply plain thru attractive, mostly average. Weigh-ups gaunt to average. Slaughter cows 1.50-3.00 higher. Slaughter bulls 1.50 higher. Packer demand very good for lighter numbers as cow run begins the seasonal decline. Total of 385 cows and bulls sold with 65 percent going to packers. Receipts this week 14,300; last week 15,585; last year 10,756. Supply consisted of 72 percent yearlings over 600 lbs; 25 percent calves under 600 lbs; 3 percent cows and bulls. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis. Feeder Steers: Medium and Large 1 350-400 lbs (374 lbs) 85.50-90.00 (87.90); 400-500 lbs (450 lbs) 77.00-84.25 (81.20); 500-550 lbs (529 lbs) 75.00-80.50 (77.49); 550-600 lbs (565 lbs) 70.50-78.50 (76.22); 600-700 lbs (650 lbs) 69.00-72.50 (70.98); 700-800 lbs (750 lbs) 68.00-72.00 (69.76); 800-850 lbs (816 lbs) 66.50-72.00 (69.38); 850-900 lbs (870 lbs) 65.75-70.00 (67.11); 900-1000 lbs (950 lbs) 62.00-66.50 (64.82); 1050 lbs 64.00. Because The Best Seed/Herbicide System Starts With The Best Seed.

A3304 combines excellent yield potential with good Phytophthora root rot and brown stem rot resistance for greater profit potential. Good field emergence and rapid canopy closure make it suitable in no-till. A3304 has performed well on the east coast in MD, PA, and eastern OH.

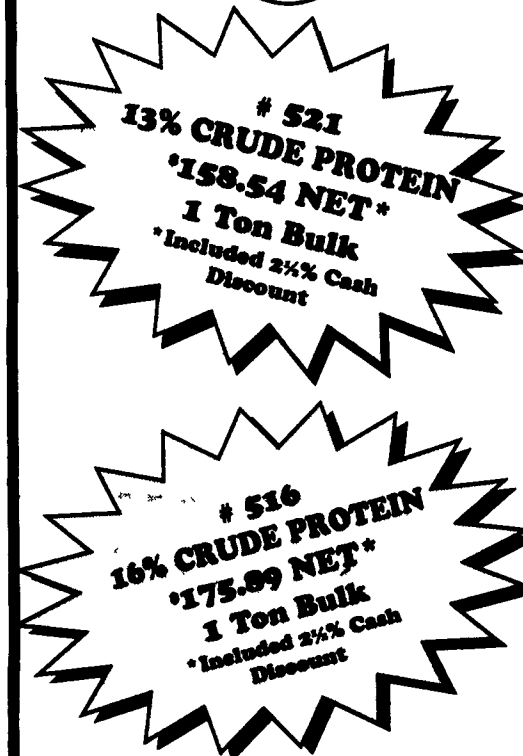

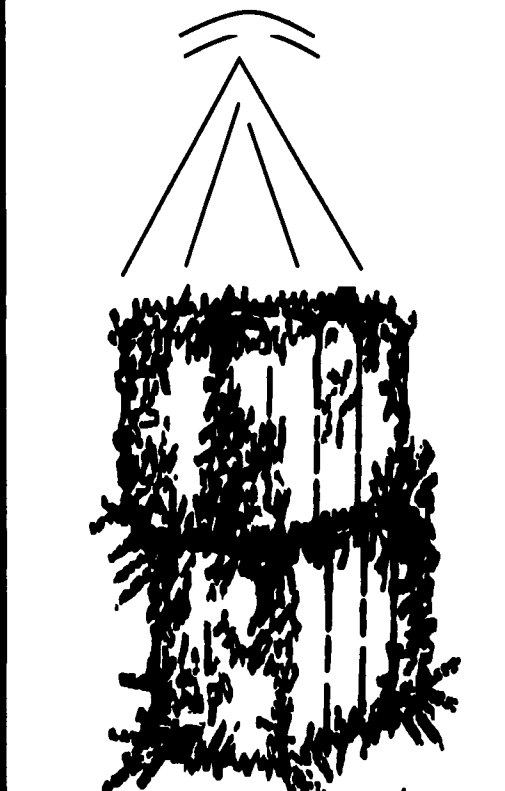

In addition, A3304 has the trait for enhanced tolerance to sulfonylurea herbicides like new Synchrony® STS® and Reliance™ STS®.

A3304 for top soybean yields. Synchrony STS or Reliance STS for over-the-top broadleaf weed control. Together you get the best seed/herbicide system--for greater consistency on your farm.

OPINION

Good Neighbor Relations

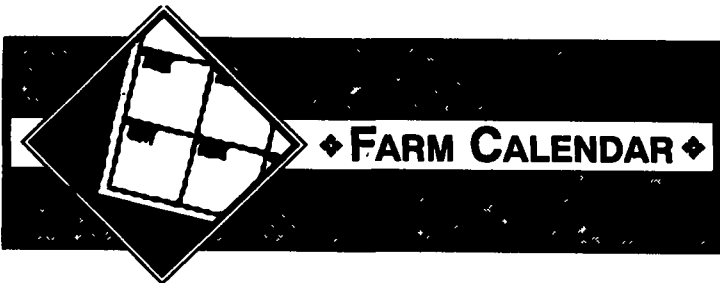

One of the job descriptions of every farmer must be local public relations specialist. Of course, many farmers have not thought about the fact that they must know how to be friendly with their urban neighbors just as much as they must know when to plow, plant, and milk cows.

But it's true. Getting to know your neighbors is the most important and simplest action you can take to help minimize conflicts. When you know your neighbors, it is easier to talk to them when problems arise. It is also easier to keep blame, misunderstandings, hard feelings, or intense community conflict from occurring.

If you know your farm neighbors on a personal basis, and they know you in return, it is more likely that when they have a concern about your farm operation (such as noise or odor), they will call you directly to work it out instead of reporting you to the township or a government agency. It also means that when you have a complaint about a neighbor, such as trespassing or littering, he will be more open to discussing it with you.

Information about finding the common ground with neighbors can be found in a little booklet published by Penn State College of Ag Sciences Cooperative Extension. Entitled: Good Neighbor Relations, Advice and Tips from Farmers, the publication is available at your local extension office.

It is worth reading, and following the advice your fellow farmers give about they they handle the art of public relations around their farms.

FARM FORUM

Editor:

My most recent figures indicate there are 350 lawyers examining a way to dismantle the American tobacco industry through wrongful death lawsuits, etc. "Buttman" followed Robert Dole through his presidential campaign as the media chimed its rhetoric calling for prohibition. After all, there are tons of third world marijuana leaves waiting for an "expanded market." Is the American tobacco industry to be regulated out of the world market? We shall see.

Obviously Philip Morris, maker of Marlboro cigarettes has become one such target of the dismantling process. During the unrelenting media attacks, Philip Morris' shareholders demanded that its food division be spun-off as prosecution of the American tobacco industry looked to be a certainty followed by hefty payouts in settling lawsuits. Interestingly, Philip Morris opted not to separate its food sector from its tobacco interests. RJ Reynolds, similarly diversified, chose to set up individual corporations.

Philip Morris owns Kraft. Kraft was one of the two players in the pricing of cheese that dealt us the $4/cwt. blow. The other is Beatrice Foods owned by Conagra.

The National Cheese Exchange is unregulated by the US Government. Exploitation was a Wall Street tool waiting to happen. Although suspected for years, the pricing-fixing sledgehammer finally dropped. It should have fallen loud enough and long enough this time to discredit even the staunchest landgrant college economist.

Billions of dollars were raised through unethical trading of cheese in Green Bay. Tobacco litigation cases will be settled with our "milk money." Philip Morris is already in the milk processing business in Communist China. The Wall Street Journal heralds Communist China as the next superpower. Wall Street should know. They are the financial mak-

To Plan For Retirement

This week I attended a roundtable discussion of issues facing county farmers.

One of the top issues identified was planning for the succession of the farm business to the next generation. One of the big barriers identified was the lack of retirement planning by the farm owner.

Many farmers look at the farm as their retirement program. This philosophy often makes it difficult for the next generation to buy the farm and assume a debt level that is manageable.

The sooner you start a planned retirement savings program the better you will be. The effect of compound interest over a long period of time leads to a sizable non-farm assets for retirement. This means the farmer will require less income from the sale of farm assets to financial support the retirement years.

One rule of thumb to use for retirement planning is one third of income should come from social security, one third from retirement savings, and one third from the sale of farm assets. This means every year you need to be placing a percentage of farm profits into a retirement savings program. This will help in making farm transfers easier to the next generation while meeting your personal and retirement goals.

To Vaccinate For Rabies

Recently we had a case of a rabid dog biting a farmer, his son, and two milk cows.

Rabies can be fatal to humans if untreated. Treatment involves five shots over a 30-day period.

This serves as a reminder that all dogs and household cats more than three months old are required by state law to be immunized against rabies.

This was the first Pennsylvania case of a rabid dog in 1997. In 1996, three dogs were found to be carrying rabies while there were two cases in dogs in 1995.

Rabies cases are much more common among wild animals. In Pennsylvania, raccoons and skunks are the most frequent carriers. In 1996, officials confirmed 382 cases of rabies in the state, down from 418 in 1995.

To Be Safe

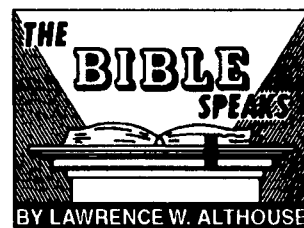

Agriculture has consistently been ranked as one of the most hazardous industries in the United States. The fatality rate for agriculture in 1994 was 26 per 100,000 workers — six and one-half times the all-industry average of four deaths per 100,000 workers.

According to a 1980-1989 study, the five leading causes of death in agricultural production were machinery, motor vehicles, electrocution, environmental hazards, and falling objects.

In 1994, tractor overturns accounted for more of the on-the-farm, tractor-related fatalities than any other single factor, according to the National Farm Medicine Center.

Let's be careful and do everything we can to prevent accidents.

WHEN PEOPLE SEE YOU COMING

February 2, 1997

Background Scripture:

Acts 4:32-37; 9:23-31; 11:19-30

Devotional Reading:

Acts 15:1-11

I wish I could remember who it was who first posed this question to me: "When people see you coming, are they glad?"

Perhaps I remember so well the question, if not the questioner, because it shook me up then and still has that power today. People may smile and be pleasant enough when I approach them, but inside how do they really feel about me? Do they regard me as a "wet blanket," "pain in the neck," or some other part of the anatomy?

Without being paranoid, I think it is healthy for us to sometimes ask ourselves how others perceive us. We tend to think of them in terms of how they make us feel, but is well also that we ask ourselves how we effect their lives. Do most people feel better for our presence, or worse? Do we tend to give them a lift or a lump?

ALWAYS POSITIVE

Barnabas, a leader in the New Testament church, was a man whose presence was always a positive influence. Although his given name was Joseph, he so favorably impressed the other apostles in Jerusalem that they gave him the surname of Barnabas, meaning "Son of encouragement." When people saw him coming, they felt encouraged by his presence. He was a good man to have around.

My Bible dictionary says of him that "he probably acquired the name Barnabas because of his ability as a preacher." I respectfully disagree. Although he may have been a persuasive preacher, what I read of Barnabas in Acts persuades me that he was a man respected and revered more for his deeds than his words. He not only spoke the words of the Good News, he embodied them.

For example, the writer of Acts tell us that Barnabas "sold a field which belonged to him, and brought the money and laid it at the apostles' feet." The purpose,

Acts has already told us, was so that the proceeds could be distributed "to each as any had need." Because Barnabas and the rest were willing to share everything they had within the fellowship of Christians, the writer could say: "There was not a needy person among them ..." (4:34-37). (Is that something we can say?)

THE ENCOURAGER

When next we meet him in Acts, we see him once again living up to his reputation as the "Son of Encouragement." When the newly-converted Paul — whom the Jerusalem disciples knew only as Saul the persecutor — came to Jerusalem, the Christians there understandably "were afraid of him." It was Barnabas who, having witnessed Paul's preaching, stuck out his neck and persuaded them to receive him — thus assuring the Christian movement the services of the greatest of all missionary apostles. Acts tells us, "So the church throughout all Judea and Samaria had peace and was built up ..." but it probably wouldn't have happened without the positive influence of Barnabas.

Later, when the church at Jerusalem learned the wonderful developments in Antioch, they sent Barnabas to look into the situation. "When he came and saw the grace of God, he was glad; and he exhorted them all to remain faithful to the Lord with steadfast purpose" (11:23). But, although Barnabas "Was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and of faith," he knew that Antioch needed the services of Paul. And he went to Tarsus to get Paul and bring him back to Antioch where together they labored for a year. Barnabas didn't feel a need to be the only star in Antioch's crown. It is interesting that it was here that "the disciples were for, the first time called Christians" (11:26).

No wonder that Barnabas was regarded as the "Son of Encouragement" and was so widely respected throughout the church. When people saw him coming, they were encouraged.

ality on the farm? Dairy MAP "Managing for Success" helps the dairy producer chart a direction for their farm and turn ideas into action. Producers learn to use four management concepts to organize their business: the mission statement, "SMART" goals, tactical plans and control plans. The tools provide a framework to take the small steps needed to accomplish major changes in a farm business. Nonfarm business managers have successfully used these concepts for many years to improve productivity and efficiency. Dairy farming is a business, and top business skills are just as vital to the bottom line as getting the chores done.

Working together with business partners, participants develop a mission statement and a set of "SMART" goals for their farm operation. The mission statement and goals provide the foundation the producer uses to chart the course of future management decisions. The mission and goals build a framework to evaluate financial decisions, feeding management decisions, labor management decisions and every other major decision on the farm. Advanced Dairy-MAP modules teach producers to apply the concepts to the management of finance and labor resources.

A "Managing for Success" workshop is planned for Friday, February 7, 1997 and Friday, February 14, 1997 at the Old Country Buffet along Route 30 in York. The workshops run from 9:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. each day and cost $50/farm operation. Meal costs are additional and will be payable at the workshops. Many agribusinesses provide scholarships for producers to attend the sessions. Reimbursement information will be provided at the workshops. The workshops will be led by Tim Beck, York County Extension Dairy/Livestock Agent; Duane Duncan, Cumberland County Dairy Agent; Roland Freund, Regional Farm Management Agent; and Laura Watts, Cumberland County Agricultural Agent.

To register for the workshops, call Penn State Cooperative Ex-

Farm Computerized Accounting Course Set

YORK (York Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in York County will offer a computerized farm record keeping course for Windows®-based computers on Monday, February 3, 1997 and Monday, February 10, 1997 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. for farm record keepers interested in computerizing their farm accounting. The workshop series is intended to familiarize the farm manager and/or his designated record keeper with a farm financial record keeping system that uses low-cost, flexible, easy to use computer software. Participants will be asked to bring their computers to the workshops. Each session will be held in Meeting Room 2 at the York County Extension Office.

The reasons for computerized farm record keeping are:

- Software is now very economical and readily available.
- Software is time-proven, easy to learn, and adaptable to any farm enterprise.
- Software is flexible and adaptable to simple or complex record keeping systems.
- The "Family Farm Chart of Accounts" developed by Dr. Larry Jenkins, Farm Management Specialist from Penn State University, will help farm managers utilize the full potential of low cost computerized record keeping systems.

The course outline includes setting up accounts and categories, printing financial reports and customizing categories and accounts for each farm operation.

Accounting concepts will be demonstrated using Microsoft Money® software. Participants must provide their own copy of the software for the workshop.

The course will be instructed by Dr. Larry Jenkins, Penn State Agricultural Economist. Enrollment for the course is limited to 12 farms on a first-come, first-serve basis because of individual instruction. Cost for the course is $7/farm operation to cover the cost of lunch. To register for the workshops, call Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408 on or before January 20, 1997. Penn State encourages persons with disabilities to participate in its programs and activities. If you anticipate needing any type of accommodation or have questions about the physical access provided, please contact Tim Beck (telephone 717-840-7408) in advance of your participation.

Lancaster Chamber Hosts Ag Management Seminar

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor
LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)
— "Farming will always be a way of life for those who treat it like a business."

This quote formed the basis for the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce and Industry's annual farm business financial management school Wednesday.

Michael Boehlje from Purdue University was the morning instructor who placed emphasis on the financial future of agriculture. He said agriculturalists must look at "The New Agriculture" in terms of globalization, industrialization, differentiated products, food supply chains, and information/precision farming methods.

Exports in the past consisted of mostly commodities, but the shift in exports is now to processed foods and other value added products. Unlike the jump in exports in the '70's with corresponding jump in commodity prices that was fueled by governments buying food on credit for their hungry people, today, increased world demand is fueled by increasing personal incomes around the world. This gives the people in developing countries the opportunity to buy more food and gives a "real" basis for U.S. farm export markets.

However, technology is also being exported and may work against U.S. exports if foreign countries can produce their own food in the future.

And a new factor today is that many inputs for agriculture are coming to us as imports. Machinery, products, and even lines of credit are being imported. The world's largest ag lender has headquarters overseas.

To be successful, today's farmers must get the manufacturing mentality. For example, think in terms of producing pork rather than raising hogs. Farming is changing from an art to a science. You need to focus on the end product and the system to get there.

Value added opportunities should be researched. End-User responsiveness, better flow scheduling, improved quality control, and food safety-traceback are areas that will become more important as farmers continue their search for markets both at home and for export.

And remember, smart buying of inputs is as important as smart selling of commodities because you can impact bottom lines more with smart buying.

The 35 farm men and women in the school worked on key performance measures for their own farms and studied analysis systems. In the afternoon, farm family estate and business planning and ownership succession were topics covered by Don Rogers, First Pioneer Farm Credit. James Shirk, ag manager for the Chamber, gave an overview of agriculture and the Internet.

McKean County Girl Is State Fair Queen

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff
HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — A 17-year-old woman from McKean County was named the 1997 state fair queen, and a long-time volunteer with the Reading Area Fair was named state fairperson of the year Jan. 25 during the 85th annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs (PSACF) at the Hershey Motel and Convention Center.

The annual convention was held from Jan. 22 through Jan. 26 in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Showmen's Association's annual meeting.

1996 McKean County Fair Queen April Bryington, daughter of Clifford and Connie Bryington, Bradford, was named state fair queen out of a field of 45 contestants — the most ever to compete for the state title, according to A. Wayne Readinger, of Fleetwood, one of the PSACF's 25 directors, and the recipient of its 1997 Fairperson of the Year Award.

Runner-up was 1996 Troy Fair

Queen Marcia Jeannine Binford, daughter of Theron and Sally Binford.

In the contest of the state's fair queens — who were all selected last year at their respective local fairs — the young women were judged on several different criteria during a two-day contest schedule. In general they were judged upon their poise, appearance, neatness and ability to communicate in writing.

They were interviewed individually and privately by three judges. Judges this year were Dr. Donald Evans, of Pennsylvania State University Extension; Betty Dale, of Bellwood; and Eva Marie Dalesio, of Imbler.

After the coronation luncheon — during which time the contestants sit at tables with their respective group of fair representatives, and then leave to go outside for individual announcements onto the stage — the selection of the five finalists was announced.

In addition to Bryington and Binford, finalists were Jacktown

Fair Queen Pamela Pulkownik, daughter of Bill and Jean Pulkownik; Greene/Dreher/Sterling Fair Queen Beth Nebzykoski, daughter of Dr. Henry and Jean Nebzydoski; and Clearfield County Fair Queen Danielle Johnston, daughter of Jack and Wanda Johnston.

The five finalists were then taken off stage and isolated so that they couldn't hear a final question for judging posed by master of ceremonies Brad Hicks, a newscaster with a Lancaster television news show.

The question was, "Why are the local fairs and farm shows so important to the people of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania?"

Most all of the answers included the benefits of providing an opportunity for a family outing, a sense of community spirit, the tradition of it, though Bryington and Binford both stressed the opportunity the events provide to educate the public to agricultural techniques, skills, realities and products.

"Agriculture is the number one industry (in Pennsylvania) and the fair can promote that best. It's important to keep people knowing what's going on," Bryington said.

"(The fair and farm shows) are very important because they promote agriculture and educate people about agriculture," Binford said. "It is very important because agriculture is the basis. It starts everything — the food supply, and money supply — and it is the basis for everything."

As the three judges then left the head table and exited the coronation hall to consult on a selection, 1996 State Fair Queen Feather Thomas told of her past year's experiences.

"It's been more than just a wonderful time and the experience has made an indelible mark on my life," she told the PSACF members as she thanked them for the opportunity to serve as their queen and promoter.

Thomas reviewed the many fairs she attended, the introductions to the governor, the state secretary of agriculture, and her roles as different events, such as the state Farm Show.

She said she had a full calendar with Grange meetings, parades, the state Cornucopia, Penn State's Ag Progress Days, and how she attended her first rodeo, and how she got to see some of her favorite entertainers.

"I've enjoyed my reign as your queen, but I know this pageant doesn't exist to make me feel good," she said. "If I've been able to bring respect, enthusiasm and awareness to your fairs, then thanks for loaning me this honor."

Thomas received a standing ovation. She then crowned the new queen and runner-up.

Along with receiving the crown of state fair queen, Bryington received a $1,000 scholarship.

She is obligated to represent the PSACF at the Feb. 10 Cornucopia event in Harrisburg, at the mid-August Ag Progress Days, at the January 1998 Pennsylvania State Farm Show, and next January at the 12th annual fair queen coronation, as well as any other events that arise.

The several-day convention of the two associations brings together those people involved in county fairs — volunteer organizers and entertainers — who have been jointly holding their respective annual meetings and functions at the same time and place for years.

Groups representing local fair boards from across the state meet with a variety of show people and groups seeking employment at the fairs during the several-day event, with official talent showcases, and many entertainers establishing "hospitality" room visits where the acts are further promoted.

While some fairs do book acts prior to the convention, according to PASCF members many acts are booked during the convention and contacts are made for future considerations.

State Gov. Tom Ridge addressed the PASCF members during its opening ceremonies Jan. 24, and had almost all day to discuss issues with the state fair fund administrator.

The state helps support local fairs, a practice that goes back in time as a developmental program of the United States.

It was considered by early Americans that county fairs should be supported through the government because of the educational advantage it provided Americans in being exposed to the latest technologies and practices in agriculture, thereby providing United States production agriculturalists with the tools to boost the country's trading and economy.

In addition, there were traditions of gatherings among early Europeans, as well as among Native Americans, for purposes of trade, education, and entertainment.

While that is still the main "reason" for county fairs, many cite the establishment and continuity of community fellowship that is derived from participating in and attending a local community fair. That also helps perpetuate a common understanding and harmony and a sense of community and community pride.

One of the highlights of the PASCF convention is its annual banquet, during which time the annual fairperson of the year award is bestowed upon a deserving person.

This year it was A. Wayne Readinger. As recipient of the PSACF award, Readinger said he was surprised by the honor, because there are others who have done as much as he, he said.

"Well, I accept it very humbly because I know there are many people who deserve it as much as I do," he said.

Readinger has been involved with the Reading Fair for 42 years. In 1959, he and his wife Helen and family were selected as the outstanding family in Berks County by the fair.

"Ever since, I've been involved in my own fair — the Reading Fair — and other fairs across the state."

He became a member of the PSACF executive board in 1988, and was elected vice president (served two years) for 1990 and 1991, and served two years as president for two years, 1992 and 1993.

"At that time we visited about 70 fairs throughout the state, and, of course, we have been attending the (IAFE annual convention) since 1988," Readinger said.

The IAFE stands for International Association of Fairs and Expositions.

Over the years his role with his local Reading Fair has changed over the years. The fairgrounds has changed. It had been sold in 1980 and became the site of the Fairgrounds Mall, along Rt. 61. The fair stayed there until three years ago, off of, and down hill of the backend of the mall parking lot.

The fair has since been held at the Kutztown Fairgrounds, though Readinger said it appeared as though county and Bern Township officials may be close to an agreement with the local fair board for final approval to build a new fairgrounds on 57 acre-tract of land adjacent to the Berks County Farm and Home Center in Leesport, located off of Rt. 183 near the breast of the U.S. Army Corp of Engineers' Blue Marsh Reservoir.

If that agreement goes through, Readinger said the Reading Fair could possibly be held at the new fairgrounds in 1998.

Readinger was a fruit and poultry farmer until a farm accident in 1965, when a tractor overturned on him. He said his father, Austin B. Readinger, grew fruit and showed at the Farm Show, which led to his involvement.

"We grew a lot of fruit and we loved to exhibit fruit. We exhibited a lot of fruit at the Oley Fair, the Reading Fair, the Allentown Fair, and also, we have quite a few ribbons from the Farm Show.

"We exhibited at the Farm Show from 1940 to about 1960," Readinger said. "In fact, my father exhibited apples at the Farm Show, before the Farm Show Building was ever built, when they used to have the show down in Harrisburg in different buildings back in the '30s. They used to have shows for

"I had a love of raising some fancy fruit, and I felt that raising and showing some fruit was a good way of promoting the industry."

Readinger served as president of the county fruit growers and the state fruit growers associations.

Readinger said his mentors include his mother and father, and other people, many no longer living, such as George Schuler, who was a prominent person in the East Penn Valley as far as the Grange was concerned, "... and even people like John McSparran, of Lancaster County. He was a former state Grange master."

"People back home, I have to give a lot of credit to people who were in Extension at that time, in the '50s," Readinger said.

He was a member of his local Extension board of directors for 16 years and served as its president for a number of those.

"I have to say there are many people who probably motivated us into that area," he said.

It became a family involvement. "We had three daughters and all of them showed steers at the fairs during their 4-H years, plus at the Farm Show."

Readinger also served as a member of the Farm Show Commission for six years, as well as a trustee of Penn State from 1970 to 1976.

Readinger said he and Helen have been married 52 years. "Probably my greatest delight is a great grandson, who is 3 years old who lives in Maryland, but we have him a lot. He's our joy and pride."

The couple has four grandchildren — three boys and a girl — and now the great grandson.

"I do a lot of gardening yet, and cutting grass, and the rest of the time I still spend with the church, the Grange locally, Extension, the fairs, and the Berks County Versammlung."

"Versammlung" means a gathering," Readinger said, explaining that it is a group that meets and talks in the original German dialect that was spoken by the first German inhabitants to the Berks County area.

"I tell people it's a gathering of the nuts."

"Versammlung. It's men and women, we meet once a month, but have an annual banquet the Monday night after Easter with 900 people, at the Leesport Market and Auction."

"We have speakers, and people love to eat. We have different things on the menu, Pennsylvania Dutch foods."

"It's an organization for fellowship, for fun, for food and to promote and keep the Pennsylvania German language alive."

(Dutch was the misreading of the German word for German, "Duetsch.") Readinger was state Grange master from 1968 to 1974.

"There are many, many people in Grange who are at the same time fair people, across the state," he said.

"Fairs are held in rural areas, in most cases, and Grange people are from the rural areas, and the two tie together because of the agriculture," Readinger said.

Readinger said that in addition to the thousands of volunteers who have and continue to make the state county fairs a success, the support of the state can't be overlooked.

"We've been very fortunate that we're getting support from the Legislature, the governor, and the secretary of agriculture," Readinger said.

"A lot of smaller fairs are getting larger. I think there's a growing interest. We never had this many girls in the fair queen contest," he said.

But again, he said that the draw of agriculture is one of the main attractions to a fair.

"Fairs are the last place for most people to see and maybe touch (farm) animals, and really teach children where food comes from," Readinger said. "Fairs are one of the last stepping stones to let city cousins know about agriculture. Everybody ought to be involved in agriculture."

Readinger said that although he believes family or friends is the best way to get involved in a county fair, there are other ways. He said a good place to start is at the local extension office or Grange and talk to people or a 4-H agent there.

If they are not directly involved in the local fair, they can probably provide some contacts who are involved and who can discuss how to get involved.

Vegetable Conference Offers Marketing Ideas For Produce

With 112 stores to service Richard Shefchunas representing Riverside Markets said, "We are looking for growers to come to us. We use farmers who farm from 10-2,000 acres and will consider whatever you have to offer."

Robert Hartman said that Giant Foods (not to be confused with Pennsylvania Giant's chain) made a decision three years ago to purchase local produce. The plan has increased sales significantly in the chain's 174 stores and the chain plans to open 40 new stores in the northeast. The new stores in Pennsylvania will be under the name Super G since the company does not hold the sole rights to "Giant" in this state.

"We are the new boy on the block in Pennsylvania, and we welcome you with open arms," Hartman told growers.

Through displaying television commercials, slides, and newspaper ads, the two companies demonstrated how thoroughly they incorporate local growers into their advertising promotions.

Several growers in the audience who already supply products for the two chains reported enthusiastic satisfaction with the fairness of their treatment.

Both supermarket chains use buyers to supply from as little as one store to as much as their distribution centers. Both stores do much more than buy local produce. They make a big deal out of spotlighting the farmers.

Riverside Markets photographs growers with their produce and use the photos in ads and in-store promotions.

Giant runs television commercials with Hartman inspecting local fields with the farmers.

Although Hartman and Shefchunas are sensitive to growers needs since they have grown up in families, the emphasis on promoting the farm lifestyle is not sentimental, but means more dollars for the chain stores.

The customer wants fresh taste. They want local produce.

"We believe Pennsylvania grows the best fruits and vegetables in the world and we want to promote that. We went to the fields to take the pictures," said John S.

In addition to using the photo in newspaper ads, the store also puts a blown up photograph with the farmer's name and town on a easel to display it with the produce. The produce is heaped on baskets to portray freshly gathered, abundant produce.

"We started with 20 growers and now have 60. We plan to increase to 80-100 within the next year," Shefchunas said.

"We used to think you couldn't get variety from Pennsylvania produce but we were proven wrong. Local grown is the best in the world," Shefchunas said.

"We can't say enough about the quality and are willing to pay extra for packaging because customers are willing to pay for quality."

The Riverside chain is so confident of the superior quality of the produce that they have a 200% guarantee attached to home-grown produce.

This, of course, encourages growers to provide quality and variety.

"People buy with their eyes. Quality has got to be there. We have a good 'marriage' with the growers but will move out of the relationship if the grower becomes sloppy," Shefchunas said.

The Riverside chain also displays a special sign with a clock to move the hands to indicate when a fresh shipment of in-season produce such as corn is expected.

The Giant chain also uses signs to identify growers with the produce. In addition, they run five three-minute commercials throughout the growing season showing farmers planting and harvesting crops.

"We used no actors — only farm families," said Hartman who ties the ads to increasing five times the volume of produce sold. In addition, customers who come for the produce buy other items, which resulted in a 21 percent of overall income.

Representatives from retail chains say they changed their minds about using local produce in recent years. Previously they erroneously believed that variety was limited. Now they are convinced that Pennsylvania grows the best fruits and vegetables in the world.

During the three-year period that the Giant chain has been working with farmers, changes have been made. Giant now pays farmers weekly. Payment is not based on auctions or the cheapest price but open market prices.

"The success of any program depends on three things: People. People. People," Hartman said. "We are willing to work with you to support our family as you work with us to support your family."

This working together has resulted in growers setting up fax machines and answering services so that ordering and supplying produce at the right time is simplified.

"I, as the buyer, am not the boss. You as the grower are not the boss. The boss is Mrs. Consumer," Hartman said. "You need to make a profit and so do we. We want you back next year."

To encourage up front communication, appointments are set up with growers to discuss and work out problem areas.

Hartman said that $12 million was paid to Maryland area growers last year. "We are glad to put that money back into the community," he said.

Farmers' Markets Attract City And Country Dwellers

LOU ANN GOOD

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)

— Selling successfully at a farmer's market requires attractive displays, a friendly personality, and diversity of food items according to panel participants at the Vegetable Conference held this week in Hershey.

Four growers who operate stands at different markets shared secrets of success during a panel discussion on Tuesday.

"The panel represents different parts of the state and different types of markets," said Jeff Patton who moderated the session.

Ernie Greaser who operates Woodside Farm in Quakertown told how he has watched farmers succeed and fail at the market he attends.

"You must sell yourself. After a sales presentation, ask how many would you like?" Greaser said. He referred to a survey that showed 20 percent of the people buy after a sales presentation (offering tips, care, and a way to use the product) but that percentage rises to 80% when the salesperson asks the person how many he or she would like.

"Ask for an order. People hate to say, 'no,' he said.

Arrive early, set up a neat display by color. Use continuity every week. Change confuses people.

Surround yourself with friendly, courteous help.

Help must know varieties of produce and how it is used.

Greaser uses what he calls "verbal press releases," such as telling a customer, "cantaloupes will be ready next week." That way the customer will come expecting to buy cantaloupe and won't buy elsewhere," Greaser said.

If customers complain about prices being high, Greaser said, "Justify the price, then immediately ask how many can I get you."

Don't try to sell anything that you wouldn't buy yourself," Greaser said.

Some pitfalls to avoid are sitting in chairs — people won't want to bother you. Having unsupervised children or youth operating the stand almost always is detrimental.

Paul Hauser, a Lincoln University grower, described the market where he sells as an upscale small town market.

"Look to create real or psychological differences, not only among vendors but supermarkets," said Hauser, who stresses that a person's attitude must show that he loves marketing to be successful.

"Visual appearances are important. Fill containers until they bulge. The more you put in, the more you sell," he said. Also, make sure that traffic flows easily around your stand.

Hauser prefers flat tables, and places high demand items at the end so that while customers are walking to the other end to pick up an item, they will be enticed to pick up more items on the way.

"When a customer asks for green beans, Hauser counters, 'What kind would you like, Kentucky Wonders?' Or, if they ask for tomatoes, say, 'I prefer German Butterballs.'

"Soon customers won't just buy any red tomato but will seek out your stand because you're the only one selling the variety they want.

"Comments such as these also reinforces the idea that everything I sell, I grow," Hauser said.

He is a firm believer in the value of offering samples. So what if a few eat several pieces or some kids pick up a handful, the majority will buy," he said.

Hauser does a lot of what he calls cross selling. This means suggesting another product by asking, "Have you tried our cantaloupes?"

"Use recipes. Tell someone how to cook an item, and they'll buy it," Hauser said.

Lois Klinger of Catawissa operates a stand at a small market.

"The same factors that are important at large markets are important at the smaller ones," she said.

She cautions against taking leftover produce from one market to another. "Never take it to market if it doesn't look fresh," she said.

Harold Gross, 81, still resides near the family's 350-acre farm and maintains an avid interest in the business, especially the cattle enterprise. He rarely misses the Monday sales at Lancaster Stockyards and frequently attends other livestock auction events around the region. His late wife, Ethel, was a noted leader in regional agriculture activities and a founding member of American and Penn's Agri-Women.

Their son, Steven, Sr., and his wife, Phyllis, manage the crops and livestock operation, along with their sons, Steven, Jr., 28, and his wife, Becky, and Daniel, 23, and his wife, Tina. Steve and Becky's sons, Nevin, 5, and Lane, 1, are the eighth generation on the farm started in the 1800s. While the farm's original buildings no longer stand, the main farmhouse was built in 1856 by George Gross; and the farm has been recognized as a Pennsylvania Century Farm.

Along with the land on the home farm, the Gross' own an additional 80 acres near Mt. Wolf and rent another 500. Primary crops are corn and wheat. The farm's facilities provide housing facilities for up to 600 head of feeder cattle, along with the 30-sow farrow-to-finish swine operation.

Though the Gross' are pleased that their sons have chosen to return home to agriculture, the young men were under no family pressure to take that career direction. Their daughter, Gretta, is in her final year of medical school toward her goal of becoming a physician.

"Both went to school and earned their associated degrees," notes Phyllis Gross of their sons' agriculture training. "We didn't want them to farm as their only career option. They made the decision to return to the farm; it was their choice."

"We make a real effort to sit down and talk about the business," she adds. "They are here because they want to be here. Their wives are both very supportive and we all sit down together to discuss decisions. It is important that you keep the lines of communication open and give them options."

In addition to their three families actively involved in managing the farm, the Gross' have one full-time employee who is an integral part of the daily operation.

"No one has to be here all the time; everyone knows everyone else's job," explains Phyllis of the management and responsibility sharing of their agriculture production business. "But we are never all gone for any length of time at the same time."

That flexibility makes it possible for the Gross' to remain active in various agriculture and community affairs. Steve and Becky serve on the national Young Farmer and Rancher committee of the American Farm Bureau. Steve, Sr., is on the East Manchester Township Zoning Hearing Board and the Tri-Municipal Board, which includes representation from the boroughs of Manchester and Mt. Wolf.

Central Market Honored
York's downtown Central Market House was honored with the Ag Industry Award given annually to an agribusiness entity.

The historic market was built over a century ago by Baltimore shipbuilders and continues to serve as a farmers' market. Nearly 90 vendors offer customers a variety of fresh produce, meats, poultry and dairy products, baked goods and horticulture items, as well as gourmet coffees and ethnic foods.

Ownership of the market is held by 80 stockholders, with a board of six directors. Tony Dobrosky is president, Sam Loucks is vice president and Lester Bentz holds the secretary-treasurer position.

A noted area "must see" site for visitors and tourists, the market is famed for its cavernous structure and cross-section representation of local York County culture. A major renovation project of the roof is currently under way, to refurbish and partially replace the original slate on the venerable downtown landmark.

Century Farm Recognized
Five York County farms were honored as Century Farms under the criteria of the state's program recognizing farms that have remained in a family for one hundred or more consecutive years and on which a family member is currently living and producing agricultural products.

Recognized as Century Farms were:

•The Gerber Farm, George and Faye Gerber, 3885 Davidsburg Road, Dover;

•The Utz Farm, Chester and Margie Utz, 93 Utz Drive, Hanover;

•The Myers Farm, Jane Myers Rhone, Linda Myers Gruber and Wayne E. Myers, Jr., 40 East Ridge Road, Dillsburg;

•The Julius Farm, Donald E. and Willie Julius, 48 Julius Lane, Dover; them to buy other items.

"Sell ordinary things in special ways. If a customer only wants one potato, sell it that way," she said.

"Learn what varieties customers like, and grow it. Don't lie and claim it's Silver Queen corn just because that is what the customer wants. They'll find out and won't come back."

She believes that markets are successful when standowners cooperate instead of having a competitive attitude. "Try not to hurt your competitors; on the other hand, customers are skeptical if there are no price differentials among standholders," she said.

Daniel Janoski, a grower in Clinton, attends markets two evenings a week at a city location and three evenings at a suburban area.

With 15 employees, many of them family members, Janoski finds that customers like to watch his family growing up.

In an open air market, trucks are unloaded as needed. Thus, it is important to know how to load a truck so that easy access to all items is possible. Janoski used slides to demonstrate attractive displays of produce.

For those who are thinking about starting up a farmers' market, the panelists offered these tips.

- Location with a community within walking distance.

- Ample parking with easy access.

- Community-organized markets show you're really wanted.

- Offer special days such as Farm Animal Day, Guess the weight of the watermelon, and band playing music.

Fourth Quarter Growth

LANCASTER (Lanc. Co.) — Lancaster DHIA reported a record number of cows processed for the last quarter of 1996. The average monthly total of 75,833 cows is up 11,809 cows over the same quarter in 1995. Lancaster DHIA has continued to see steady growth during the last three years from an average of 58,756 cows in the last quarter of 1993. Manager, Jay Mylin, attributes the growth to quality Technician service and fast turn-around time for reports getting into the dairyman's hands. Lancaster DHIA's commitment to low overhead has enabled the organization to improve its service without increasing the cost.

Lancaster DHIA serves Lancaster, Berks, Dauphin, Chester, Lebanon and York Counties. For

Streamside-Land Management Workshop Set For Farmers

SAINT PETERS (Chester Co.) — Because their livelihoods depend on the quality of the soil, farmers know every precaution must be taken to prevent unnecessary soil loss. Streamside lands are particularly vulnerable to soil erosion. Many farmers are looking into how to balance protection of this sensitive habitat with full utilization of farm lands in tight economic times.

If you are farming in the Schuylkill watershed and looking for information about this sensitive habitat, you may be interested in a two-part evening workshop that is being offered to area farmers. This workshop is being presented by Schuylkill Riverkeepers, Saint Peters, Chester County.

Participating farmers will have the opportunity to earn while they learn about proven practices and local resources for managing streamside lands. Schuylkill Riverkeepers recognize that time may be a farmer's most valuable commodity. To help compensate for their time, a farmer who attends both sessions of the workshop will receive $50 for their participation.

Schuylkill Riverkeepers works to protect and restore the ecological integrity of the Schuylkill watershed. The focus of Riverkeeper programs is the private citizen, from every walk of life. "We have an opportunity to offer a workshop for farmers at this time," said Chari Towne, Project Director with Schuylkill Riverkeepers. Towne added, "Last fall we held a biological monitoring workshop for citizens involved with local watershed groups and other community organization. In the future, we hope to offer training sessions for teachers and perhaps township officials."

Highlighting the first evening session workshop are three local farmers, one each from Berks, Chester, and Montgomery counties. These farmers will share their personal experiences managing streamside lands and welcome any questions their peers may have.

During the second session of the workshop, Tim Fritz, from the Penn State Cooperative Extension in Montgomery County, will be discussing the use of flash grazing for streamside lands.

Other speakers will represent the United States Department of Agriculture National Resources Conservation Service, Berks County Conservancy, Dairy Network Partnership, Stroud Water Research Center, the PA Game Commission and the PA Bureau of Forestry of the Department of Conservation and Natural Resources.

For more information about this workshop, please call the Schuylkill Riverkeepers at 610-469-6005. Preregistration is required by Friday, February 14.

Field To Feedbunk Conference Sold Out

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — On Feb. 11-13, the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service (NRAES) is sponsoring a conference titled Silage: Field to Feedbunk in Hershey. The 420 preregistrants come close to filling the available meeting space at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center. NRAES has decided not to accept walk-ins to assure that the preregistered guests will have a comfortable educational experience.

NRAES always experiences some cancellations and no-shows. If you are interested in attending but have not preregistered, call NRAES at (607) 255-7654 to see if seats have become available. NRAES accepts major credit cards, and a credit card is necessary to reserve any available seats.

The conference proceedings will be available from NRAES after Feb. 13. The cost is $30 plus $5 for shipping and handling. Contact NRAES to order the proceedings any time after the conference.

Dairy Farmers Support Rally

MESHOPPEN — Nearly 250 dairy farmers and agri-business people attended meetings last week in Berks, Northumberland and Union counties, to further discuss the serious decline in milk prices paid to area dairy farmers.

The meetings were sponsored by the Progressive Agriculture Organization (Pro Ag). During the meetings Arden Tewksbury, Manager of Pro Ag, explained the serious economic impact these declining milk prices will have on the dairy farmers. In addition, the county losses will be staggering.

Pro Ag is still carrying out their six point program that the organization adopted on December 27th. These points are geared to correct the inadequate prices paid to dairy farmers.

This week meetings were held in Green, N.Y., and Damascus. In addition, several members of Pro

Ag were in Washington, D.C. to discuss the seriousness of the dairy farmers price decline, with the Agriculture Aides of the U.S. Congressmen from Pennsylvania and New York state.

On Monday, February 3, another meeting will be held at the Valley Grange Hall at Academy Corners, one mile west of Knoxville, Pa., on Route 49. Meeting time is 1:00 p.m.

During last weeks meetings a vote was taken of the farmers present regarding their possible participation in a national with-holding action of milk, if all other efforts fail.

According to Tewksbury, 85% of the farmers present voted to support the with-holding action, if and when it became necessary.

Pro Ag can be reached at (717) 833-5776.

Lewis Set To Retire At Farmers First Terrell To Take His Place

Andrew Terrell, left, will become head of agricultural lending at Farmers First Bank when George Lewis retires February 1.

LITITZ (Lancaster Co.) — George Lewis, a well known and active supporter of Agriculture will be retiring at the end of January after 24 years as head of Agricultural Lending from Farmers First Bank. Lewis, a native of New York State, graduated from Cornell University in 1953. He served two years in the U.S. Army, one year in France. He returned to New York State and worked for the Wirthmore Feed Co. for 8½ years and in 1961 transferred to Lancaster. In 1965 he joined Conestoga National Bank, which later became Commonwealth National Bank, setting up the Agricultural Lending department. In 1973 he joined Farmers First Bank to head up its Agricultural Lending department. Lewis is president of the Lititz Improvement Inc., established in 1969 to upgrade the downtown retail area of Lititz. He recently joined the board of AAA Lancaster County and is also a member of the Lancaster chapter of the American Business Clubs. He and his wife, Lorraine, have five children and four grandchildren, and live on their sheep farm near Mt. Joy.

Andrew C. Terrell, a 1976 graduate of Penn State University, with an Agricultural Business Management degree, spent several years with the USDA Crop Reporting Service before coming to Lancaster in 1979 to become the New Holland Branch Manager of Farm Credit. In 1984 he went with Meridian Bank as Lebanon Ag Lender before moving into business and corporate lending in Lancaster and Lebanon counties. From a farm and farm business background, Andrew and his wife, Lisa, have three daughters and live near Neffsville. He looks forward to serving the agricultural communities of Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland with on-farm service.

Susquehanna Bancshares, Inc., parent company of Farmers First Bank, is a super-community multi-bank holding company dedicated to preserving the values and traditions of community banking.

PHA Convention Registration Deadline Feb. 3

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Holstein Association annual convention is set for Feb. 20-22 at the Sheraton Inn, in Reading.

Deadline for registration/ticket orders and room reservations is Feb. 3.

Send the registration with a check payable to the: 1997 PA Holstein Convention. Mail the registration and check to Eileen Schuler, RDd 4 Box 4005, Fleetwood, PA 19522. For more information call her at (610) 944-0485.

For lodging reservations, contact the Sheraton Inn, 1741 Paper Mill Road, Reading PA 19610, or call (610) 376-3811, and indicate that the room reservation is being made in connection with the convention.

Convention room rates at the Sheraton are to be $65 and tax for a single, double, triple or four-person room.

Though several announcements have been published in Lancaster Farming, some additional information has been made available this week.

A schedule of events starts Monday, Thursday Feb. 20, with registration and commercial exhibits to start at noon and run until 6:30 p.m.

A dairy bar also is to open at noon Monday and stay open until 5 p.m.

A PHA board or directors meeting is scheduled to run from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m.

A roundtable discussion is to be held from 2:30 p.m. to 5 p.m.

From 5 p.m. to 6:45 p.m., a pre-sale buffet is to be served.

The convention sale is set to start at 7 p.m.

On Friday, Feb. 21, registration, commercial exhibits and the dairy bar are to be open from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m.

From 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m., the PHA annual meeting, presentations by commercial exhibitors, and a Holstein Association USA Inc. winter forum are to be held.

An alternative program for those not interested in organizational details, otherwise known as the Ladies Program, is to be held from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

A banquet reception is set from 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. followed by the banquet which starts at 7 p.m.

On Sunday, Feb. 22, breakfast is to be served from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m., followed by the presentation of awards.

Also announced this week is the agenda for the 84th annual PHA meeting, again, set to start at 8:30 a.m. Feb. 21.

President Jay Houser is to give a call to order followed by presentations and introductions by commercial exhibitors.

Next is to be a reading of the minutes from the 1996 annual convention, followed by the president's report.

Dean Johnson is scheduled to next give the treasurer's report, followed by staff reports.

After that, a report of the Executive Committee elections is to be given, followed by recognitions of member achievements.

Time has been set aside for a winter forum to discuss issues of national scope, followed by resolutions to be presented by Thomas Kelly, chairman of the committee.

Any new business is scheduled to be heard next, followed by adjournment.

New Dates For Sire Summaries

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — New this year, USDA will release genetic evaluations a month later. Genetic evaluations will now be released in February and August rather than January and July.

The reason for the change is to coincide with release of evaluations by the International Bull Evaluation Service (INTERBULL). Information from six countries (Australia, Canada, Denmark, New Zealand, United Kingdom and US) will be included in the INTERBULL Jersey evaluations.

"We are becoming a more global dairy economy and this gives us a way to assess genetics worldwide," said Cari Wolfe, director of Research and Development at the American Jersey Cattle Association. Wolfe said that we do not anticipate a large impact on U.S. breeders but it is worthwhile to keep abreast of international offerings.

USDA-DHIA evaluations, available Feb. 10, are based on United States data only. The INTERBULL evaluations will be available the following day. Active AI lists should be available during the week of Feb. 17.

As you make semen purchases, keep in mind that the next Official Jersey Genetic Summary (AJCA Green Book) will be available in late February.

Dairy Day Feb. 17

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — Plans are under way for the 1997 Bradford County Dairy Day, Monday, Feb. 17, at the SRU School in East Smithfield, from 9:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

The educational presentations featured this year will be "Dairy Policy — No Longer A Sacred Cow," presented by Robert Yonkers, PSU extension dairy economist. Also, there will be a panel discussion on "Managing With Fluctuating Prices." There will be afternoon breakout sessions, one of which will feature corn herbicide updates for farmers wishing to obtain core and category pesticide credits.

There is absolutely no cost for farmers to attend Dairy Day.

Farmers will need to reserve their free dinner by calling the extension office at (717) 265-2896 on or before Feb. 10. For information on Dairy Day, call Tom Maloney at (717) 265-2896.

Dobrosky Named Citation Winner

JOYCE BUPP

York Co. Correspondent
SEVEN VALLEYS (York Co.)

— For 34 years, he led, applauded, advised, prodded, taught, suggested, arranged, judged, chaperoned and otherwise did whatever was in his power as a "county agent" to promote the 4-H members and programs of York County.

But, even after retirement, Anthony G. "Tony" Dobrosky continued as an avid supporter, promoter, livestock buyer and fundraiser for his beloved 4-H'ers. Members of the York County 4-H Beef Club saluted him for his nearly four decades of support by naming him their Citation Award winner for 1997, presented at the club's annual dinner, January 25 at the Seven Valleys Fire Hall.

"There have been an awful lot of kids that you have helped over the years," summed up presenter and beef club leader Gordon Shive of Tony Dobrosky's major focus as a Penn State Agriculture Extension Agent.

Dobrosky came to York County in 1957 as a summer assistant in the extension program, then was hired by in 1958 as a permanent position. One of his first assignments was to work with the livestock programs, with particular emphasis on the Beef Club. Under Dobrosky's guidance, the Beef Club's membership quadrupled in size, and Beef Breeding was added as a project area.

Judging and juging teams have benefited from Dobrosky's coaching expertise and he established the first regional livestock judging contest in Pennsylvania. Both Livestock Judging and Meats Judging teams have won numerous state and national honors under his training and leadership. Many of the current 4-H livestock leaders and parents were part of his clubs and judging teams.

Dobrosky retired from extension work in July 1991 — and two days later went to work for the Glatfelter Agribusiness Firm. In that capacity, he continued to avidly support 4-H livestock activities, as well as fill numerous other agriculture leadership roles.

He serves on the Farm Show sale committee and the Farm Show's Scholarship Committee, and has been instrumental in generating widespread support for these youth programs. Dobrosky

(Turn to Page A39)

Tony Dobrosky, left, was named the 1997 Citation Winner by the York County 4-H Beef Club. Presenting the award was Gordon Shive, one of Dobrosky's 4-H members when he began extension work and a long-time Beef Club leader.

York Plans MAP Workshop

YORK (York Co.) — A two-day "Managing for Success" workshop is planned for Friday, Feb. 7, and Friday, Feb. 14, at the Old Country Buffet along Rt. 30 in York.

The workshops run from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day and cost $50/farm operation.

Every dairy farm operator has some ideas about the direction they would like their farm business to take in the future. But how does the farm operator take the steps needed to turn those ideas into reality on the farm?

Dairy MAP "Managing for Success" helps the dairy producer chart a direction for their farm and turn ideas into action. Producers learn to use four management concepts to organize their business: the mission statement, "SMART" goals, tactical plans, and control plans. The tools provide a framework to take the small steps needed to accomplish major changes in a farm business.

Nonfarm business managers have successfully used these concepts for many years to improve productivity and efficiency. Dairy farming is a business, and top business skills are just as vital to the bottom line as getting the chores done.

Working together with business partners, participants develop a mission statement and a set of

"SMART" goals for their farm operation. The mission statement and goals provide the foundation the producer uses to chart the course of future management decisions. The mission and goals build a framework to evaluate financial decisions, feeding management decisions, labor management decisions, and every other major decision on the farm.

Advanced Dairy-MAP modules teach producers to apply the concepts to the management of finance and labor resources.

The workshops will be led by Tim Beck, York County extension dairy/livestock agent; Duane Duncan, Cumberland County dairy agent; Roland Freund, regional farm management agent; and Laura Watts, Cumberland County agricultural agent.

Meal costs are additional and will be payable at the workshops. Many agribusinesses provide scholarships for producers to attend the sessions. Reimbursement information will be provided at the workshops.

To register for the workshops, call Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408.

Lyn Forkal
Springville

Editor,

One farmer's experience.

Seems to me after reading the last issue of Lancaster Farming, some farmers' need to hear for a change a success story. The reason for writing is my local feed supplier stopped in and asked why I'm not buying more feed. Now to start at the beginning, I started farming 10 years ago and right away I saw we had a rumen digestion problem, so I started experimenting until spring of '96, when I hit the solution on my farm. At the present time, I'm feeding six different rumen products at recommended rates. I have observed numerous herds, and in my opinion, there is a tremendous problem in rumen digestion.

No. 2 is feed one to three pounds of top quality oats ground up as fine as possible with 150 pounds of wet molasses per ton. Many feed salesmen will tell you cows don't need oats, and are getting enough fiber from corn silage and hay. That's right, they don't. But take my word, oats do help in rumen digestion.

May I tell you what happened to the farmers in a small country that Russia invaded years ago. It was around wheat harvest time and these farmers said we're not going to work for the communists. So they put their harvest tools away and that was it. Well, the Russian officials said "this is no problem." Overnight posters appeared throughout the land, without God and without sun, we will get the harvest done. Then the clouds rolled in and it started raining, and it rained indeed. Again overnight the posters disappeared. I can't say for certain, but I think the wheat crop that year throughout all Russian lands was a total disaster. That winter there was no bread to be found anywhere. Is this what you prefer for America. We all make mistakes sometime.

One more thing I want to share with you. On my farm I'm a partial grazer and also organic. On my farm and two others like mine we shipped less milk in '96 and had the best profits ever. My vision for the future dairy farm is 3/4 of the farm in grass and grazing and farmed organic and 1/4 in corn. A good formula for growing corn is use one bag of black rock phosphate for every three bags of starter fertilizer, and use pit power on your seeds, one pint per bag. This helps to control rootworms and helps root systems. Apply to seed on a warm, sunny day to have rapid absorption.

Farmers, what is the hindrance to our farming success today? Is it milk price manipulation, or is it a lack of good old fashioned common sense farming knowledge. Are we seeking fame and fortune with high herd averages which floods the market with milk nobody needs, or is it rumen digestion problems.

The reason for writing this article is to help some financial struggling farmer to experience the pleasure that I experience of working with nature on my own farm.

God's word tells us the world is more clever in their financial business dealings than the Christian is in preparing his own soul.

I believe if all farmers would bring their herd averages down to reasonable levels, this rumor of price manipulation would disappear like a dense fog.

Come on American farmers, our better days may only be starting.

DAYCO SUPER II V-BELTS

Now there's a belt that beats the toughest drive problems.

Many heavy-duty industrial machines demand more than conventional wrapped v-belts can stand. Their punishing drives make ordinary belts crack under pressure. The result: unnecessary and expensive downtime.

Now there's a solution to the consistent costly problem of replacing or retensioning belts. It's the revolutionary new Super II v-belt from Dayco. The Super II belt was designed specifically for the most brutal applications. And its performance blows the cover off conventional wrapped belts.

In heavy torque, high horse power and extreme shock load comparisons, it's not even a contest. The Super II v-belt is stronger, more flexible, and lasts far longer.

Innovative design & construction provide extra strength and stamina.

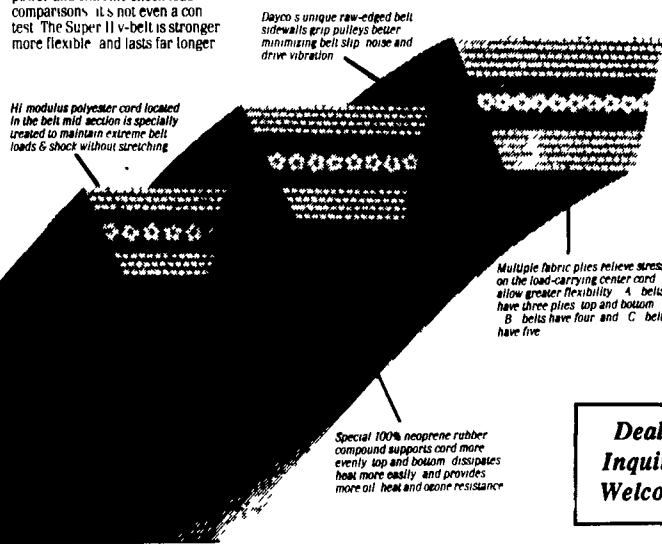

The secret to the Super II v-belt's durability is its unique construction. The central portion of the polyester cords in the neoprene rubber core provides greater strength, balance, and longer life. Multiple fabric plies, top and bottom, enhance flexibility. And Dayco's unique raw edged construction gives it a better grip for controlled slippage.

These attributes combined make the Super II belt superior to conventional wrapped belts in every way.

Test the Super II v-belt on your toughest drive.

The Super II v-belt was field tested for two years on the most severe applications: rock quarry shaker screens, lumber mill tree debarkers, and pipe descenders. In every case, it outperformed conventional wrapped belts by a wide margin. But the only test that really counts is the one you do on your own equipment.

Try the Super II belt on your toughest drive problem. You'll be so amazed by its incredible endurance that you'll want to put it on all your drives. In fact, we're so sure you'll be pleased with the performance of the Super II v-belt that in the unlikely event you're not satisfied, we'll refund the original purchase price, or replace it with a conventional wrapped v-belt. The Super II v-belt from Dayco. The super problem solver.

Water Supplier: Most Farmers Responsible In Pesticide Use

according to the representative. Luitweiler told the producers that the company is concerned about protection of groundwater and surface water sources.

As a result, four years ago, the company began monitoring water supplies, particularly after spring runoff events. In 1995, 152 samples of water from a variety of watershed sites showed that 122 sites had detectable levels of pesticides. Seven showed levels at 7 parts per billion in the raw water, but none exceeded acceptable levels.

However, in 1996, a particularly wet year, 136 sites had detectable levels of atrazine, and 35 exceeded 3 parts per billion. At the Chester Creek event, levels of atrazine levels peaked at 18 parts per billion.

"Most applicators and farmers are conscientious and the effects of their activities don't present a problem," said Luitweiler. But ever since a large outbreak of waterborne illnesses struck near Milwaukee, Wis. in 1993, more water suppliers are becoming concerned about the quality of water, although the Wisconsin outbreak was caused by a bacterium, not pesticides.

In March 1995, the main Perkiomen Creek experienced a 2.7-inch rainfall which deposited 870 pounds of phosphorous and 1,600 tons of sediment into a reservoir, which caused severe blooms of algae and excessive nitrification. Phosphorous clings to soil that has been eroded and can wash with the soil downstream.

Luitweiler is concerned that calves that shed bacteria and cows that degrade stream banks could contribute to bacteria in the water supplies and high phosphorous levels from stream bank erosion.

Luitweiler told the producers to keep the calves away from the streams and drainage swales and to keep the cows out of the streams. He reminded producers about some cost-share money available and some free programs to protect streams.

In August last year, Congress passed the new Safe Drinking Water Health Act which allocates $7.3 billion over eight years for state programs to protect source water, which will be utilized by water companies.

The Philadelphia Suburban Water Company representative told those at the meeting, "All we're asking is to use the products conscientiously," he said. "Think about what the impact is if you're washing a tank in the stream or drainage swale."

Luitweiler said that producers should be concerned that environmental working groups and others could someday "drive people in Congress to overreact and make your life and our life a lot more difficult" with increasingly stringent regulations.

Luitweiler indicated that Suburban Water Company and other companies want to sincerely work with producers "to try to solve these problems constructively."

During a question and answer session, Luitweiler was asked about the use of pesticides by golf courses and homeowners. Luitweiler noted that golf courses "apply a lot of chemicals" but even they are cooperating with the water companies. Runoff from golf courses is minimal because of the permeable soil and the widespread turf, which controls movement of pesticides and nitrates.

A big problem that golf courses see is droppings from Canada goose, which creates more nitrification and coliform bacteria.

Another problem water companies faced is in 1994, when record ice storms caused road salt reserves to diminish rapidly. Many applicators switched to urea fertilizer as a road de-icer, which caused water suppliers throughout the entire southeast region of the state to experience problems. As a result, every year the water company routinely writes letters to urea suppliers to tell them that "urea is not a good alternative ice melting agent," said the representative.

Cheryl Fairbairn, Chester County agent, reiterated the words of Luitweiler, telling the producers, "All it takes is one bad apple and who knows? . . . but for those environmentalists, all they need is to see that one situation and then it's blown out of proportion." She asked the producers to try to pre-

"We got a lot of work to do to protect ourselves," she said.

Market Tools

Gone are the days when crop growers can simply grow some corn or soybeans, combine them, put them in a truck and ship them to the elevator, according to two marketing professionals at the Crop Day.

On average, "two-thirds of the farmers will sell in the bottom one-third of the yearly price range" when marketing their product, according to Jim Russell, president of Russell Agricultural Consulting Service in Kennedyville, Md.

Russell reminded the producers that "no one can accurately predict price over a significant period of time." But he said that while USDA and other sources need to do a "better job of predicting price," producers must understand the terms that are used.

"Puts... calls... you got to become familiar with (these)," Russell said.

Russell publishes the Russell Crop Report Newsletter 48 times per year. In it, he provides USDA and other outlooks for supplies and other tools that the crop grower could use.

If producers purchase a put as an option when marketing grain, it simply establishes insurance to a price floor. A call simply insures that if the price at delivery is up, producers can make money.

Russell provided information about the Lancaster wheat crop and spoke about basis averages. In the end, producers should realize "you're speculating, but it fits a marketing plan," he said. That marketing could result in increased profits at delivery.

It's important, however, to remember: "don't do anything you don't understand the downside potential (to)," he said. "Don't bet the farm on anyone's outlook — outlook can change that fast."

Russell provided some outlooks by USDA that he believes are far too conservative. Soybean supplies are at a 22-23 day supply, "the tightest since 1974," he said.

World supplies are the tightest since 1983, at 600 million bushels.

"USDA is probably overestimating stocks because they're underestimating demand," said Russell.

While there is "no weather premiums built into the markets yet," Russell indicated that producers should beware that the "beans aren't there and global supplies are the tightest in 14 years."

For bean growers, some could contract now for $7.50 per bushel and buy a 30-cent call through July and August. The potential for bean prices to "explode" is there, according to the marketing professional.

Corn supplies are "the second tightest in history," Russell noted. Corn supplies are reflecting the same situation as of 1993-1994, which USDA considers "barely comfortable."

"For any livestock producers and end users, if this were to be a drought year in the Midwest... I don't know," he said.

As for corn and soybeans, USDA's estimates are too conservative and are simply not accurate, according to Russell.

As for USDA's estimates of wheat stocks, "I don't believe them," he said. Dec. 1 U.S. wheat stocks are under what they were a year ago, which was the "tightest in history," Russell said.

Use is 450-550 million bushels with a carryover of 200 million bushels (USDA estimates a carryover of 465 as of Dec. 1). USDA estimates that 48 percent of all wheat stocks on Dec. 1 were "on the farm."

"I have a tough time believing that, personally," Russell said.

Overall, it is important for producers and growers to keep their eye on the market with tools such as the DTN (a computer that makes use of a satellite dish to receive Chicago Board of Trade prices and other information updated daily).

The tools of the marketing trade can certainly come in handy. Don Newhard, a farmer in the Lehigh Valley and a Lehigh County Grain Marketing Club member, told producers "we have no crystal ball — we can't predict prices, but we can predict basis."

One important tool to improve grain marketing is to invest in a DTN terminal, according to the experts. "There are a lot of tools out there for marketing," said Newhard.

The grain marketing club began in a restaurant in 1991. Club officers were elected and bylaws were formed, modeled after the successful grain marketing clubs in Maryland. There are a total of 15-20 regular members and the club has experienced some profits with small contracts.

The club has tried some minimal option pricing. But "we have stayed away from futures contracts," said Newhard.

One of the important developments for the club is a new video course the club is taking, offered by Dr. James Kendrick from the University of Nebraska, paid for courtesy of a local farm bank.

"We feel it's one of the best things we have been learning in marketing," Newhard said. "It will help us get a better handle on things down the road."

Whatever producers decide to do, it's time "to do something" in marketing grain, according to the producer.

Eastern Black Nightshade and burcucumber.

Increasingly companies are developing and marketing "safe herbicides," which Curran considers the "wave of the future," he said.

Also, there has been a lot of consolidation in the ag business, including mergers (Sandoz merged into BASF, Novartis was formed from the merger of Ciba and the remaining operations of Sandoz, and Monsanto owns control or portions of Dekalb, Asgrow, and Holden's Seed companies).

"We're seeing fewer companies, bigger companies," he said.

One of the biggest developments has been the Roundup Ready soybeans. In 1996, one million acres of the herbicide-tolerant beans were planted. It is expected that 10 million acres will be planted this season.

Weed seed management is critical to preventing new weed problems. "The big key is to try to prevent seed production," Curran said.

One of the biggest problems that growers could face this year is the Eastern Black Nightshade weed, native to North America east of the Rocky Mountains. There has been a rapid increase in nightshade problems in soybeans and a lot of different crops.

It's difficult to control nightshade because of several reasons. One is that many soybean herbicides are ineffective, and there are less triazine herbicide used in corn (effective, though, on nightshade). The key to control is management, which includes proper rotation to another crop and to avoid herbicide programs that select for it (particularly sulfonylureas).

Growers may want to consult the Penn State Agronomy Guide to see what herbicides are effective.

Another weed problem for growers is burcucumber. The annual weed has a distinctive five-shaded leaf on a vine that grows rapidly, beginning about the third week of April or first week in May. The summer annual broadleaf weed is extremely difficult to control, according to the weed specialist, which presents harvest difficulties because of the significant seed cluster the weed produces. The cluster wraps around the reel of the chopper and clogs the combine.

However, work by Penn State is examining tillage methods.

The best type of tillage is no-till for more effective control of the weed. The latest edition of the Penn State Agronomy Guide provides some answers for management of the weed.

Cooperator Of The Year

At the Crops Day, awards to the leading conservation farms in the county were presented.

The 1996 Conservation Farm of the Year went to Hilltop Farm, Oxford, managed by the Fisher family. Hilltop Farm, a 43-cow dairy, is comprised of 79 acres of corn, alfalfa, and tobacco.

The farm has been a cooperator with the conservation district since March 1984. In 1994 they were approved to receive a Chesapeake Bay Contract. Under the Bay Contract and their conservation plan, some of the best management practices installed include roof spouting, strip cropping, 900 feet of grassed diversion, a curbed concrete exercise lot, stream bank fencing with crossing, and a manure storage pit with a reception area.

The 1996 Conservation Innovation Award was presented to John Hicks, who farms land owned by Gwynne McDevitt. The McDevitt farm, on which Gordon Highland Retrievers are trained, is comprised of a little more than 150 acres.

There has been a conservation plan for the farm since 1987, when they became a cooperator. They are also a participant in NRCS's Plant Materials Program, where they experimented with field borders of warm season grasses and legumes, most notably Lespedeza. The plantings have been so successful that the McDevitt/Hicks have done more on their own, according to the district.

Best management plans include wildlife habitat management (130.9 acres), tree plantings, wildlife food plots, managed meadows, brush management, fencing, stream crossing, heavy use area protection, hedgerow planting, and field borders. They have installed 80 acres of a conservation cropping system, contour strip cropping, and grasses and legumes in rotation.

The farm also includes a one-acre grassed waterway, 12 acres of no-till switchgrass seedings, one acre of critical area planting, and 131.9 acres of crop residue use.

AMERICA'S ALFALFA KEEPS GROWING WITH ALFAGRAZE™

THE AMAZING HAY-OR-GRAZE ALFALFA

The original dual-purpose alfalfa. Alfagrazze delivers haying and grazing yields like the best hay-type varieties. Alfagrazze often saves dairymen up to $3/cwt. in milk production costs; cattlemen can get 1.5 to 2.75 lb gain per day on pasture. Alfagrazze offers high forage quality and value, which makes it great for pasture improvement — strong treading and trampling tolerance, as well.

Atlantic, Land O' Lakes

Plant at Carlisle already produces product for Land O'Lakes (LOL) here in the East, and the local cooperative realized $600,000 of profits last year from the LOL business, Atlantic officials began last spring to pursue the idea of increasing LOL product production at Holly. As discussion continued and progressed, the cooperatives found mutual benefits that merited a merger proposal. This proposal is what is now receiving lively discussion.

According to the well-planned and executed presentation, Atlantic members will have new, value-added markets for members' milk; cost-effective, on-farm production programs; and expanded products and services. LOL members will realize expanded cost-effective butter supplies near strong east coast markets, improved returns on East Coast member milk by expanding product manufacturing; and expanded market for LOL farm products to producers in the East.

Both cooperatives are emphasizing increased efficiencies and profitability starting in April of this year should the merger be approved by both cooperative's delegates.

It should be noted that LOL has a large farm product division that is not part of the merger. And while products and services from the farm product division may be made available to eastern members, only the dairy part of LOL cooperative is merging with Atlantic members. After the merger, should it be approved, all dairy members from both cooperatives will share equally in the earnings.

However, since LOL members now have a substantially higher equity per member invested, the Atlantic members will need to increase their equity in the new cooperative from the present 61 cents up to the target of $2.75. Officials were quick to point out that this increase in local member equity would come from earnings and not from out of pocket or lower milk prices.

Presently, Atlantic has been experiencing an average of $.15 per hundred earnings over the last five years. Projections of an average of $.29 per hundred for the newly merged cooperative would have the target reached between the ninth and 10th year with about $28,000 total equity invested from earnings by each member. Then officials said 100 percent of earnings would be available to be returned to members.

Early in the evening a feeling of some of the underlying thought process that was on-going among the 100 or more farmers in attendance was felt during the discussion of how the merger would be approved. For LOL members their by-laws call for a two-thirds majority to pass. Atlantic delegates need only a majority.

One farmer asked, "If in light of the magnitude of this decision, should not each farmer have a vote?" But Atlantic's by-laws call for the delegate process. So the next question was: "Can the by-laws be changed?" The answer is yes, but the discussion died on the subject at that time. The open negative-to-merger viewpoint came to the surface on the equity subject.

Atlantic officials confirmed that LOL members had not received a full earnings return for the last 19 years, and the equity target has been moved around from time to time, including that with this merger LOL's member target is being lowered from $3.50 to the stated $2.75. This open-ended equity target was one of the reasons for local member consternation. Also, joining a cooperative whose leadership has expressed goals of becoming larger and larger has some local members reaching for a cut-off point in expansion. But because representation on the new cooperative board will be weighted in the mid-West, local farmers don't have hope they will have much influence.

In spite of the difference of opinion, both sides agreed that Atlantic needs to look for ways to expand manufacturing and sales into both domestic and international markets. The government support of dairy prices that has been around since 1949 is set to be eliminated by the turn of the century. In addition, Pennsylvania's Federal Milk Marketing Orders 2, and 4, and the New England Order 1 are to be combined on January 1, 1999. Therefore, producers and their farmer owned cooperatives need to look to the market rather than the government for income on milk and dairy products to sustain the dairy farm business.

This changing of the way dairy farmers will need to do business and the continued squeeze on dairy farm bottom lines brings out these kinds of discussions an opinions. Often dairy farmers don't agree on how it should be done. But everyone agrees something must be done if dairy farming is to continue to be a viable occupation.

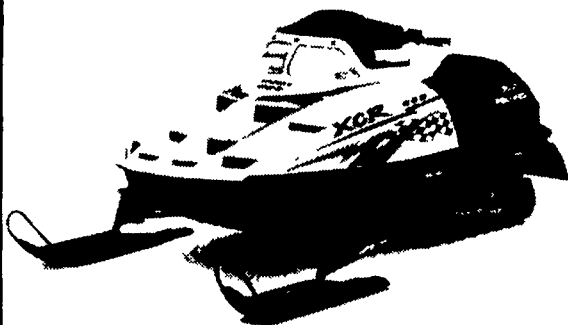

By mid March we will know if enough Atlantic and LOL members agree that a merger between them is one of the ways to work to provide a viable market for their milk and dairy products along with improved bottom lines. If not, then the search for other ways to improve dairy farm income and markets will continue.

Sticklin Accepts Region Manager Position

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Effective Jan. 1, Linda Sticklin of Wellsboro, Tioga County, accepted the position of region manager for Region 3 which consists of four counties, Bradford, Lycoming, Sullivan and Tioga.

In her new job duties, Linda will be responsible for all aspects of the DHIA program in the region along with insuring that the "Code of Ethics" of National DHIA and the policies of Pa. DHIA are followed in all field service functions and that authorized operation standards are met throughout the region.

Linda has 16 years of dedicated service to Pa. DHIA. In that time she started as a technician, moving up in the ranks serving as a senior technician and serving on the technician advisory committee, dairy records processing center committee and the computer committee on which she served as chairperson.

As well as participating in different functions such as the ones listed, Linda was recognized as a merit award winner.

Over the years Linda was involved with driving school bus, raising contract boilers and fryers, Lymo Film, and working for Gale-ton Productions. However, most recently she was responsible for serving Pa. DHIA members in Tioga and Potter counties and in

New York, which consisted of 34 herds.

Linda still finds room in her busy schedule to spend with her grandson, Eric who resides on the farm that her husband, John E. and she have owned for over 28 years. They are currently milking 50 cows on the 364-acre scenic spread.

Pa. DHIA continues to show steady growth as well as being on the cutting edge of technology with the newly developed performance economics and being present on the world wide web.

The staff at Pa. DHIA invites the dairy industry in welcoming Linda as the newest Pa. DHIA region manager. Please feel free to contact Linda at 717-724-7173 with any questions or suggestions. Also, you may call Pa. DHIA at 1-800-344-8378, if the state office can assist you.

Cooperative Meets, Reviews Financial Year

ANDY ANDREWS
MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.)
—Some dairies in Texas can supply fresher milk to Atlanta's markets than dairies that are only 20 miles away from Atlanta, simply because of a three-times-a-day milking schedule and a lot of trucking, according to the president of the Mount Joy Dairy Cooperative on Wednesday.

Don Risser, president of the cooperative, spoke to about 400 Mount Joy members and their families at the annual banquet at the Country Table Restaurant in Mount Joy.

Milk production has become national, and the price of milk in California affects the price in Lancaster, according to Risser. And with the absence of federal price supports in the coming years, the market will continue to become more volatile and more unstable. "We don't have those programs to give us balance anymore," Risser indicated.

But the cooperative continues to grow and to be competitive in milk marketing, with a total of 190 producers (compared to 179 producers in 1995). Marlin Benedict, CPA with Simon Lever and Company, CPA firm in Lancaster, provided the financial report for the cooperative.

Total pounds of milk sold was 257,042,774 (compared to 221,757,601 in 1995). Total assets for 1996, according to the balance sheets presented at the banquet to the members, are $4,580,313 for 1996, up from $3,682,418 in 1995.

Net savings for the year was $200,047, down from $255,831 in 1995. In 1995, the redemption of patrons' revolving fund certificates payable totaled $67,516 with patronage distribution payable of $64,115.

Risser noted before the report was given that the number of pounds of milk marketed since 1990 for the cooperative has grown 240 percent. The top 10 producers alone for the year now produce about a half of the total 1990 production in the cooperative, he noted.

For the year compared to 1995, there was a 16 percent growth in the pounds of milk marketed and a net increase in 11 producers. Costs remain flat, indicated Benedict, at 67 cents per hundredweight to operate the cooperative. The net milk check to producers on average after deductions for 1996 was $14.27 CWT, compared to $12.44 in 1995. Milk price average was $15.22 compared to $13.47 the previous year. Five years ago the milk price average was $14.55 per CWT.

Royce Seifert, API, also reported on some of the changes taking place with the industry, notably the ADC and Land 'O Lakes merger. He told producers that there has "always been a place for smaller organizations" such as the Mount Joy Cooperative, and the cooperative will continue to be a part of the milk marketed in the Mid-Atlantic region.

(Turn to Page A38)

Two directors to serve three-year terms were elected. One is Michael L. Brubaker, Mount Joy, left, in partnership with father Luke and brother Tony. Another director, re-elected to the position, was Dale R. Hershey, Kinzers. Dale farms with wife Deb and daughters Monica, Taylor, and son Regan.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. (ADADC) announces the 34th Annual New York State Dairy Princess Pageant to be held on Tuesday, February 18, at Four Points Hotel by Sheraton, Liverpool, NY and its annual business meeting to be held on Wednesday, February 19. Banquet tickets are $15 per person and must be reserved by Friday, February 7.

Festivities begin on Tuesday with a flavored milk bar at 5:30 p.m., featuring a variety of unusual milk drinks, such as kiwi, raspberry, English toffee, and macadamia nut. During the banquet at 6 p.m., 35 county dairy princesses will be honored, who will compete to be the 1997-98 New York State Dairy Princess (currently Kelly West of Wyoming County). An ADADC 1996 Program Presentation will highlight the "Got Milk?" advertising campaign and the promotional contributions of the consumer promotions, nutrition education and communications work groups. On Wednesday, an ADADC Business Meeting begins at 8 a.m. The agenda includes financial advertising and program updates.

The pageant culminates two days of judging for the contestants. The judges will be looking for the young women who most effectively promote milk and dairy products, based on a personal interview, an impromptu and prepared adult speech, elementary school presentation, and informal interaction with others. Though only one state princess and two alternates will be selected as state representatives for the dairy industry, promotion is a team effort and all county dairy princesses and their courts are important in increasing milk and dairy product consumption.

In addition to the three state representatives who will receive awards of $1200, $700 and $600 respectively, the three top speech presentation winners will receive $150 and the three best scrapbook winners will receive $75. "Miss Congeniality" will be selected from the contestants and recognized as the dairy princess who demonstrates the most friendliness and cooperative spirit of competition.

Two college students will receive the ADADC Memorial Scholarship and Leo Briggs Memorial Scholarship. Both $500 scholarships are based on grade point average, extracurricular activities, future plans, and a 400-word essay discussing the applicant's commitment to a career in the dairy industry.

The Robert S. Turner Promoter of the Year Award will be presented to the county that has done an outstanding job promoting milk and dairy products. Selection is based on the number and types of promotional activities conducted by the 1995-96 county dairy princesses and their courts.

Finally, two Golden Cow Awards will be presented to adult county dairy promotion committee members. They will be recognized for outstanding service and dedication to local dairy promotion in New York State.

Banquet tickets are $15 per person and must be reserved by Friday, February 7. Complete the reservation form and mail to: Deborah Mathers, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc., 219 South West Street, Suite 100, Syracuse, NY 13202-1205 or phone (315) 472-9143.

Four Points Hotel by Sheraton is located directly across from exit 37 of the New York State Thruway. From Route 81 North or South, take exit 25-Seventh North Street. Go to the end of the ramp and take a right. The hotel will be straight ahead at the "T" (one mile).

Support your county dairy princess. See who will serve as the next New York State Dairy Princess and learn how ADADC is increasing milk and dairy product consumption. Make your reservations today!

ADADC is an advertising and promotion organization representing dairy farmers in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Cooperative Meets

Clyde Rutherford reported that DairyLea markets 5 billion pounds of milk with 2,700 dairy farms. He said that a week ago, there were more people in the Superdome watching the Superbowl "than there are dairy farmers in the U.S."

The cooperative members are enjoying a better milk check for a combination of reasons: better price, lower input costs, and forward contracting. A downside to making money in dairying has been the exorbitant feed costs.

Earl Dehney, milk sanitarian with the cooperative, said that the cooperative received a 91 overall score in 1996 from the U.S. Public Health Rating. "We appreciate your efforts to keep the standards high," he told the producers.

Top 10 Producers were named. They are Brubaker Farms (Luke, Mike, and Tony), 9,435,174 pounds milk; John Landis, 7,323,898 pounds; Kenneth Zurin, 5,834,011 pounds; Star Rock

YORK (York Co.) — Penn State Cooperative Extension in York County will offer a computerized farm record keeping course for Windows-based computers on Monday, Feb. 3, and Monday, Feb. 10, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the York County Extension Office.

The workshop series is intended to familiarize the farm manager and/or his designated record keeper with a farm financial record keeping system that uses low-cost, flexible computer software.

Participants will be asked to bring their computers to the workshops.

The reasons for computerized farm record keeping are:

- Software is now very economical and readily available.
- Software is time-proven, easy to learn, and adaptable to any farm enterprise.
- Software is flexible and adaptable to simple or complex record keeping systems.
- The "Family Farm Chart of Accounts" developed by Dr. Larry Jenkins, farm management specialist from Penn State University, will help farm managers utilize the full potential of low-cost computerized record keeping systems.

The course outline includes setting up accounts and categories, printing financial reports, and customizing categories and accounts for each farm operation. Accounting concepts will be demonstrated using Microsoft Money software. Participants must provide their own copy of the software for the workshop.

The course will be instructed by Dr. Larry Jenkins, Penn State agricultural economist. Enrollment for the course is limited to 12 farms on a first-come, first-serve basis because of individual instruction. Cost for the course is $7/farm operation to cover the cost of lunch.

To register for the workshops, call Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408.

Steve Stoltzfus, Bill Blank, Reuben Z. Beiler, Leroy H. Hoover, Emanuel Stoltzfus, Elvin Brubaker, and Brian C. Walker.

Two directors to serve three-year terms were elected. One is Michael L. Brubaker, Mount Joy, in partnership with father Luke and brother Tony. They milk 400 cows, raise all heifer replacements, and farm 800 acres. They also raise broilers and hogs. Michael has a bachelor's degree in ag business from Penn State.

Another director, re-elected to the position, was Dale R. Hershey, Kinzers. Dale farms with wife Deb and daughters Monica, Taylor, and son Regan. They operate Wood-Springs Holsteins, which includes 65 registered stock, 65 young stock and registered bulls. Hershey is past treasurer of the Lancaster County Holstein Association.

currently chairs the Beef Division of the Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) and has chaired both the Pennsylvania Livestock Association and the Keystone Rib Cookoff and Music Fest.

In what has become an annual "roast," the Beef Club also saluted its graduating members who completed their 4-H careers. Seniors honored were Suzanne Bishard, Duane Rebert, Shawn Waltmyer and Jason Baer. Beef club volunteer leaders Bill Dietz and Bill and Lois Rankin also were honored for their 30 years of work with the club.

Roll call winners were Tammi Grubb, first, Travis Reid, second, and Sara Hoke, third. Four "rookies" were also honored for their roll call responses at regular meetings, based on presentation and management information. Rookie winners were Cory Thompson, first, Jennifer Bosley, second; Richard Heineman, third, and Donald Sunday, fourth.

Jennifer Flinchbaugh was recognized with a Steer of Merit award, an honor based on carcass yield of the beef animal, and sponsored by the South Central Pennsylvania Cattleman Association. Jennifer's steer ranked superior on live conformation, with a hot carcass weight of 685 pounds, yielded a grade 2, low choice, and scored an average dairy weight gain of 2.35 pounds.

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Those interested in starting a farm business, have limited experience with farming, or would just like to learn how other people have established a farm business, should come to the New and Beginning Farmer Workshop at the Days Inn — State College on Feb. 15.

According to Farm Link Coordinator Marion Bowlan, the workshop will focus on both the business and production basics beginners must tackle in order to develop a successful enterprise.

Record keeping, cash flow projection, legal aspects, marketing, farm loan options, and developing a farm business plan will give beginners the foundation for establishing a farm business.

Breakout sessions will address production methods in vegetable, fruit, dairy, and cattle.

Start-up strategy sessions will include management intensive grazing, evaluating alternative enterprises, and methods of marketing.

Fees to cover lunch, breaks and administrative costs are $30 per person or $45 per couple.

Please contact the Pennsylvania Farm Link office at (717) 787-9555 to obtain registration information. The deadline for registration is Feb. 10.

'Honey Bee' Spreads Sweet News Nationwide

LOU ANN GOOD

Lancaster Farming Staff

RED LION (York Co.) — For the first time in the American Beekeeping Federation's history, the American Honey Queen title has gone to contestants from the same state two years in a row. Not only have both national winners been from Pennsylvania this year and last but also last year was the first time for Pennsylvania to lay claim to the title in the Federation's 60 year history.

Nicknamed "Queen Bee" by her college peers, Emily Anderson of Red Lion wears the American Honey Queen crown. She said, "I will travel throughout the U.S. spreading the sweet news about beekeeping, the industry, and its golden honey."

Emily is much more than a pretty face promoting the industry. She is a beekeeper with seven of her own hives and has plenty of experience in removing swarms of bees found in people's lawns sometimes.

She's learned that the job must be completed even if stung by bees. Recently Emily acquired a new beekeeper's outfit that more adequately protects her from bee stings. In addition, she's learned some tricks of the trade that also reduces the amount of stings. For example, she never attempts to remove bees during rainy days.

Unlike most teen-agers involved in beekeeping, Emily did not get her start because her parents were beekeepers. Instead, she pursued beekeeping after reading a story about it as a third grader.

After taking a beekeeping course and avidly reading everything she could on the subject, Emily finally convinced her parents Stephen and Brenda Anderson to set up two hives on their property. By then, Emily was 16 years old. Her love for beekeeping has not diminished. She now has seven hives.

Her parents are now pleased and proud that their daughter is a beekeeper and has been crowned the American Honey Queen.

The coronation was part of the annual beekeeping convention held this year on Jan. 14-18 in Norfolk, Va.

During the four-day event, the contestants did not know who among the many people they interacted with were judges. During the first day, a Quiz Bowl, which is similar to Jeopardy, was held. "This was a good way to see how much contestants knew about the industry," said Emily, who answered the most questions correctly.

The following day, contestants gave a three-minute presentation at the breakfast meeting. Again, the contestants were unaware of who was doing the actual judging.

The next day, about 600 kids attended the day-long session on Kids and Bees. Contestants helped with workshops on candlemaking, beekeeping, cooking, and other educational events such as an observation hive.

Later, the contestants met the judges who were identified for the first time. During this session the contestants were interviewed by the judges.

The suspense of waiting for the judges' decision to be announced at the end of the banquet during the final day was unnerving. About 500 people from 40 states attended.

First the American Honey Princess, who is from Missouri was crowned. Then, Emily's name was announced as the judges' selection for the coveted title.

"Of course, I really wanted to be queen. Although the princess travels a lot also, the queen has first choice in promotions and does more traveling," Emily said.

As a sophomore at the University of Maryland, Emily will take a reduced load the first semester to accommodate her beekeeping promotional activities. Despite a three-week tour of duty in Florida in February and a week in Colorado in March, she is hoping that she can maintain her animal science studies at the University. However, she foresees that she will need to take off the fall semester because of the heavily scheduled appearances that require almost constant traveling.

"It is such an honor promoting the bee industry and is well worth the sacrifice of postponing college graduation," Emily said.

Traveling alone does not intimidate Emily. Not only does she find flying exciting but also enjoys meeting new people. Generally beekeepers meet her at the airport and take her to their homes for lodging.

"It's a great way to get to know other beekeepers and I enjoy hearing about their operations," said the 19 year old, who finds it easy to get along with all types of people.

As the Pennsylvania Honey Queen, Emily said that she gained confidence in public speaking and expects that confidence will increase after a year of promoting on the national level.

Already she has had television interviews and been a guest on a talk show. One of her favorite promotional activities this past year was holding presentations at libraries. About 60 kids from 3-13 years old turned up for the presentations.

"I try to make the presentations a hands-on experience," Emily said, "because so much in this generation is computerized. The kids are in awe in seeing an observation hive up close."

The kids also try on Emily's beekeeping outfit, examine a honey comb from the hive, and taste the honey sticks she distributes during her talk.

During these presentations, adults also attend and often ask questions concerning the mite problem with bees.

Although it is too early to tell, the beekeeping industry is optimistic that the mite problem will not be as damaging this year as the past.

"Many hives were wiped out when the bees died. The colonies that are left are strong and healthy because treatment and precautions were taken by the beekeepers," Emily said.

The Pennsylvania Farm Show is a popular place to taste ice cream made with honey. Emily, who is big fan of the ice cream, said that it isn't always available. Longacres Dairy makes honey ice cream three times a year at the request of the beekeeping industry.

For recipes using honey, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Becky Fisher Gerhart, Honey Queen Chairperson, 66 S. Manor St., Mountville, PA 17554.

Here is one of the recipes that Emily encourages people to try. "It's quick, easy, fun to make, and tastes delicious," she said.

QUEEN'S FAVORITE HONEY TREATS

Honey Bee Population Decimated

CLAIRE McCABE

As insects go, honey bees enjoy a good reputation. They bring us both sweetness, from honey, and light, from beeswax candles. But even more importantly, they pollinate one-third of the food crops that we eat.

Unfortunately this charming insect is being threatened by a puny parasite — the varroa mite. Once a bee colony is infested with mites, it becomes even more vulnerable to other parasites, viruses and cold weather.

"Usually 5 to 10 percent of honey bee colonies die over a winter," says Dr. Dewey Caron, Cooperative Extension entomologist at the University of Delaware. "But losses last year were from 40 to 50 percent. And low population in early spring effects the pollination ability of the hive."

The surrounding states haven't fared any better. The reduction in honey bee population over the winter of 1995 ranged from 25 to 79 percent in Maryland, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. These states, with Delaware, form the Eastern Apicultural Society of North America. This group has outlined plans to continue research on the mite and promote mite control among beekeepers through educational programming.

"In a good parasite-host relationship, the parasite does not kill the host," says Caron. "This is not the present case with our honey bee population."

The mite entered the country in 1987 on illegally imported queens. For years, bees in the United States have been a protected population with all imports banned. This very isolation has meant there is no natural resistance to the mites. Mites spread rapidly through the American honey bee population, encouraged by the honey bee's social behavior.

"Bees in colonies are constantly

Dubbed "Honey Bee" by her college peers, Emily Anderson wears the national crown as the American Honey Queen.

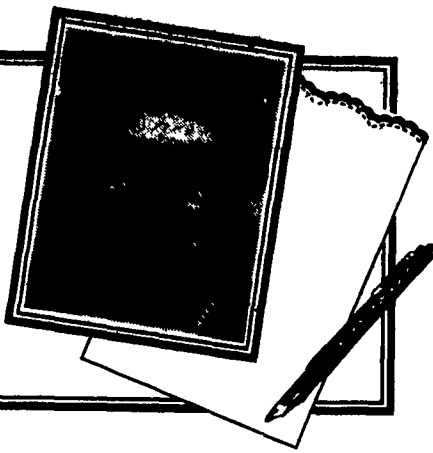

Emily has plenty of hands-on experience as a beekeeper. Here she dons a new beekeeping outfit that she purchased from England to extract honey from the hives she keeps.

Homestead Notes

Ida's Notebook

by
Ida Risser

February 1st! Time to get some winter activities started. All of the 1996 photos are in a big album.

And, I've embroidered a pair of pillowcases and sorted through a drawer or two.

Now I know that I should get started on braiding another rug. It will be number 16. Several have been given to grandchildren. My sister has promised to give me black wool and I have lots of plaid material. But, I shall have to buy two other solid colors. Last year's rug did not really please me and it is hard to spend a lot of time on something that you don't really like.

Lately, I've been going over two big envelopes of bits and pieces of information on genealogy. They are interesting to read but I'm not really accomplishing very much so far as putting them in order. However, it is very interesting to read about some ancestors whose backgrounds has been researched.

One, Hans Adam Shreiner, came to America from Germany in the 1730s and then several years later went back to Europe for his family. He had already asked for land to be surveyed north of Lancaster. His family came to America on the passenger ship "Winter Gally."

For over 250 years his farm remained in the same family. It was his grandson, Martin Shreiner, who made hundreds of Grandfather clocks. He also built fire engines. This family can be traced to the 1500s in the village of Gommersheim. There Hans Adam was a blacksmith, a trade that was very useful in America.

It is almost impossible to realize their living conditions in that period of American history.

Houseplant Care

RUTGERS, N.J. — Gray January. It's the time when house plants are welcome reminders of warm seasons past and those ahead. It is also the time when it is tough to keep them flourishing. Some special precautions and care will help plants make it through this season when we most need them.

Reduced light and temperatures in fall and winter slow plant growth and reduce water use. It is easy to overwater plants now, so be sure they need a drink by feeling the planting mix first. When the surface of the mix of small plants is dry, they should be watered, but poke a finger into large pots to be certain of not overwatering. When plants need water, water generously. Adjust watering by reducing frequency not the amount of water. Plants' needs for water will vary a lot from week to week with the amount of sun we have and the humidity levels in the home. Slow growing or resting plants should be fertilized sparingly, if at all.

When outside temperatures drop indoor relative humidity generally drops, too, below levels satisfactory for plants (and people, too). A simple and effective way to provide more humidity for plants is by letting them help themselves. Group plants together and they create a micro-climate of increased humidity. Group them on a pebble-filled tray to which water can be added for an additional boost, but make sure the pots do not stand in that water. Never try to compensate for low humidity by giving the plants themselves more water. A room humidifier can be good for plants and people. Misting plants is generally not practical and not effective unless done several times daily.

Cool temperatures are recommended for winter resting plants, but few can tolerate cold. Remember that the temperature right next to windows can fall well below room temperature and low enough to damage plants. Cold drafts can be devastating, too. Move plants away from those locations or provide some extra protection.

Keeping plants free of dust, always important, is especially so in winter. Give the leaves an occasional sponge bath or shower. And be on the look out for plant pests. Check plants regularly for scourges such as mealy bugs, scale and whitefly. Or look for signs of pests — discolored, distorted, or sticky leaves. New plants should always be "quarantined" for a month or so to make sure there are no problems that might spread to other plants.

If new, apparently perfect, holiday gift plants develop problems shortly after they have been received and no insects can be found consider these other causes. Some plants respond to a change in environment with yellowing and dropping leaves. Ficus and benjamina and Dracaena marginata are notorious for dropping leaves when moved even from one spot to another in the same room. If a new plant is appropriate for the new location, it will eventually adapt to the change. A gradual transition to different light level (especially low light) can help. Yellowing, browning, dropping leaves could signal a more serious problem. Because of frequent watering, commercial growers use more intense fertilizer applications than the home situation requires. In the home setting, when the plant is probably maintained in a drier condition, the existing salt levels in the potting mix of a new plant may damage roots and leaves. It is a good idea to water a new plant generously when it's brought home to wash excess salts away from the roots. There's generally no need to fertilize new plants.

communicating through touch, sharing food and grooming each other," Caron notes. "So they easily spread mites. And mites spread rapidly from colony to colony."

As the colonies suffer, so do the finances of many who depend on them. For beekeepers, more profit is made on renting bees to farmers than on selling honey. Per-hive rentals cost between $20 to $40. It's a big business, with 40,000 to 50,000 colonies of honey bees transported up and down Interstate 95 each year to pollinate crops, including invaluable Delaware watermelon and cucumber crops.

To meet the need in spring 1996, colonies were split and new queens were raised. But these young colonies did not have the large number of foragers that established colonies should have. Particularly, the early-pollinated crops suffered because the colonies did not have time to recover from the winter losses.

It's important that all beekeepers, commercial and hobbyists, treat for mites. Integrated pest management techniques used to control mites include grease patties, pesticide strips and brood interruption. The goal is to knock down the mite population and hope that the colony will be vigorous enough to survive on its own.

Because oil interferes with the mite's ability to locate a host, patties of solid vegetable oil are placed in the hives. As the bees walk on the patty they get coated with the oil, preventing the mite from locating a new honey bee host. Researchers are experimenting with lacing the patty with oil of pennyroyal, menthol, citronella and peppermint to increase its effectiveness.

Pesticides registered for mites are placed on plastic discs in the hive. The bees walk on the discs and the pesticide gets distributed throughout the hive during grooming. Because mites reproduce on the bee's brood, which includes both larvae and pupae, beekeepers may opt to discard brood, thus reducing the mite population in the hive. A new brood is begun within several days by the adult bees.

Researchers also are looking for resistant varieties of bees through genetic engineering and conventional breeding programs.

"Africanized bees seem to be resistant, both behaviorally and biologically," notes Caron. "They pick the mites off of each other during grooming. There is also a hormone in their blood that shuts down the mite. But this is not present in the European honey bee. We hope a better understanding how this bee protects itself will offer clues as to how we can enhance North American bees to do the same."

"Meanwhile we're encouraging beekeepers to bolster the health of their colonies with good management practices," continues Caron. "The colony is under great stress from weather, mites and viruses that the mites carry. A steady food supply is a real boost; good ventilation in the hive helps to flush the pathogens out. As with any agricultural enterprise, poor managers will lose out to skillful ones who follow careful management practices."

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

Saturday night. For much of the populous, it's an evening of relaxation. Maybe dinner out with friends. A date or a movie. A few hours at the mall.

But in numerous professions, Saturday nights are business as usual. On duty are restaurant, retailing, convenience store, and service station personnel. Police, fire and emergency crews. Farmers with calving cows.

Our gal laboring in a boxstall couldn't care less that it was Saturday night. A first-calf heifer, Cherry, was making little progress toward her delivery. She was in considerable discomfort and the calf was perhaps in trouble.

The year's first invasion of arctic air had settled in, bringing single-digit temperatures. Water fountains needed periodic thawing. Tractors grumbled and balked at starting. Every time the barn's large doors opened, the clashing cold outside and warm inside air created instant, interior fog.

Edges of a newborn calf's ears can freeze on a night like this. In fact, a newborn calf, if not clean, dry and sheltered under such conditions, could even die of exposure. Thus, this about-to-be-mother has been confined in a warmer, drier, safer area.

Cherry didn't understand any of these facts ... or care. New heifers are unpredictable with all the strange things happening to them. Some settled down quickly and allow help to be given. Others go scatterbrained. (Rarely, one may even come after the caregiver, as one recently did to me when I tried to help her newborn.)

Knowing that Cherry had some sort of problem, it was necessary to get her standing still long enough for The Farmer to check the position of the calf. But Cherry did circles around the pen. She danced around the stall. She sniffed at the pile of silage in the stall's feed trough, then tried to shove out through the open side. And got herself stuck.

Ever try to back up a 1200-pound animal, on her knees, when she wanted to go forward? After some pushing, pulling and prodding, she was finally backed out. Only to return to dancing, circling, and trying to repeat the escape attempt. I grabbed a shovel, stood it on end across the opening and parked myself beside it.

And hoped she didn't realize how useless that would be if she really put her mind to crawling out that spot. But it provided enough of a visibility distraction to give The Farmer a few moments to confirm that the calf was indeed twisted out of proper position.

Cherry seemed to sense that she needed help and stood still long enough to be tied and the calf's body straightened. Ropes were slipped over the calf's protruding feet and we began to slowly pull. Though we had both shed outer layers of sweatshirts and were down to our matching brown-twill, insulated, bib overalls, we were still sweating.

"Must be warming up," figured The Farmer, echoing my earlier observation about the weather on this frozen Saturday night.

Because of her earlier problems, Cherry needed a little time to dilate. She cooperatively stood still, while we kept a steady pulling pressure on the calf. Her sides heaved periodically, as she pushed, and slowly the calf's wet body came into view. With one final push from her, it plopped down onto the soft sawdust.

"Bull," groaned The Farmer, disappointed.

Steam rose around us as we put away ropes, gathered up the discarded sweatshirts, gloves and hats and exited the milk house. Outside, the stars twinkled and the moon shone brightly. My bare hand stuck to the metal door. The thermometer registered six degrees.

But, inside, one mother was contentedly licking dry her newborn little fellow.

Conservation District Tree Sales Begin

SUNBURY (Northumberland Co.) — The Northumberland County Conservation District has announced its 1997 tree sale has begun and customers can now place their orders. Trees are to be picked up at the district office in mid-April, weather permitting. Actual date of pickup will be announced later.

The conservation district is again selling a wide variety of evergreen and ornamental tree seedlings, ground covers, shrubs, fruit trees, and small fruits. Wild-flower seeds will also be available as well as planting and maintenance supplies, such as fertilizer packets, tree protectors, and weed control mats.

New items this year include Sargent Crabapple, Purpleleaf Sandcherry, Scarlet Curly Willow, Bankers Dwarf Willow, Dwarf Burningbush, and Yellowberry Holly.

The goal of the annual tree sale is to make reasonably priced trees and plants available for purchase, thereby enabling customers to contribute to the conservation of valuable natural resources on their land, such as soil, water, wildlife, and forest resources, while at the same time beautifying their property.

It is the belief of the board of directors of the Northumberland County Conservation District that planting trees and other items is one way we can make an investment in the future and be environmentally responsible.

Proceeds from the tree sale are used by the conservation district to spread the conservation message with educational programs for children and adults and to assist landowners in solving conservation problems and applying conservation practices.

Anyone who placed a call into the conservation district office within the past six months requesting an order form and who has not received it by now is asked to again contact the office. Also, if your address has changed since last year, please give us a call.

To receive an order form for the 1997 tree sale, you may call (717) 988-4224, or stop by the Northumberland County Conservation District office on Plum Creek Road, RD 3, Sunbury.

Quick & Healthy Recipes

Wouldn't it be nice to have dietitian supply you with quick-to-prepare recipes that are not only delicious but good for you?

Two cookbooks written by Brenda Ponichtera, a registered nurse and dietitian, offer that and much more.

The author of "Quick & Healthy Recipes and Ideas," and "Quick & Healthy Volume II" knows that most people don't want to spend more than 30 minutes preparing meals so she has combined smart ideas, imagination, and convenience to provide dishes that keep fat, cholesterol, sodium, and calories in check. Also included is the diabetes exchange for each recipe.

The cookbooks are available at your local bookstore or directly from ScaleDown Publishing, Inc. Each is $16.95 plus $2.50 for the first book and $1 for each additional book for shipping and handling charges.

Here are some sample recipes reprinted with permission from the author.

FRENCH GLAZED CHICKEN

1 pound skinless, boneless chicken breasts
 1/2 cup low-calorie French dressing
 2 tablespoons low sugar apricot jar

1 tablespoon dried onion
 2 tablespoons water
 Arrange chicken in a 9x9-inch pan that has been sprayed with non-stick coating. Follow directions below for microwave or conventional oven.

Conventional Oven: Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bake, uncovered, for 20 minutes. Mix remaining ingredients and spoon over chicken. Return to oven for 10 minutes or until chicken is done and glaze is heated.

Microwave Method: Cover with plastic, venting one corner. Cook on high for 6-8 minutes, depending on thickness of chicken. Rotate 1/4 turn halfway through cooking. Drain any liquid. Mix remaining ingredients and spoon over chicken. Cook for 1-2 minutes or until glaze is heated.

Yield: 4 servings; calories per serving: 190; exchanges 4 lean meat, 1 vegetable.

CORNBREAD CASSEROLE

2 cups frozen mixed vegetables
 1 pound extra lean ground beef or ground turkey
 1 medium onion, chopped
 1 cup beef broth, fat removed
 2 tablespoons unbleached flour
 1 teaspoon chili powder
 1/4 teaspoon salt (optional)
 1/4 teaspoon pepper

Cornbread Topping:

1/2 cup yellow cornmeal
 1/2 cup unbleached flour
 2 tablespoons sugar
 2 teaspoons baking powder
 1/4 teaspoon salt (optional)
 2 tablespoons canola oil
 1/4 cup egg substitute equal to 1 egg

1/2 cup skim milk

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cook frozen vegetables according to package directions, omitting salt. Drain any liquid and set aside. In a skillet that has been sprayed with non-stick cooking spray, brown meat and onion.

Meanwhile, combine flour with broth in a covered container and shake well to prevent lumps. Add to meat mixture along with the chili powder, pepper, and salt (optional). Bring to a boil, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add cooked vegetables and mix well.

Pour into 8x8-inch pan that has been sprayed with non-stick cooking spray. Meanwhile, in a medium bowl, combine the dry ingredients for the cornbread topping. Add liquid ingredients and mix just until blended. Spread over meat mixture and bake for 30-35 minutes or until cornbread is golden brown.

Yield: 6 servings. Per serving: 355 calories, 35 grams carbohydrates, 21 grams protein, 14 grams fat. Exchanges: 2 starch, 2 medium-fat meat, 1 vegetable, 1/2 fat.

APPLE CIDER PANCAKES

1/2 cup old-fashioned oats
 1 cup pancake mix (no more than 3 g fat per 1/2 cup mix)
 1/2 cup apple cider

Spray a griddle or skillet with non-stick cooking spray. With a wire whisk, blend all ingredients until smooth. Pour slightly less than 1/4 cup batter per pancake on a hot griddle or skillet. Cook about 1 to 1 1/2 minutes per side or until golden.

Yield: 8 pancakes (4 servings) 144 calories per serving, 30 grams carbohydrates, 4 grams protein, 1 gram fat. Exchanges: 2 starch.

LAZY DAY LASAGNA

12-ounce container cottage cheese
 2 cups shredded mozzarella cheese
 2 eggs
 1/2 cup chopped parsley
 1 teaspoon onion powder
 1/4 teaspoon dried basil leaves
 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 32-ounce jar spaghetti sauce
 1/2 pound cooked ground beef
 9 uncooked lasagna noodles
 1/4 cup water
 Grated parmesan cheese

In a large bowl, mix first seven ingredients until well blended; set aside. In a medium bowl, mix together spaghetti sauce and cooked ground beef. In a 12x8x2-inch baking dish, spread 1/4 cup meat sauce. Layer 3 uncooked lasagna noodles, spread with half of the cottage cheese mixture and half cup meat sauce. Spread with remaining cottage cheese mixture. Top with remaining 3 uncooked noodles and with the last of the meat sauce. Pour water around the edges, then cover with tin foil tightly. Bake in 375 degree oven for 45 minutes, uncover and bake 15 minutes. Sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Serves 6.

Churn Winter Treats

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — America's favorite dessert was featured at the Farm Show Ice Cream Churn-Off competition. Sponsored by the PA Dairy Promotion Program and the American Dairy Association & Dairy Council Mid East, eight Pennsylvania teams rolled up their sleeves and churned original, homemade ice cream recipes for the $200 cash prize.

Faye and Jim Reisinger, Loysville, took home first prize with their Cherry Ice Cream recipe. Judges rated ice cream recipes on effective use of dairy products, taste and visual appeal, recipe originality and creativity, and ease of preparation.

Blueberry Royal Delight Ice Cream, submitted by the McCollum Family, Enola, and Nutty Maple Delight Ice Cream, by Allyn Myers, Dillsburg, were awarded second and third places respectively.

Judges included Phil Keeney, plant manager of Hershey Creamery Company, Deputy Secretary Russell Redding, PA Department of Agriculture, and PA State Dairy Princess Angela Werley.

"Americans love ice cream," said Brian Ross, ADADC Mid East. "These great tasting recipes prove that we still enjoy making ice cream at home. It's a great activity for parents and children, and the end result is a treat everyone will appreciate."

The Ice Cream Churn-Off is an unusual event at the Farm Show and is open to all Pennsylvania residents.

Making ice cream in Pennsylvania is more than just a family affair. Pennsylvania is the second leading manufacturer of ice cream in the United States. 66 million gallons of ice cream were produced in 1995.

Here are the top three placings:
CHERRY ICE CREAM
Faye and Jim Reisinger, Loysville

6 pasteurized processed eggs
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 1/2 cups milk
1 21-ounce can cherry pie filling
3 cups heavy cream
1 cup light cream
1 14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
1/2 teaspoon almond extract

In a mixing bowl, beat together eggs and sugar until thick and lemon-colored. Scald milk; slowly pour into egg mixture, stirring constantly until sugar is dissolved. Cool. Combine cherry pie filling with egg mixture, cream, sweetened condensed milk, vanilla and almond extract. Pour into ice cream freezer and freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Makes 4 quarts.

BLUEBERRY ROYAL DELIGHT ICE CREAM
Terri, Jeff, Travis and Erin McCollum, Enola

4 cups crushed blueberries, fresh or frozen
1 cup sugar, divided
4 pasteurized processed eggs
1 14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
1/2 cup light cream
1/2 cup half & half
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 pint whipping cream

Crush blueberries in 1/2 cup sugar. (If using frozen blueberries, thaw before crushing). Stir gently 2-3 times; set aside. Beat eggs with mixer in a large bowl 2-3 minutes. Add 1/2 cup sugar and salt and continue beating. Add half & half, light cream and condensed milk. Mix well. Gently fold in whipping cream and blueberries. Pour into ice cream maker and freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Makes 4 quarts.

NUTTY MAPLE DELIGHT ICE CREAM
Alpat Acres,

Allyn E. Myers, Dillsburg
1 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/4 cup cornstarch
4 pasteurized processed eggs, beaten
1 cup maple syrup
5 cups milk
2 cups whipping cream
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
6 tablespoons melted butter
1 1/2 cups finely chopped nuts (pecans, shellbark or walnuts)

Prepare toasted nuts by combining melted butter and nuts. Spread a single layer on baking sheet and roast at 350° for 15 minutes stirring occasionally.

Combine sugars, cornstarch, eggs and syrup in the top of a double boiler. Gradually add milk; cook over boiling water until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and chill several hours or overnight. Stir in nuts, cream and vanilla. Place in ice cream freezer and freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Makes 4 quarts.

CREAMY MASHED POTATOES

3 medium potatoes
1/4 cup light sour cream
1/4 cup skim milk
1 tablespoon dried parsley
1 teaspoon dried dill weed (optional)
1/4 teaspoon salt (optional)
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Scrub potatoes and cut in quarters. Place in a medium saucepan and cover with water. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer until potatoes are tender, about 15 minutes. Drain. Mash potatoes, adding sour cream, milk, and seasonings. Continue to mash until no longer lumpy.

Yield: 2 cups (4 servings). Per serving: 146 calories, 30 grams carbohydrate, 4 grams proteins, 1 gram fat. Exchanges 2 starch.

SUE BEE'S 3 B'S

1/4 cup lentils
1/4 cup barley
1 cup brown rice
1 1/2 cups spaghetti sauce
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1/4 cup parmesan cheese
1 cup grated mozzarella
4 cups water
1/4 teaspoon salt

Oven 375 degrees. Combine beans, barley, and brown rice. Bring water, salt, and garlic to a boil. Add beans, barley, and rice. Reduce heat and allow to simmer tightly covered (don't peek) for approximately 50 minutes. When barley, beans, and rice are cooked, add sauce and stir until well combined. Pour into large greased casserole and top with cheeses. Bake uncovered in oven at 375 degrees for 30 minutes or until cheese is bubbly and lightly browned. Serves 6.

Susan writes that this recipe is easily doubled and a good one for potluck suppers.

CHILI

1 pound ground beef
1 cup chopped onions
1 cup chopped celery
1 package chili seasoning
3 15-ounce cans diced tomatoes, including juice
12-ounce can V-8 juice
3 15-ounce cans dark red kidney beans

Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup uncooked elbow macaroni, optional
1/4 cup low-fat cheddar cheese, optional

In large stew pot or Dutch oven, brown the lean ground beef and saute onions and peppers at same time, stirring frequently to get even cooking.

Add packet of chili seasoning, tomatoes, V-8 juice and green peppers. Bring to a boil over medium heat for 10 minutes, add beans, salt and pepper; bring to a boil again for 10 minutes. Add macaroni and cook until pasta is cooked, stirring frequently. Serve with sprinkle of cheese on top. Makes 6 servings.

MEAT PATTIES

1 pound extra lean ground beef or ground turkey
1/4 cup egg substitute (equal to 1 egg)

1/2 tablespoon dried parsley
1/2 cup oatmeal or oatbran or cracker meal

1/2 cup skim milk
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon chopped garlic
1/4 teaspoon salt (optional)
1/4 teaspoon ground pepper
1 teaspoon dried onion
Mix all ingredients. Shape into six patties.

Conventional Oven: Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Bake for 20 minutes.

Microwave Oven: Arrange in a circle, on a dish, leaving the center empty. Cover with wax paper and cook on high for 7-8 minutes, rotating 1/4 turn halfway through cooking time.

Barbecue: Cook over hot coals, turning once, until done.

Keep Coats Looking Great

How you should care for a coat may vary with the coat's fiber content. For instance, coats made of wool, leather, and suede may require more care than coats made of other fibers.

But for the most part, simply follow these tips to keep your coats looking great:

✓ Wear scarves to avoid soiling of the collars, especially for leather and suede. Oily stains from hair and skin preparations can permanently stain the fabric.

✓ Clean the coat whenever it is soiled. Make an effort to clean the coat once during the season and again before storing.

✓ When cleaning, make sure you follow the instructions indicated on the care label. If in doubt, consult your drycleaner.

✓ When storing a coat, hang it in a well-ventilated closet on a padded hanger. Avoid hanging a coat by its neck on a coat rack.

✓ Never store leather or suede in plastic bags, or the leather will dry out.

✓ Treat stains immediately to keep them from setting.

✓ Air dry wet coats at room temperature. Never expose to heat unless indicated by the care label.

ANSWER — Helen Boose, Landisville, sent a recipe for peanut butter meltaway candy, which had been requested by Ardele Landis. The recipe originally came from the Cake and Kandy Emporium and Helen thinks it's the best.

Peanut Butter Meltaways

Use 3 parts smooth peanut butter to 7 parts white confectionary coating. Melt and pour onto slab or tray. Cut into squares and dip into confection coating. For sugar-free candy use sugar-free peanut butter and Van Leer sugar-free confection coating.

ANSWER — A Canton reader wanted a recipe for a sweet tea biscuit that has currants in them.

English Tea Scones

4 cups flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon baking soda
¾ cup butter, no substitute
1½ cup half and half, no substitute
1 egg, slightly beat
½ cup raisins or currants
Additional half and half
Additional sugar

Combine first five ingredients in large bowl, stir well. Cut in butter with pastry blender until mixture resembles coarse meal. Combine 1½ cups half and half, egg, and raisins or currants; gradually add to flour mixture, stirring just until dry ingredients are moistened. Knead on a lightly floured surface 4 or 5 times.

Divide dough in half. Roll each half into an 8-inch circle. Place on greased baking sheet and cut each circle into 8-pie-shaped wedges; separate slightly. Brush scones with additional half and half and sprinkle with sugar. Bake at 400 degrees for 16-18 minutes or until golden brown. Serve warm or room temperature with butter or jam. Makes 16 scones.

ANSWER — Shirley Lilley, Baltimore, Md., wanted a recipe for gingerbread square cupcakes and frosting. Thanks to a reader for sending this one.

Gingerbread

1 cup sugar
1 egg, beaten
½ cup shortening
½ cup baking molasses
1 teaspoon ground ginger
2 cups flour
1 teaspoons baking soda
1 cup boiling water

Cream sugar, egg, and shortening in large mixer bowl until light and fluffy. Stir in molasses, ginger, flour, and baking soda. Add boiling water, mixing well. Pour into nonstick cupcake pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Yield: 12 to 15 servings.

Top with a dollop of the following frosting:

32 large marshmallows
¾ cup butter
1 teaspoon vanilla extract

Combine milk and marshmallows in saucepan. Cook over low heat until marshmallows melt, stirring constantly; cool. Cream butter in mixer bowl at medium speed until light and fluffy. Add marshmallow mixture and vanilla gradually, beating constantly. Yield: 4 cups.

ANSWER — Kathy Gephart, Rebersburg, wanted a recipe for honey mustard pretzels. Thanks to a reader for sending this one.

Honey Mustard Baked Pretzels

1 cup melted butter
1 package mustard or honey Dijon dry salad mix
1 pound broken hard pretzels

In a large kettle mix the butter and dry salad mix. Add broken pretzels and stir until the pretzels are well coated with the buttered mixture. Put the pretzels in two 9x13-inch cake pans. Bake at 250 degrees for about one hour. Stir pretzels every 20 minutes while baking. Let cool, store in tin.

Savings Tips That Work!

Perhaps one of your New Year's resolutions was to being to reduce debt and finally save some money. You may think, "There's no way I can save any money!" But most people find they can save when they really put their minds to it. Getting started takes some commitment on your part, as well as, discipline to help you achieve your goal. Here are some tips to get you started.

- Pay Yourself First. Make your "savings bill" a part of your spending plan, just like rent or utility bills. When you pay your other bills, pay your savings bill by depositing the money in your savings account.

- Use Payroll Deductions. Have your employer deposit your savings directly from your pay into a credit union or bank account. If you never see it, you might not miss it.

- Save "Bonus" Income. Try to save tax refunds, overtime pay, gift money, refunds, and rebates.

- Save Coupon Money. Save the amount you "save" by using coupons at the grocery or drug store. If you save $2 a week using grocery coupons, put the "savings" (the money you didn't spend) in your savings account.

- Pay Installments to Yourself. Once you pay off an installment loan (and if other loans are not overdue), continue to make "payments" to your savings account.

- Collect Loose Change. At the end of every week (or more often) empty out your pockets and wallet and put the change in a jar. Every other week or once a month, deposit the change in your savings account.

- Break a Habit. Every time you don't have a donut at coffee break or don't spend money in the soda machine, save the money you didn't spend.

- Save Lunch Money. Get up 10 minutes earlier and make your own lunch instead of buying it. Save the money you would have spent on lunch.

- Save Money On Sales. When you buy an item on sale, save the difference between the sale price you paid and the "full" price you would have paid if the item had not been on sale.

- Have a "Nothing Week." Once in a while have a week when you try not to spend any extra money — don't go to the movies, don't go out to eat, don't go bowling. Save the money you would have spent.

- Use a "Crash Budget." A crash budget works just like a crash diet — you try to cut out all unnecessary spending and save as much as possible.

If sticking to your resolution or goal is usually difficult for you, here's a suggestion that works: Design a large dollar sign ($) and tape it to your mirror in the bathroom, your refrigerator, your steering wheel, your MAC card, something at your place of employment, your TV and/or computer, your back door, your front door, or anything else that you can think of. Did you get the point? When you have a constant focus on your goal, you can make anything happen!

Delaware County Teens Attend National 4-H Congress
Sarah MacPhail, 19, and Ben Ruzowicz, 17, of Newtown Square were chosen to represent Delaware County 4-H and the state of Pennsylvania at the recent National 4-H Congress in Memphis, Tenn.

This event was attended by more than 1,100 delegates from 46 states and two territories and was chaired by Vice President, Al Gore, a former 4-H'er, and his wife Tipper.

The five-day event included motivational seminars, community service projects, a nationally televised town meeting to discuss important issues facing teens, sightseeing, and of course the opportunity to meet and socialize with teens from around the country.

Public Invited To Tack Swap

The annual tack swap at the Northampton County 4-H Center is scheduled Saturday, April 12, from 11 a.m.-3 p.m.

The Northampton County 4-H Center is located on Bushkill Center Rd., Nazareth. The tack swap is open to anyone who wishes to come to sell or to buy various horse-related items, apparel and tack. All sellers must have a table area — no consignment items will be sold at the tack swap.

Table areas will be offered to the public at a cost of $15 per table for the indoor area, $12 for the pole barn area, and $10 per "area" in the outdoor arena, weather permitting. Anyone wishing to sell during the tack swap must pre-register for spaces in the indoor and pole barn area: arena areas will be allocated on the day of the event.

Any item from small to large may be sold. No live animals will be allowed to be sold at this event. Persons with large equipment to sell are welcome to display it on the open grounds for the registration fee.

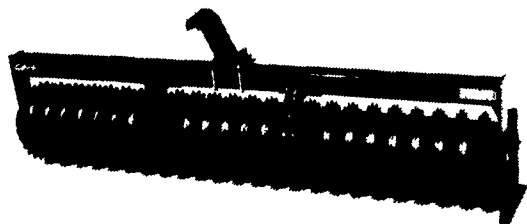

Food will be available during the tack swap courtesy of Back-trackers 4-H Horse and Pony Club.

Anyone wishing further information, directions, or registration for this event is encouraged to call (610) 837-7294.

Fifth Grader Designs Billboard Displayed In Maryland

TANEYTOWN, Md. — They're not many fifth graders who design billboards and have the honor of having their name attached to it. But this is exactly what happened to Amy T. Ridinger of Taneytown.

Her billboard is located along Railroad Ave. (Rt. 27) in Westminster, Md.

Amy's claim to fame began when Cpl. Michael Bible visited 19 elementary schools in Carroll Co., Maryland. He taught students a course on seat belt safety. At the end of the program, a Safety Poster Contest was held. To create a poster, each student was required to use the words, "Safety Is Only A

Click Away, BUCKLE UP!"

From 1,146 posters entered from the 19 schools, Amy's was declared the county winner.

Amy said, "I made the seat belt purple because it's my favorite color. I put smiles on it because you should be happy and glad you are wearing a seat belt, if you are ever in a crash. I put a heart on the buckles, because if you love someone enough you will buckle them up too."

Amy said that the Westminster City Police Department had an awards program, which included videos on seat belts and air bags, and the correct way to use them.

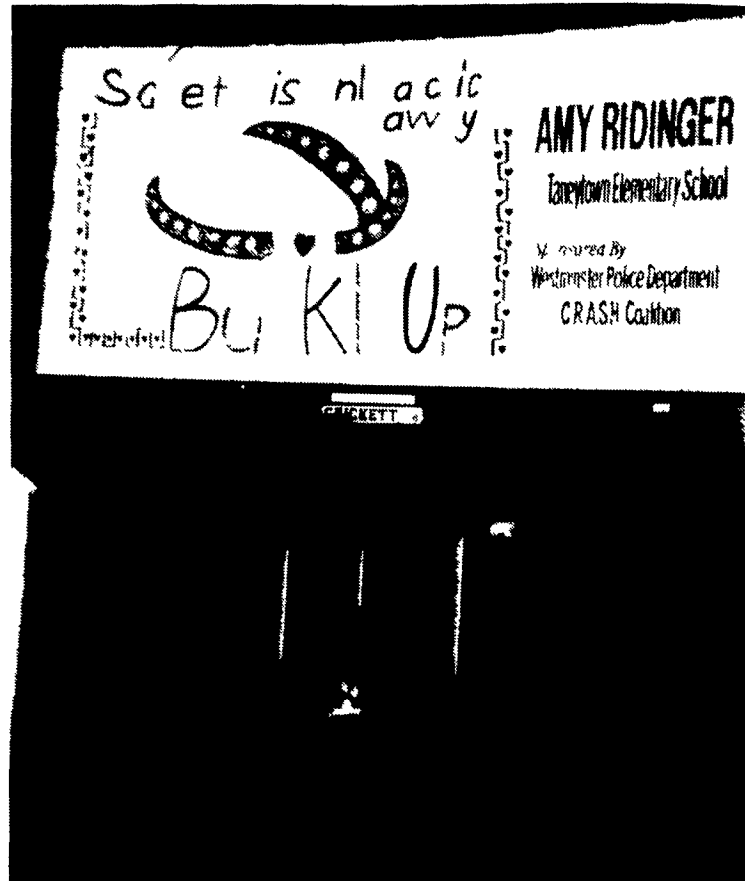

Also guest speaker, Spring Car Racer Judd Shepard showed a short video of a car crash.

Amy received a trophy and her poster was sent to North Carolina then back to Crickett Ltd. in Red Lion to be made into a billboard.

When the billboard was hung, Amy was pictured standing underneath it.

Amy attends Taneytown Elementary School where Mrs. Lisa Blevins is her teacher. Her parents are Teresa and Arthur Ridinger of Taneytown, Md.

Amy reminds our readers, "Safety is only a click away, so BUCKLE UP!"

Amy Ridinger stands beneath the billboard that was painted with the poster she designed. The billboard hangs along Railroad Ave., Rt. 27 in Westminster, Md.

Children's Book Explains The Harvest

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Cris Peterson, a resident of Grantsburg, Wisconsin, has written a new picture book for children photographed by Alvis Uptis and published by Boyds Mills Press.

"Harvest Year" documents many of the fruits, vegetables, eggs, dairy products, seafood, and poultry produced in various regions of our country in a month-to-month format. Ms. Peterson writes with a first-hand appreciation for the circle of life on American farms and clearly presents her story to young readers.

"It's important for children and adults to appreciate the incredible abundance and diversity of American agriculture," she says. "It's one of our country's greatest strengths and a bit of a miracle."

Ms. Peterson's other book for Boyds Mill Press, "Extra Cheese, Please!" also beautifully photographed by Alvis Uptis, focuses on the process of making cheese, from the birth of a calf to the topping on a pizza. The book won the Wisconsin Library Association Children's Book Award for Outstanding Achievement and the Ohio Farm Bureau Women's Award for Children's Literature.

Cris Peterson, her husband, Gary, and their three children — Ben, Matt, and Caroline — grow corn, oats, and hay and milk 50 cows on their 300-acre Grantsburg farm, which has been in Gary's family since 1877.

"My writing career began when I gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to a newborn calf and I knew I had a good story," she says. "The calf lived and after a dozen rewrites the story sold. Both were named 'Breathless'."

Born in Minneapolis, Cris Peterson earned a bachelor of science degree in education from the University of Minnesota. In addition to writing, farming, and parenting, she reviews children's books in her nationally syndicated column, "Huckleberry Bookshelf," and frequently speaks to school students and farm groups.

"Harvest Year" and other Boyds Mills Press books are available from your local bookseller or Boyds Mills Press.

Smart Stuff WITH TWIG WALKINGSTICK

Why do people put salt on the roads?

To melt the ice!

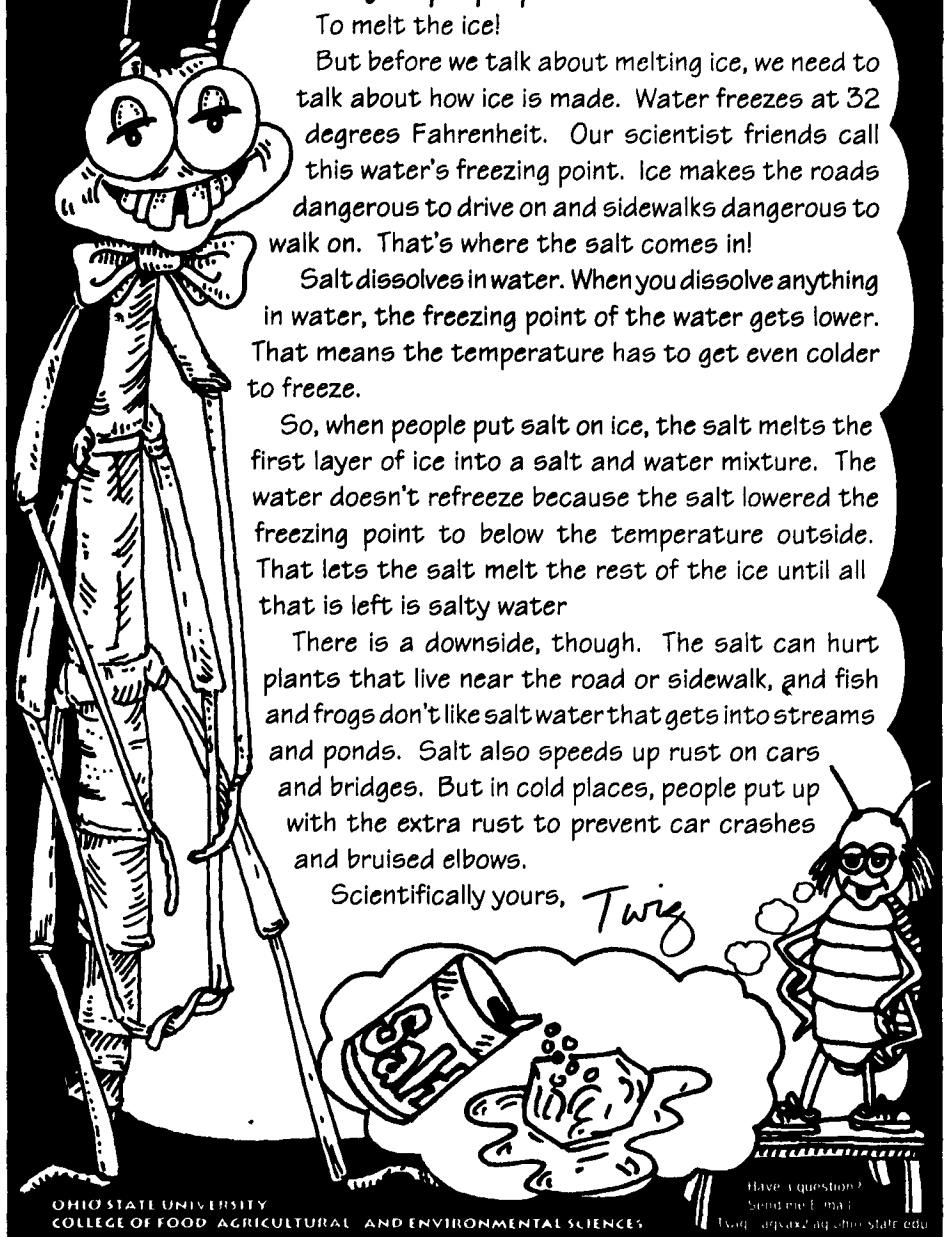

But before we talk about melting ice, we need to talk about how ice is made. Water freezes at 32 degrees Fahrenheit. Our scientist friends call this water's freezing point. Ice makes the roads dangerous to drive on and sidewalks dangerous to walk on. That's where the salt comes in!

Salt dissolves in water. When you dissolve anything in water, the freezing point of the water gets lower. That means the temperature has to get even colder to freeze.

So, when people put salt on ice, the salt melts the first layer of ice into a salt and water mixture. The water doesn't refreeze because the salt lowered the freezing point to below the temperature outside. That lets the salt melt the rest of the ice until all that is left is salty water.

There is a downside, though. The salt can hurt plants that live near the road or sidewalk, and fish and frogs don't like salt water that gets into streams and ponds. Salt also speeds up rust on cars and bridges. But in cold places, people put up with the extra rust to prevent car crashes and bruised elbows.

Scientifically yours, Twig

Plan The Landscape For Butterflies

Is there an orderly look to your landscape, or has it just "happened" over time? Even "natural" landscapes that attract butterflies have a plan behind them that keeps them looking natural instead of wild.

If there hasn't been a plan, it's never too late to start. Depending on the size of the yard, take one area at a time and think about what you want, and then move onto the next area.

If your landscape doesn't naturally break into garden "areas," think about creating them. Vary the planing bed sizes, shapes and what plants they contain. You may want to add a bed or two, or take some beds out.

A planned garden for butterflies doesn't have to happen all at once. Think of your landscape as a work in progress. If you develop an overall plan, work one or two areas at a time. Save work on other area for later in the year or even over the next season or two.

When landscaping an area to attract butterflies, choose from many "butterfly friendly" annuals and perennials. Begin drawing up next spring's garden plans by choosing a site that receives full sun or as much sun as possible.

Choose a site sheltered from wind and heavy rain. Also, butterflies prefer an area with water.

Choose plants for the butterfly garden that will supply food for caterpillars as well as nectar for butterflies. Some garden seed and plant catalogs now indicate plants that are particularly attractive to butterflies, including aster, butterfly bush, clover, forget-me-not, honeysuckle, lilac, mock orange, phlox, and yarrow, to name just a few.

The best nectar flowers are fragrant and have a long bloom season. Try to choose plants that will provide a sequence of bloom throughout the season. Clump them together in massed plantings, and remember to keep taller plants in the back.

Caterpillars, the larval stage of butterflies' lives, eat plants such as aster, Queen Anne's lace, cabbage, clover, violets, thistle, and some grasses.

If a formal bed doesn't appeal to you, consider planting a wildflower meadow with milkweed, goldenrod, black-eyed Susan, asters, and butterfly weed to attract a wide variety of butterflies.

Do you, or a young person you know, want more information about butterflies and how to

York Society 11

Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women, York County's Group 11 met recently in the social room of Zion United Methodist Church in Potosi. A full course dinner was served to 31 members and guests by Ken's catering from Spring Grove. The poinsettia and wooden spoon reindeer decorating the tables were given as deer prizes.

The 15 children, 5 to 16 years of age, known as the Super Bows were true to their name with violin/fiddle and viola. Just super!

Members exchanged gifts revealing Secret Sisters.

Incoming President Sarah Snyder presented each member with booklets listing committees: Ways and Means - Betty Kincaid, Sarah Snyder; Entertain - Chrystal Breneman, Coleen Bankent, Melba Dise; Christmas - Arlene Miller, Eleanor Bupp, Sandy Hilty; Cards and Flowers - Naomi Bupp, Mildred Bupp; Membership - Cora Miller; Publicity and Scrapbook - Mary Winemiller.

The evening concluded with the drawing of Secret Sisters for the new year.

Berks Executive Society

The Berks County Society of Farm Women Executive Board met on January 6, at 8 p.m. in the auditorium of the Ag Center. The meeting was called to order by Pres. Ruth Walters. Devotions by Group #2 "A Prayer For The New Year."

Roll call for the evening was the answer to the question "Did you have a nice Christmas?" Group #1 received the attendance award at the county convention.

Spring Rally is May 13, at the Hershey Convention Center. It will be hosted by Dauphin County.

Sections of the By Laws were read and "Things to Remember." State President Dorothy Stricker from Berks County was presented a Holly Hock wall hanging as a retirement gift.

Berks Society 1

Ellen Snyder of Limekiln was hostess to Berks County Society of Farm Women Group I for its November meeting. Sixteen members attended the meeting, with President Evelyn Heacock presiding.

Lillian Hetrick, a Group I member, spoke on multiple sclerosis, a chronic disease of the central nervous system. Larry, her son, has been diagnosed with this disease, and as a result of this, Lillian has gained much information and insight regarding MS.

Group I will again distribute poinsettias and fruit baskets to various shut-ins during the holiday season.

The annual Christmas party of Group I will be held at the Stage Coach Stop Restaurant, Maiden-creek, on December 11, at 6:30 p.m. Also at this time, new officers will be installed and secret pals' identities will be revealed with an exchange of gifts.

With the "Music" afghan behind her, Melissa Vought, wearing a Blue Band sweatshirt, displays her Meyersdale FFA jacket and her prized clarinet which have rewarded her with interesting travel experiences.

Music Combines With Ag To Open Travel Opportunities

GAY BROWNLEE

Somerset Co. Correspondent
GARRET (Somerset Co.) — "There is more to music than people think," says Melissa Vought, 20, a Penn State junior.

The Meyersdale FFA member played in the Penn State Marching Blue Band on New Year's Day in Tempe, Arizona, when the Nittany Lions beat the Texas Longhorns in the Fiesta Bowl.

"I'm like an advocate for music," she states, with good reason. "I've been everywhere because of my music. I've been across the United States and back three times."

A pretty unique record compared others her age.

By the time she went to the Fiesta Bowl, however, the music education major, really was an old hand at these bowl performances. She and her clarinet have gone with the band to Penn State's bowl appearances each of three years.

"The first time was a big deal," she said, "because it was the Rose Bowl (Pasadena, CA)." Then last year they went to the Outback Bowl in Tampa Bay, Florida.

To top off this year, Timothy, her brother, a Penn State freshman who is also a Blue Band member, accompanied his sister to Tempe. His expertise is the trumpet.

A natural aptitude for music runs strongly through the entire family. Melissa's parents, Tim and Shirley Vought and other siblings — Grethen, 16, and Christopher, 10 — all play instruments.

Music forms the core around which all their recreational interests are centered. They love community band concerts.

Mr. Vought teaches ag in the Rockwood School District, plays the trumpet and belongs to the Penn State Alumni Blue Band.

His wife has a formal background in music and gives piano and organ lessons at home.

Over and over the family claims that music is fun.

Predicting the future, Melissa says: "The reward I'm going to get in teaching younger students is to get them aware (of music)."

Before Melissa reached college, in her junior high school year, she was finally convinced by her dad to join FFA. It wasn't long until she rued her earlier hesitation about joining the organization, and wished she had done so earlier.

"I sang in the state FFA chorus. It was a lot of fun, says the Meyersdale FFA Chapter member who, in August, will show her last steer at the Somerset County Fair.

In high school senior year, Melissa, aiming for her national convention in Kansas City, took the plunge and auditioned by tape, for a seat in the FFA band. She, and another FFA'er from Pennsylvania were selected. Each state sent two representatives.

She had to fly alone for the first time, and wasn't thrilled about a layover of two and a half hours in Chicago.

"Since I was under 18, my parents paid for an airline escort to get me from gate to gate," she said. "It was really scary."

As she waited by the airline desk, low and behold a man came over and began to chat. Soon they learned their homes were in neighboring counties — Somerset and Cambria.

"It was like a miracle. This guy — he was a world traveler who worked for Sani-Dairy — shared all about traveling to Mexico and Spain."

His interesting company made the time go by quickly.

In Kansas City, she stayed eight days, three of which were devoted to band practices. The four roommates soon were acquainted and usually hung out together, she said.

Melissa got her biggest shock.

Lisa with Lucky Lady's Go Beau, who is ready to compete at the Tioga County Fair 4-H Horse Show.

Dream To Become Like Sister Brings A State Crown

LOU ANN GOOD

Lancaster Farming Staff
ROARING BRANCH (Tioga Co.) — Cows and horses fill up a large part of Lisa Fitch's life. But the devotion that supercedes those two is Lisa's love for her older sister Laura.

"I think my sister is the greatest in all the world. I always dreamed I could be like her," the 16-year-old from Tioga County said.

After watching her sister fulfill a term as Tioga County Dairy Princess, it was only natural that Lisa attempted to emulate her. As a result, Lisa ended up with more than a county title. After claiming the county dairy princess title, she went on to compete with 28 other contestants at the state level and was selected as a state alternate. Now it's her duty not only to promote the dairy industry in Tioga County but also in the state.

"As a state alternate I can talk to more people and explain the need for dairy products," Lisa said.

Of the dairy princess duties that require her to take days off from her junior year at Canton Junior Senior High School, Lisa has nothing but praise.

"There isn't a thing that I don't like about being a dairy princess," Lisa said.

Even after missing a school trip to Connecticut with the American Field Service, Lisa harbored no disappointment.

"I get to do a lot more things as dairy princess," she said philosophically.

One of those things was spending the whole week at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. The experience was an eye opener for seeing the scope of the dairy industry and meeting the many people involved in dairy promotion.

When Lisa isn't away from home, she's busy working on her parents' Elwin and Charlene Fitch's farm in Roaring Branch. She's up at 4:30 a.m. to feed the calves. After the chores are finished she snatches about another hour of sleep before getting up for school.

Of the difficulty of arising from a deep sleep twice each morning, Lisa said, "Somebody's got to do it."

When she is away from home, her mother fills in for her. Lisa also helps with evening chores and helps with milking on weekends. In the summer, she helps put hay away but isn't allowed to drive tractor.

The Fitches milk about 50 cows on their 259-acre Four Wynds Dairy Farm. "It's almost a Century Farm," said Lisa about the farm that has been in the family for almost 100 years.

"We have a barn cleaner for two long rows; otherwise, we shovel manure from four drops."

Lisa said that her dad would like to expand the barn, but if she had one wish it would be that feed prices would go down and milk prices would go up.

Most of the cows in the stanchion barn are Holsteins with a few head of Jerseys. In addition to showing some of her 10 Holsteins in 4-H competitions, Lisa also shows Brown Swiss from a neighboring farm.

She also has a horse that she rides in 4-H shows.

"I love horses because they each have their own personalities and are so much like people," she said of her desire to attend Wilson College for equestrian studies.

In addition to being involved in American Field Services at school, Lisa is a member of the Foreign Language Club, SADD, and is alternate HOBY representative.

She attends the Grover Church of Christ but is active in the youth group of a different church. Lisa is a member of Country Warriors 4-H Club and treasurer of the 4-H County Council.

To help in county dairy promotion, Lisa is assisted by an alternate dairy princess and seven dairy maids.

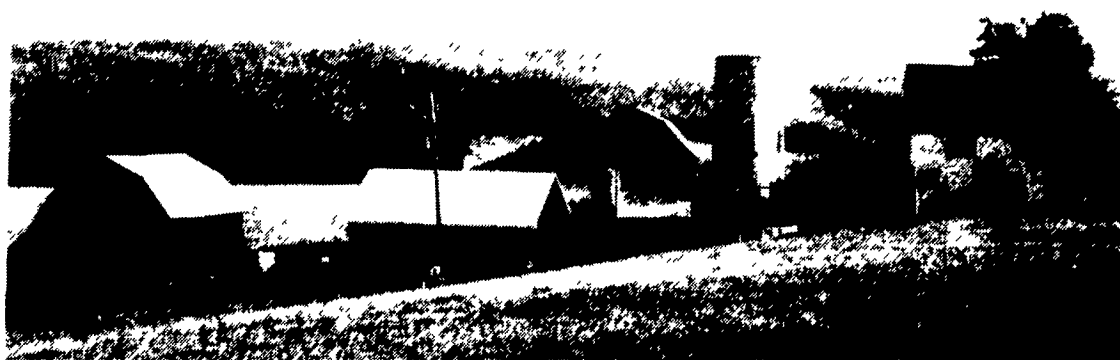

Lisa Fitch became Tioga County Dairy Princess before competing for the state title and becoming the Pa. Alternate Dairy Princess.

The Fitch siblings, Lisa, left, Bryan, 13 years old, is a 7th grade student at Canton Jr. Sr. High School, and an active 4-H member showing dairy and market lambs. Bryan has a favorite hobby collecting 1/64 miniature farm sets and machinery. Laura, right, 19 years old. She is in her sophomore year at Mansfield University majoring in social work. Currently employed by DHIA, she is a former Tioga County dairy princess, fair queen and 4-H member.

Lisa shows one of her many 4-H show helpers. Here she receives master exhibitor and second place at the 4-H district show.

Four Wynds Farm nestled among the rolling hills of PA, where the wind is always blowing. The farm has been in the Fitch family for 100 years.

As Pa. Alternate Dairy Princess, Lisa Fitch has opportunities to talk with people across the state about dairy products. Here she talks with Jay Book, president of the Pennsylvania Nut Growers.

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

New food products arrive at your local supermarket at alarming rates. Almost 9,000 new products a year are developed and marketed. In 1994, some 20,076 new food products were introduced.

Those figures mean intense competition for shelf space in stores, and for your food dollar. One way manufacturers try to earn that dollar is by encouraging brand loyalty and preference. Manufacturers pour millions of dollars into their advertising budgets so that you'll instantly recognize their products as superior choices.

Most grocery store products are researched, tested, packaged, and promoted so that you'll become aware of their merits. And the price tag reflects all this effort. Paying for a brand-name product in the supermarket, as in other stores, means you are paying for reputation and promoting, as well as the product itself.

Consumers who reach automatically for the best-known brand on the shelf may be paying more than they need to. Often, a different, less well-known brand or store brand will cost less.

To help you compare grocery items, take this test on your next shopping trip: write down the items you need, leaving space after them for three different prices per item. Since carbonated beverages is the leading sales item in the US, you may want to compare it. In the store, note the price of the brand you normally buy; then pick a comparable brand and note that price. Finally, see if there is a store brand, and jot down that price.

After you have collected the information, subtract the price of the least costly brand from that of each of the higher-priced brands to find the range of difference. You can save this amount of money by purchasing the lowest-priced brand.

I think you'll find that store brands are almost always less expensive than name brands. Consumers shouldn't take for granted that bulk foods are the cheapest, though. Occasionally store brands and even specially priced national brands may cost less than bulk. Always compare prices!

While saving 25 cents on a jar of peanut butter may make you feel rich, think of this: careful food shoppers can save an estimated $15,000 over a 30-year period by comparing prices and avoiding impulse shopping.

The shopper who wishes to cut food costs must also be alerted to possible savings in the meat case by looking at cost per serving. Because low-cost meat and produce may contain inedible waste, price alone is not a guide to these foods. The more accurate guide to economy is cost per serving. To find the cost per serving, divide the retail price per purchase unit by the number of servings it provides. For example, a market may offer both ground beef chuck and pork spareribs for $1.99 a pound. Because the spareribs contains considerable bone and fat, a pound provides only 1 1/4 servings. In contrast, a pound of ground chuck provides 4 servings. At $1.99 a pound, a serving of spareribs costs $1.50 ($1.99 divided by 1 1/4). At $1.99 a pound, a serving of ground chuck costs only 50 cents ($1.99 divided by 4).

And remember, small amounts add up over a period of time.

New York Farm Safety Days For Kids

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The 12th annual New York Farm Show offers the next generation of farmers an exciting opportunity to learn important lessons about farm safety. Farm Safety Days for Kids, a special program for children 8 through 13 sponsored by the New York Center for Agricultural Medicine and Health (NYCAMH), will be held on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 21 and 22, at the three-day New York Farm Show. Younger children, ages 4 through 7, can also participate in a number of farm safety education events presented by NYCAMH.

New York Farm Show, the Northeast's largest indoor farm show with more than 400 agribusinesses represented, runs from Thursday, Feb. 20, to Saturday, Feb. 22, at the State Fairgrounds in Syracuse. Show hours are 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

Farm Safety Days for Kids will offer four learning events: animal safety, small equipment safety, chemical safety and First on the Scene/First Aid. Registration for the safety programs begins a half hour prior to the 10:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. starting times. Participation is limited to 80 children for the programs, held in the Empire Room of the Family and Home Center.

Young children, ages 4 through 7, can participate in a number of activities in the same location. These include a farm safety puppet show, a toy farm with hazards for children to identify and an art area where children can color safety posters and placemats.

In the day camp room, information exhibits on Farm Safety 4 Just Kids, PTO safety, skin cancer, NYCAMH's Farm Safety Challenge Game and tractor safety.

Parents or guardians must accompany older children to register for the safety day camp. Parents or guardians must remain with younger children. All registrants will be entered in a drawing for door prizes.

New York Farm Show also offers exciting opportunities for older farmers. More than 400 companies and manufacturers will display the newest equipment, supplies, technology, inputs and services.

New York Farm Show is a great opportunity to see different manufacturers and compare what they have to offer," says Scott Grigor, farm show manager. "Farmers can find out what's coming up for the next season — what's the latest technology, what's happening in chemicals, equipment and services.

To get up to speed on what the information age has to offer agriculture, farmers can surf the World Wide Web. On-going instruction on locating WEB information will be provided by Mike Stratton, American Agriculturist's computer columnist and Cornell Cooperative Extension farm management specialist.

"Progress is the focus of New York Farm Show," adds Grigor. "The show provides farmers with a way to keep on top of all the changes that are taking place in agriculture. It will keep them in touch with the future."

A Farm Toy Show Auction rounds out the slate of events at New York Farm Show. Held on Friday, Feb. 21, the auction will offer more than 250 pieces for sale. Proceeds benefit New York State FFA.

New York Farm Show is sponsored by the New York Equipment Dealers Association and American Agriculturist magazine.

however, in looking over a sea of FFA blue jackets, from the front. She was rather startled at the scope of the FFA organization.

"It was amazing to see how big FFA is. It's not just about farming because the FFA chapters from the city can't have on-the-farm work experience. They do horticulture and other projects.

"It opened my eyes and made me think," she said, adding "I never thought my music would take me to Kansas City."

A life filled with music leaves little time for watching television reruns, so when Jerry Lewis, a vintage movie actor, chatted in a friendly way with Melissa and her companion in the hotel elevator, it isn't surprising that his identity was a mystery to her. She just thought him nice.

The roommate, however, knew it was Jerry Lewis, probably with a bodyguard. She was nearly spastic until the lift with its four passengers stopped at the girls' floor and she could let it burst out.

At the state FFA convention talent show, Melissa gave a clarinet solo in the Eisenhower Auditorium.

Speech contests were also satisfying challenges.

Admittedly, once a shy girl, speech contests proved to be a most natural remedy for her reticence.

"I came out of my shell. I learned to be myself," she said.

And the farm girl who was told that until she learned to drive a tractor, she couldn't get her driver's license, began absorbing an amazing amount of knowledge by reading up on the latest farming facts.

"I've shown 11 steers," she reports. "We were never ones to go out and buy fancy steers."

These projects, besides teaching showmanship and responsibility, helped to feather a nest for college.

The 4-H exchange trip to Utah was another of her round trips across the country.

The 40- to 50-head beef operation is her dad's hobby. Animals are intensively grazed in paddocks that the kids help to section off.

Field work in the summer is the norm, although Melissa doesn't rake hay in one field for three hours as she once did. But, that's only because her dad deliberately neglected to explain how to stop the tractor when he hopped off it and went to eat a leisurely lunch.

It was a ploy intended to promote Melissa's tractor driving capability.

"I didn't mind," she laughed. "It was a warm day and I enjoyed driving around."

Taking Time by Rebecca Escott

Using Your Consumer Voice

Several recent occurrences have reminded me how important it is for consumers to voice their opinions about issues and products. Yesterday several co-workers and I spent most of our lunch hour discussing the newest cable TV billing rates and practices. We were frustrated and wanted to price-shop for different services. It seemed that the cable company was really manipulating the consumer. We were at their mercy.

In an unrelated issue, my husband and I have noticed the ratings that have begun to appear at the beginning of television shows. Whether you like the labels or not, viewers at least have some idea of the content and can do some initial screening of programs.

These are very different issues but they point to one key message. It is critical for consumers to find their voices and use them to comment on and change situations that are unacceptable. So often I field phone questions where consumers are dissatisfied with a product or practice, but they express a hesitancy to go back to the store and ask for change. I always say, "Unless you take the time to talk with the company, they are not going to know that people are dissatisfied. They want to keep your business."

Consumers are NOT at the mercy of big government or industry giants. But we often feel that a single person can't make a difference. I don't believe that. I urge consumers every day to voice their opinions and concerns. To do this effectively, I think you need to follow some basic guidelines.

First, do your homework. Keep receipts, write down specific dates/terms, etc. Be informed so that when you speak to a decision maker, you will be prepared to explain your position. Second, practice discussing the issue in a calm manner. An irate consumer never gets the serious consideration that a calm one does. This does not mean taking on a weak, apologetic demeanor. You can be assertive and present your case without being disruptive and rude.

Finally, be prepared to suggest an improvement, alternative action, or correction. We want to be part of making things better. In the long run, simply whining about a frustrating situation does little good. If you can propose an action that would make the situation better, you are helping yourself. You are also helping other consumers who will benefit from the change.

For instance, if you are offended by a particular television show, do your homework. Record what specific episode you watched, when it aired, and specific examples of content that you disliked. Express those concerns to the producers, network, and even to the sponsoring advertisers in writing. But don't stop there. Tell these groups what would have made the show acceptable. You may also mention how you will choose to spend your time if future episodes follow the same pattern (i.e., I will refrain from buying your products as long as you continue to sponsor this show. I will watch newtork "B's" show instead..)

Consumers need to voice their opinions on many issues locally and nationally. It is also good to voice both positive and negative opinions. If a company has made a good change, tell them so. If a movie company produces a film you are pleased with, send them a complimentary note. Messages that affirm good actions are just as important as those that critique poor ones.

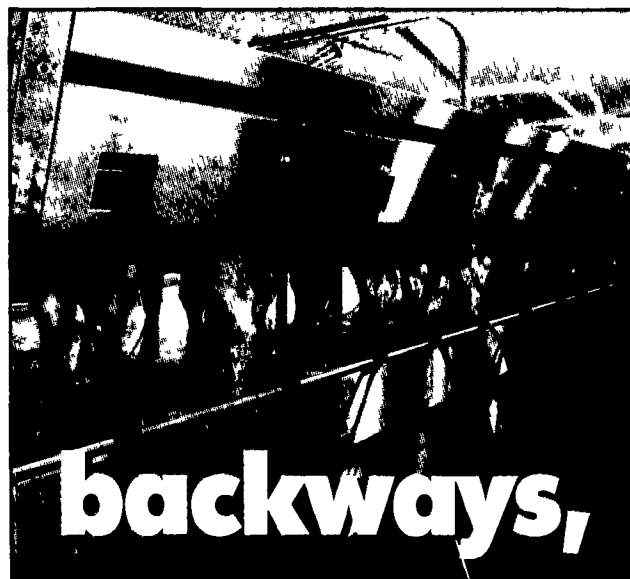

Whether it's a piece of federal legislation or a confusing advertisement from your local grocery store, an issue big or small, take the time to use your consumer voice to make a difference. State your case and ask for change.

4-H Shooting Sports Committee To Conduct Instructor Certification Course

The Pennsylvania 4-H Shooting Sports Committee will conduct a training program and instructor certification course for adults interested in working with youths ages 8-18. This course will be held April 25-27 at Camp Mount Luther near Mifflinburg.

The workshop will be funded in part by a $5,000 grant from "The NRA Foundation" and a $700 grant from the Federal Cartridge Company. Programming will involve specialized training and certification for instructors in the NRA/4-H rifle, pistol, and shotgun shooting sports program.

Archery participants will receive National Archery Association Level 1 certification. Program participants will be certified to organize project clubs and conduct instruction in these program areas.

Ninety-two 4-H volunteer leaders from 36 counties participated in the Pennsylvania 4-H Shooting Sports workshop held in May 1996 in Lackawanna County.

Several related projects and activities will also be introduced during this years training including "Woodworking for Wildlife," "Wildlife Through the Seasons," "Endangered Species," and the Penn State 4-H Habitat Evaluation contest.

The 4-H Shooting Sports program has grown rapidly in Pennsylvania with more than 2,300 youths ages 8 to 18 completing projects in this program area in 1996.

4-H members receive training in marksmanship, firearm safety and handling. They also have the opportunity to compete in county, regional and statewide contests. Air pistol, air rifle, archery, and .22 rifle contests are held for teens at 4-H State Achievement Days at Penn State University in August.

For more information about the Pennsylvania 4-H Shooting Sports program and this training, contact your local Penn State Cooperative Extension office or Michael J. Martin, 4-H Extension Agent, Luzerne County Cooperative Extension, Courthouse Annex 5 Water Street, Wilkes-Barre PA 18711, (717) 825-1709 or (717) 459-0736 ext. 701.

Baker 4-H Scholarship
Two Allen L. and Richard H. Baker 4-H scholarships will be awarded this year by Penn State. The dollar amounts of the scholarships will be announced at a later date.

To be eligible for the Baker scholarships, applicants must be present or former 4-H members in Pennsylvania, and full-time undergraduate students at the Pennsylvania State University (University Park or a commonwealth campus). Freshmen will receive their scholarships after satisfactorily completing one semester. Upperclassmen must have satisfactory scholastic standing to receive the awards. Preference will be given to students who plan to work with youth upon graduation.

To apply, candidates must send a completed application form, a copy of his/her high school transcript(s), transcripts from all colleges or post-secondary school(s) he/she has attended, and one letter of recommendation from a high school or college academic advisor. Application forms are available in all county extension offices, including the Lycoming County Cooperative Extension Office at Room 406 of the county courthouse, 48 W. Third St., Williamsport. The entry deadline is April 1, 1997, for receipt of the application by Bruce Grider, 323 Agriculture Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802.

Glennon Becomes 4-H Program Assistant

agriculture with Penn State Cooperative Extension Bucks County on Jan. 6.

Glennon earned a bachelor's degree in animal science with a minor in ag business from Delaware Valley College in December 1996. She served as 4-H program assistant in Adams County and was a 4-H member from 1983 to 1994.

Glennon will organize and conduct comprehensive educational 4-H and youth programs in agricultural sciences with a focus on livestock and small animals in Bucks County. She will be responsible for recruiting and training adult and youth leaders to support 4-H agriculture programs.

Spinnin' Spurs 4-H Meeting

The Spinnin' Spurs 4-H Horse Club is having their first meeting of 1997 at the Old Penryn Fire Hall on Friday, Feb. 14, at 7 p.m.

You don't need a horse to participate. Anyone interested in horses may join.

Some things the club has done are horse shows and clinics, field trips, community service projects, and fundraisers. The club is selling Wolfgang Easter Candy.

For more information, call the club secretary, Amber Swinchart, at (717) 664-2597.

Ann Leed, 4-H'er from Lebanon County, earns the Junior Champion Shepherd Award at the Pennsylvania Farm Show. From contestants across the state, Ann placed first in the competition that required fitting a sheep, taking a test on sheep management, identifying seeds and equipment, and judging a class of wool and sheep.

... For New Construction Why Not Examine The "Chimtek Difference."

Chimtek Inner Liners are made of volcanic pumice and high-temperature refractory cements. Its round shape provides even temperature inside flue and contributes to efficient flow of smoke and flue gasses. The volcanic pumice in Chimtek liners adds considerable insulating value.

All three chimneyliner systems distributed by DS Machine Shop are of super design, super performance, and super value. With all their advantages these chimney systems often cost no more than ordinary chimneys. Write or call us for more specific liner information.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

ALL-NEW JOHN DEERE 945 ROTARY MID-PIVOT MoCo

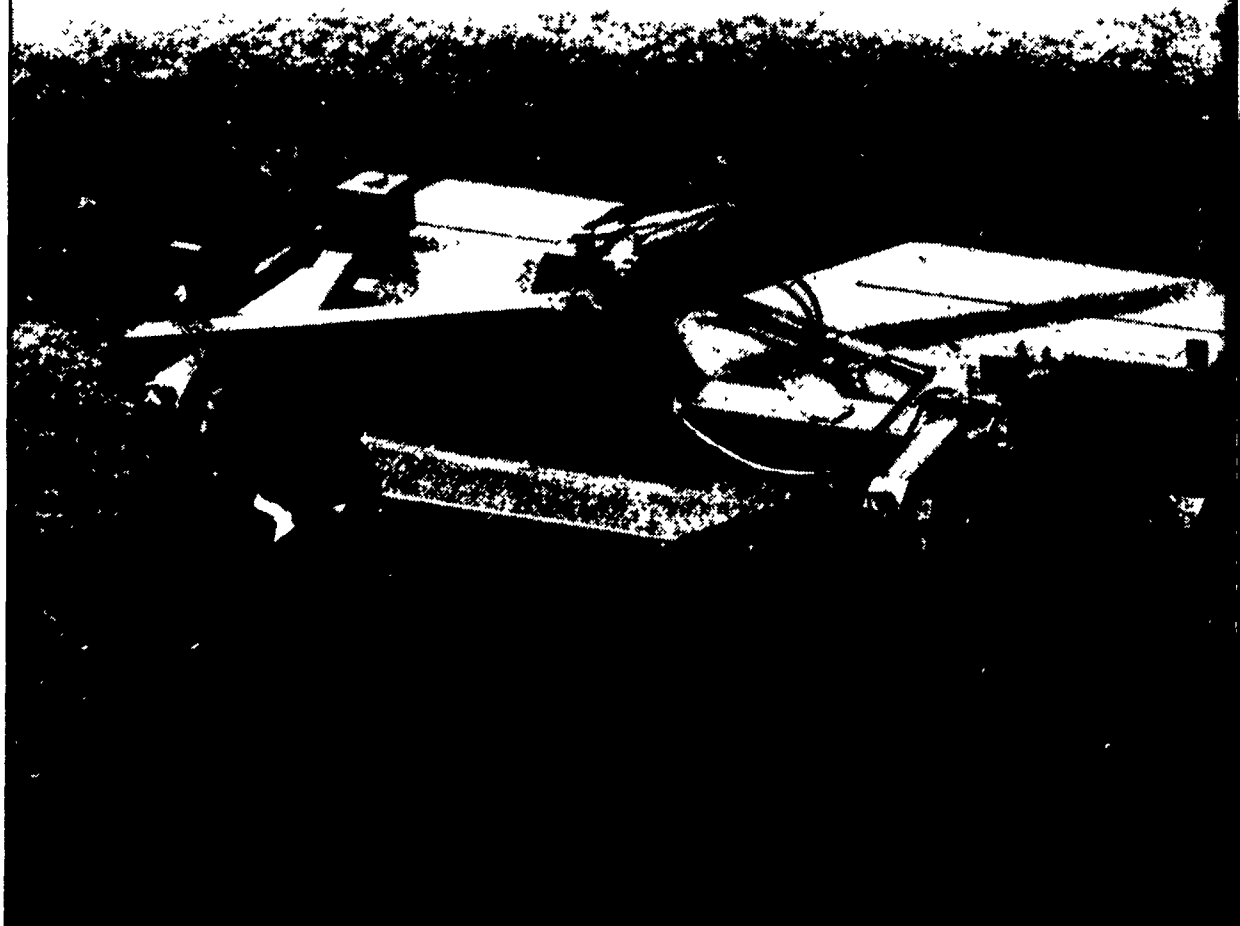

Rotary performance, mid-pivot mobility

What do you get when you team a heavy-duty 13-foot cutterbar with a convenient, maneuverable mid-pivot design? You get fast, trouble-free mowing and conditioning from the new 945 Rotary Mid-Pivot MoCo.

This rotary machine is built tough so you can make quick work of less-than-perfect field conditions. Double-edged knives and high-strength, gray-iron modules are surrounded by steel plates.

The cutterbar is protected by exclusive John Deere shear-hubs. When the disk receives a severe impact, the hub shears, protecting inner gears. This can save you money and aggravation because the hub can be replaced for less than $40 — simpler and cheaper than replacing a complete cutterbar assembly on other mower conditioners.

Of course, the convenient mid-pivot design lets you cut on either side of the tractor. Plus, the new swivel preferably stainless steel. Where can he find one?

QUESTION — Lynn Joshua, Lititz, wants to buy "Wildflowers and Stories Behind the Names," by Phyllis Busch and "Sugar From Farm to Market," by Winifred Hammond.

ANSWER — Phyllis G. Woods, Edinboro, wanted to know how to make braided rugs out of wool coats, etc.
 Thanks to Karen Kunnaine for sending the following instructions. Cut apart wool coats or skirts by ripping out stitched seams or cut seams with a razor blade or seam ripper. Wash pieces on regular cycle in washing machine. Dry in hot dryer to tighten fabric. Shrinking makes the material more durable. Cut with scissors or rotary cutter into 2 1/2 - or 3-inch wide strips. Fold cut edges inside to form a tube and baste with giant stitches to keep tubes from opening. Stitch three tubes together at one end. Braid like hair. As a tube runs out stitch on a new piece and baste into the the tube shape with regular thread. Working on a flat surface like a table, wind braid into a flat row. Stitch braids together with button and carpet (heavy) thread. Use wool and wool blends, but do not mix in other materials for the rug will not lay flat. Use wools of similar weight or thickness in each rug. Braid Aids (three small metal funnels may be purchased which automatically fold the tubes without stitching them. Karen has made three 9x12-foot rugs and many smaller ones with this method. For an oval rug, subtract width from length (ex. 9x12-foot rug: 12-9=3 feet). Make a single braid 3-feet long then turn braid and begin stitching to original braid. This will make a rug 3-feet longer than it is.

ANSWER — Jasmin Los, York, wanted a source to purchase discounted sewing supplies from a catalog or store. Pollyanna Eby, Belleville, recommends the catalog put out by Home Sew, P.O. Box 4099, Bethlehem, PA 18018-0099. Her sister in law introduced her to this source and she is really happy with it. Also, Mrs. D. Fisher, Lewistown, suggested the same source plus the BeeLee Company, which can be contacted at 1-800-527-5271. Also, Eva Oberholtzer, Leola, suggests Newark Dressmaker, P.O.
 Box 20730, Lehigh Valley, PA 18002-0730.

ANSWER — Daniel Hoover writes that he has some horseradish root that he could send by mail to Sm. Miller of Hagerstown, Md. Write to Daniel at 343 N. Maple Ave., Leola, PA 17540. Also, Ty Shedd, Salladsburg, and Sylvia Reppert, Wellsville, writes that the roots are available from Gurney's Garden Catalog, call 1-605-665-6671 or write 110
 Capitol St., Yankton, SD 57079-2099.

ANSWER — Dick Shull, Landisburg, wanted to know how to stop down drafts in a chimney on windy days. Thanks to Roy Waibel, Lykens, who wrote that he had the same problem. He made a smoke pipe similar to those on an old train caboose and set it in the chimney. He sent a diagram, which we are unable to reproduce. For more information, write to Roy at 979 Erdman Rd., Lykens, PA 17048.

With exclusive John Deere shear-hub protection, this heavy-duty 13-foot cutterbar delivers longer life and peace-of-mind performance.

PUBLIC AUCTION

of

85 Acre Lancaster County Farm with 2 Dwellings

Fri., March 7, 1997

at 11:00 a.m.

DIRECTIONS: From Ephrata take Rte. 272 North approximately 4 miles to left on Walbash Road. Follow Walbash Road 7/10 mile to stop sign. Continue onto Indiantown Road. Go approximately 4/10 mile to right onto Wollups Hill Road. Go 7/10 miles to farm on left. West Cocalico Twp., Lancaster County.

DWELLING #1: 2-1/2 Story stone farmhouse with 12x16 w/1 story addition; 1st floor: Eat-in kitchen plus 3 other rooms, 2nd floor: 4 bedrooms and full bath. Also: full basement, well and septic system, no central heat.

DWELLING #2: 2-1/2 Story frame farm house; 1st floor: Eat-in kitchen, living room, sitting room and full bath, 2nd floor: 3 bedrooms, Also: full basement, well and septic system, no central heat.

BARN: 38x84 2-1/2 Story stone bank barn with a 50x36 addition; 1st floor: open stables for cattle feeding, 2nd floor: drive-in bays with additional storage for hay and straw, also a 22x30 frame and stone addition with a 3 bay garage area on first floor.

OUT BUILDINGS: 28x40 corn shed with equipment storage, 2-10x40 concrete silos and 2 other small out buildings.

LAND: Approx. 80 tillable acres of highly productive limestone class 1 and 2 soils, with majority being class I, terrain level to gently sloping.

COMMENTS: This is a great opportunity to purchase a very productive Lancaster County farm peacefully situated back off the road and surrounded by neighboring farms. With the location of existing buildings and road frontage on both sides of Wollups Hill Rd. and 1 side of long Lane Rd., this property could support a second set of buildings. Existing buildings are in need of some repair. Property is being sold subject to a Lancaster County Agricultural Land Preservation Easement.

OPEN HOUSE: Saturday, February 15, 1997 from 1:00 to 4:00 p.m. or anytime by appointment. For a brochure, a plot plan or assistance in obtaining financing call Horning Farm Agency, Inc. at 610-286-5183 or 775-3745.

TERMS: 10% down day of sale; possession April 1, 1997; settlement on or before July 9, 1997. Buyer shall be required to cooperate with a 1031 Exchange.

MAGNUM is Still the STANDARD

Happy 10th Birthday!
To MAGNUM TRACTORS
"the proven performers"

For 10 Years, since 1987, The MAGNUM Tractor has proven itself for RELIABILITY, DEPENDABILITY, and ECONOMICAL PERFORMANCE on EASTERN Farms. Others have tried to copy the MAGNUM - but the MAGNUM remains THE STANDARD by which OTHERS are judged.

The 8900 Series takes

Simmental Association Elects Six

BOZEMAN, Mont. — The membership of the American Simmental Association (ASA) has re-elected three incumbents and has elected three new members to its 16-member board of trustees.

Incumbents re-elected include Steve Davies, Byers, Colo.; Bill Wentz, Olmito, Texas; and Harrell Watts, Sardis, Ala.; Roger Kenner, Leeds, N.D.; John Woods, Lincoln, Ala.; and G.A. "Red" Shepherd, Youngsville, La., are the newly-elected members of the board.

Davies, in partnership with his father, former ASA trustee Miles Davies, maintains a registered Simmental herd of 200 brood cows, located at Byers. Davies Simmental Ranch markets 70 to 90 bulls annually, primarily to commercial cattlemen. A 1976 graduate of Colorado State University, Davies has been active with the Simmental breed since its introduction to North American in 1968. A three-term member of the Colorado Simmental Association (CSA), he serves as CSA secretary. During his first term on the ASA Board, he served on the executive committee and as chairman of the policies and procedures committee. Davies and his wife, Marilyn, are parents of two young sons.

With his wife, Charmayne, Wentz owns and operates Wentz Cattle Company, Land of Manana Cattle Company, and WentzCo, all located at Olmito, Texas. A registered Simbrah herd is maintained. Both Simmental and Simbrah bulls and females are marketed through WentzCo, by private treaty and auction sales. A graduate of Texas A&M University, Wentz is a member of the Mexican Simmental-Simbrah University, is fluent in Spanish and markets cattle both domestically and internationally. He has served on the ASA board for the past three years, serving as treasurer and on the executive committee.

Watts owns Simmentals of Alabama with 80 registered cows and 200 commercial females. His farm also includes 1,150 acres of cotton, timber and hay. A past president of the Alabama Simmental Association, he is a graduate of Auburn University, and has used A.I. and performance testing for 31 years. In his first Board term, Watts chaired the Growth and Development Committee and served a year on the Executive Committee. He believes that carcass traits and retained ownership are areas that need emphasis to make SimGenetics more competitive. A full-time farmer/cattleman, he and his wife, Cheryl, are parents of three grown children.

Kenner owns and operates Kenner Simmental Ranch, a 280-head cow/calf operation placing breeding emphasis on solid red and black genetics, with some Fleckvieh-influence. Cattle are marketed through private treaty sales including bulls, females, embryos, semen and planned matings. A Simmental breeder for 22 years, Kenner also produces and markets certified durum wheat. He served as a North Dakota Simmental Association board member for six years, with two years as president. He holds a degree in ag economics from NDSU, and was named North Dakota Simmental Promoter of the Year in 1988. Kenner and his wife, Jeannette are parents of three children.

Woods and his wife, Loti, own and operate Woods Knoll Farm at Lincoln maintaining a fullblood/purebred Simmental herd of 500 head. A Simmental breeder since 1982, Woods Knoll Farm has increased its Fleckvieh influence in recent years. He's a past two-term president of the Alabama Simmental Association. Woods retired this past year, after a 24-year career as chairman and chief executive officer of AmSouth Bank, one of the 50 largest banks in America. A graduate of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., Woods served as a U.S. Air Force pilot in the mid-1950s. He is the father of three daughters and has four grandchildren.

Shepherd operates a fullblood Simmental cow/calf operation located near Youngsville. A native of Mansfield, and a resident of the Lafayette area since 1954, Shepherd's career has revolved around the oil field rental tool service business. He has been associate with commercial cattle much of his life, switching to the Simmental seedstock business in 1989. Cattle are marketed by private treaty and State Association sales. He serves as vice president of the Louisiana Simmental/Simbrah Association. Shepherd and his wife, Juanita, are the parents of four grown sons, all of whom are involved in the oil field service business.

Schuylkill Vegetable Meeting

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — The Regional Schuylkill County Vegetable meeting will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 18, from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at Pine View Acres, Chamberlain Avenue, Pottsville.

Speakers for the meeting are to be Dr. Michael Orzolek, Penn State Extension vegetable specialist; Dr. Shelby Fleischer, Penn State Extension entomologist; and Dr. Alan MacNab, Penn State Extension vegetable pathologist.

Also speaking are to be Steven Detwiler from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and Keith Masser, chairman of the Ag Advisory Committee of the Susquehanna River Basin Commission.

Topics to be discussed are to include potato special variety trial results, insect control in cucurbits, tillage and wet soils, an update on vegetable disease management, putting the new selective or bio-intensive management options to work, the new vegetable production guide update, an update on pesticide record keeping rules and regulations, and an update on the Susquehanna River Basin Comprehensive Plan.

All vegetable growers are invited to attend this meeting sponsored by the Schuylkill County Extension.

Pesticide update credits will be issued at this meeting.

Registration is required by Monday, Feb. 10.

For additional information contact George P. Perry Jr., Extension agent/horticulture, Schuylkill County Extension Office, 1202 Ag Center Drive, Pottsville, PA 17901, or telephone (717) 622-4225.

Snow-Covered Ponds Could Cause Problems

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Picturesque white blankets of snow on frozen ponds look beautiful, but they can give pond owners the blues.

When 1 to 2 inches of snow pile on top of ice-covered ponds, aquatic plants don't get enough sunlight. Without sunlight, the plants cannot release oxygen through photosynthesis, and that lack of oxygen could lead to a fish kill, said Eric Norland, Ohio State University Extension natural resources specialist.

"To avoid this potential problem, sweep the snow from at least one-tenth of the pond surface," Norland said.

But before sweeping, skating or ice fishing on the surface, pond owners should make sure the ice is safe. People should stay off clear ice that is 1 inch thick or less. Two inches of clear ice can support one person. Three inches will support small groups traveling single file. Only when clear ice is at least 4 inches thick is it safe for skating, sledding or ice fishing, Norland said.

"Ice that is not clear, but has a milky appearance, is only half as strong as clear ice," he said. "Milky ice has broken up and refrozen, making it weaker than clear ice."

Pond owners concerned about winter fish kills should control weeds before the spring and summer months. The more weeds eliminated when the pond is not frozen the better, because then there isn't a mass of vegetation to decompose under ice during the winter, Norland said. Decomposing weeds use up oxygen from the atmosphere can replace oxygen used in plant decomposition.

Installing an aerator in a pond is another way to protect against low oxygen to dissolve from the air into the water. Movement of the water also prevents some areas of the pond from freezing, so oxygen can continue to dissolve into ice-free areas.

But aerators are not an option for many pond owners. They can be expensive to buy and install, they require electricity to run, and many people do not have electrical access to their ponds.

Dairymen Purchases Plant In Harrisburg Area

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Mid-America Dairymen Inc. (Mid-Am) of Springfield, Missouri, has purchased a facility near Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, to be used for production of Starbucks Frappuccino® under contract with the North American Coffee Partnership. Frappuccino is a coffee drink made with milk solids and cream that is to be consumed cold. It is packaged in single-serving glass containers. The one-time Coca-Cola bottling facility, located at 4825 Old Gettysburg Road, in Mechanicsburg, will be renovated by Mid-America Dairymen Inc., with the installation of processing and packaging equipment.

"We have been working with the Partnership on this project for nearly a year now," said Mid-Am Formulated Dairy Foods Group chief operating officer Sam McCroskey. "At present, we process and package the Frappuccino product at our Springfield, Missouri, plant, but demand has grown to the point that we need to expand our production capacity. The new plant in Pennsylvania will give us better access to the East Coast market and significantly increase our production capabilities."

McCroskey said equipment for the plant is being ordered and is expected to be operational by mid year. The plant will employ more than 50 workers, when it starts operation.

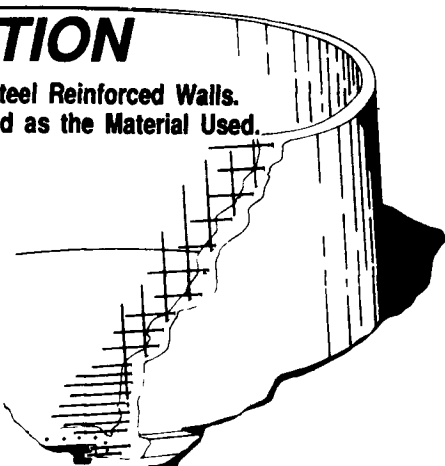

Mid-America Dairymen Inc. is the nation's largest dairy marketing cooperative, serving more than 16,000 dairy farmers in 32 states (including Pennsylvania), from coast to coast and border to border. A manufacturer of a full line of value-added dairy products, Mid-Am is one of the nation's largest and most experienced manufacturers of shelf-stable beverages packaged in cans and glass.

Fertilizers Impact Soil Health

NORCROSS, Ga. — Healthy soil contains many living organisms, which help to recycle the nutrients essential to plants. Fungi account for about half of the soil's biological biomass (the total weight of the living organisms in soil). Another one-third includes bacteria and actinomycetes. The remainder consists of yeast, algae, protozoa, nematodes and earthworms. Larger organisms begin the breakdown of crop residues, but microorganisms usually limit the release of nutrients.

From the crop producer's point of view, some aspects of soil organisms are beneficial while others are detrimental. Even while they break down organic matter and release nutrients, they also incorporate these nutrients into their living tissues. Organisms contribute to building soil organic matter with the by-products of the crop residues they break down, but they also decompose organic matter. High biological activity is not necessarily beneficial, as it can mean excessive decomposition of soil organic matter.

Plants can grow well without soil organisms. Experience with hydroponic gardening or commercial greenhouse production shows that many species of plants can grow vigorously on a sterile mixture of essential elements. Hydroponic management is very demanding, however. It is more economical to grow most crop plants within a healthy soil ecology where the cycling of nutrients becomes important to ensure continuity of supply, matching the demands of plant growth.

Fertilizers impact the soil's biological biomass. Soil organisms generally require all the nutrients that are essential to crop plants, plus more. The most important nutrient for most soil organisms is fixed carbon as an energy source. Green plants fix far more carbon than any other soil organism. The reason is that plants are highly adapted to capturing energy from sunlight and converting it to the many forms of fixed carbon: carbohydrates, fibers, oils, proteins, etc. Crop plants are harvested to remove the useful portion of their fixed carbon, but even the most efficient crops return a substantial amount to the soil. The return of fixed carbon is in the form of root exudates, roots, stover and leaf litter.

Plants produce the most important nutrient for the soil's biology. It follows, therefore, that any nutrient which enhances the growth of crop plants will also enhance the soil's biological health. For example, most forms of nitrogen fertilizer contain ammonium, which can easily reach toxic concentrations in the soil near the applied fertilizer. Yet, research has shown that crops fertilized with nitrogen can build up soil organic matter, and sustain a higher level of soil microbial activity than without fertilizer. How is this possible? Applied at normal rates, fertilizers kill organisms only in small zones in the soil. These zones are quickly recolonized, and the net effect is to speed up the recycling of nutrients contained in the soil's biomass.

A recent study in Quebec compared microbial biomass nitrogen in soils under two long-term fertilizer rates. Corn was grown at a normal recommendation of 150-90-150 and at a high rate of 400-270-360 pounds per acre of N-P-O-K₂O. In soil with the higher fertilizer rates, microbial biomass nitrogen was enhanced during the early growing season. Over a nine-year period, soil organic carbon increased 20 to 25 percent. With continuous corn in short growing seasons, microbial activity and the accumulation of soil organic matter can be limited by available nitrogen.

Keep your soils healthy. Nourish your crops, and they will nourish your soil.

Ciba Seeds Receives Approval to Market Maximizer™ Insect-Protected Corn

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — Ciba Seeds, now Novartis Seeds, announced that the company has received approval from the European Commission to market its genetically modified corn to the 15-member countries of the European Union (EU).

The insect-protected corn, sold in the U.S. under the brand name Maximizer™, received full regulatory approval earlier this year from Japan and Canada.

The European Commission granted Ciba Seeds permission to market the corn as seed, as well as for food, feed and industrial uses. The decision followed extensive review by three scientific committees: The Scientific Committee on Food, the Scientific Committee on Animal Nutrition and the Scientific Committee for Pesticides.

Key conclusions from committee reports released include:

- "There is no reason to believe that the genetic modification of the Bt-maize will give rise to any adverse effects on human health from its use in human food."
- "There is no reason to believe that the genetic modification of the Bt-maize will give rise to any adverse effects on animal health from its use in animal feed."
- "A potential development of insect resistance to the Bt-toxin cannot be considered an adverse environment effect, as existing agricultural means of controlling such resistant species of insects will still be available."

The first company to introduce insect-protected corn in the U.S., Ciba Seeds devoted two years to securing approval from the EC to sell genetically modified corn to EU member nations. Novartis Seeds will be the first company to introduce Maximizer hybrids with European corn borer protection in Europe.

Ciba Seeds and Northrup King Co. recently combined operations into Novartis Seeds, a result of the merger of Sandoz Ltd. and Ciba-Geigy Ltd. NK Bt corn, developed by Northrup King, is undergoing review by the European Commission, and has received full regulatory approval in Japan and Canada.

You Say Tomato, They Have a Motto: Increasing Quality and Yield

WOOSTER, Ohio — Need some salsa for your chips? Ketchup for those fries? How about some spaghetti sauce on that pasta?

Many foods just aren't complete without a tomato product. Thanks to new Ohio State University research dedicated to Ohio's $20 million processing tomato industry, the quality of those products is improving.

The university's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center's tomato breeding and genetics program is one of only a few university research efforts aimed at breeding tomatoes for the processing industry. David Francis, research scientist at OARDC, said the goals of the program include improved end-product quality and increased disease resistance of varieties adapted to the Midwest.

Francis is working with Mark Bennett and Winston Bash, two Columbus-based researchers, to evaluate application methods and rates of ethephon, a commercially available ripening enhancer used by growers. "The study is aimed at both rate of application and method of application. Traditionally, people would look at just the yield," he said, "but we're also looking at the quality of fruit for the whole-peel industry."

The industry has expressed a need for varieties with improved resistance to bacterial canker, early blight, bacterial spot, bacterial speck, and anthracnose. "My goal," Francis said, "is to combine improved resistance to these diseases with improved fruit quality."

Increasing the use of hybrids and an increase in processors that participate in variety breeding are two trends Francis says will support his goal.

"Because of these trends, we are likely to see improved yields and improved color and uniformity in hybrid tomatoes. Producing cultivars with disease resistance will contribute to the production of high-quality fruit," Francis said. "And as more processors work on breeding, overall quality also will improve."

Francis said there may be some specialization of varieties for whole-pack and diced tomato products. Some of these varieties will have improved resistance to specific diseases.

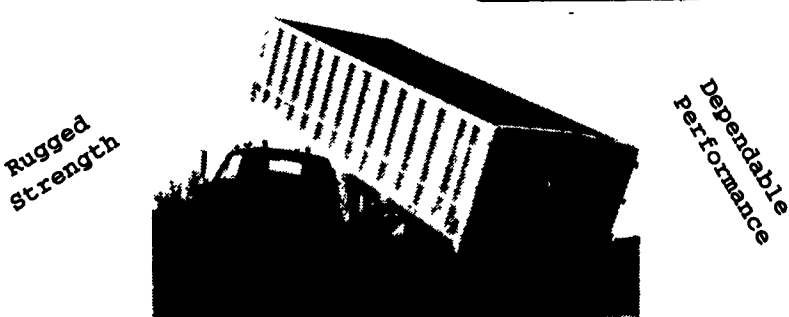

The goals of OARDC's tomato program and those of the industry will be addressed at the Ohio Fruit and Vegetable Growers Conference held in conjunction with the Ohio Roadside Marketing Conference, Feb. 5-8 at the Toledo Seagate Center. Francis will speak about variety evaluation and variety resistance to bacterial spot with Sally Miller, an OARDC plant pathologist.

For more information, contact Francis at OARDC's Department of Horticulture and Crop Science, 1680 Madison Ave., Wooster, OH 44691. For information about the conference, call Mike Pullins at (614) 249-2424.

Servis-Rhino's unique product line is one of the most expensive in the industry. Rhino holds the industry record for new product introductions with over 50 in the past 36 months. For example, Rhino offers three new Hydraulic Boom Flail Cutter models:

Servis® 1948 ■ Horizontal reach 18'8" ■ Cutting capacity 1 1/2" with 48" head, 4" with 37" head
 ■ Cutting width: 37" or 48"

Servis® 1548 Horizontal reach 15' ■ Cutting capacity 1 1/2" with 48" head, 4" with 37" head ■ Cutting width: 37" or 48"

Servis® 1348 ■ Horizontal reach 12'10" ■ Cutting capacity 1 1/2" with 48" head, 4" with 37" head ■ Cutting width: 37" or 48"

Rhino Hydraulic Boom Flail Cutters also eliminate the need for complicated mounting kits - leaving your tractor free for other uses.

If It's Snow Removal Or Heavy Duty Excavating, You Need A
Rhino Blade From Binkley &
Hurst Bros. Now!
 The LR Blade has been setting the standard in medium-duty blades for over 20 years. The LR is ideal for road maintenance, soil leveling, ditching and terracing work, or feedlot cleanup on tractors. Durability and ruggedness are built into every LR with features including a 2" solid steel kingpin and a 5/16" thick moldboard. Versatility is provided by the LR's three basic mechanical adjustments: moldboard tilt, pivot, and mainframe swing which add up to a total of 22 non-wrench adjustments.

Even when it's empty... it's loaded.

Low profile design means easy loading by skid loader, front end loader or barn cleaner.

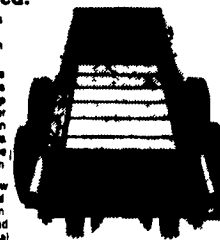

Gold-Tuff flooring prevents the apron from flexing to the floor allowing manure to slide out with little resistance. Less apron pull means less wear and tear on drive and apron chains. One piece construction won't flex under heavy loads.

Extra-strong, T-bar apron chains with an average tensile strength of over 23,500 pounds keep the biggest loads moving.

Double galvanized steel sides are corrosion resistant for long life. One-piece seamless construction won't catch material or leak.

Optional hydraulic endgate seats in front of the beater paddles to secure sloppy loads and keep heaped material out of the beater unit. You're ready to spread. An available rear gate reduces spills in the yard or roadway while enhancing the spread distribution.

Oscillating tandem wheels allow faster ground speeds while providing greater traction. They're standard on the 325 bushel and 425 bushel models and optional on the 250-bushel model.

Twelve extra wide one-piece beater paddles are symmetrically positioned for broad uniform spreads. Paddles are fabricated from tough 1/4" thick high strength steel. But on replacement, they are available to extend paddle life.

Constant velocity plate for continuous smooth chatter free power transfer when spreading on turns and reduced stress on the entire drive line.

In fact, you'd probably have a hard time convincing Gehl Mix-All® owners to even look at anything else. And why should they?

The Mix-All's big 21-inch wide hammermill features 88 reversible thin hammers that cut, rather than pound the feed to deliver a more consistent grind and ensure uniform mixing for a better feed conversion rate.

Gehl's self-contained hydraulic system is designed-in, not added on. It provides the precision of infinitely variable in-feed attachment control to match tractor power for greater grinding capacity. Plus you get fast, smooth, trouble-free unloading with greater reliability. And a wide variety of options and attachments lets you customize your Mix-All to fit any operation.

THE BEST JUST GOT BETTER!

Better Performance. Gehl Scavenger®, the original V-tank spreader, has built a well-deserved reputation for delivering unmatched performance in a wide variety of materials. The new Scavenger takes that performance to the next level with even better spreading patterns in the toughest heavily-bedded manures.

Increased Durability. Not only has the new Scavenger been designed to out-perform all other V-tank spreaders, but the main drive system components have been beefed-up for extra durability and increased dependability.

Why Is Scavenger the Best? One big reason is the unique new round-core auger. This auger features segmented paddles grouped in a spiral pattern. This lightning configuration delivers more material to the discharge expeller in less time for faster unloading. T.A. paddles are precisely positioned to deliver more uniform feeding to the discharge expeller. This exceptional design breaks up and blends all types of manure.

The auger is hydraulically powered both up and down (unlike competitive units that use springs, gravity or feed augers). This design provides more control to chop through bridged material or power down through heavy loads.

Outstanding Application Control. Gehl's proven Versa discharge system has been made even better. It's 33 percent wider on the Model 1315. On all new models the expeller assembly has been significantly strengthened. New square-tooth expeller paddles spread smoothly and evenly. You choose the rate you want, from heavy spring-time spreading to light top-dressing. With Scavenger you have complete control right at your fingertips.

Scavenger Is Simply Better. The Gehl Scavenger is a simple spreader. It's solid and durable with sealed, welded tank construction and a full length channel steel sub-frame. Every Scavenger is built to deliver top performance year after year.

Your Gehl Dealer can show you why the new Scavenger V-tank spreader is still the best.

A NEW GENERATION OF TRACTORS CLASSIC BELARUS VALUE.

The 8000 Series from Belarus is a new generation of tractors for a new generation of farmers. But like always, Belarus tractors are strong on dependability and easy on your pocketbook.

Each comes equipped with a rugged 81 hp, four-cylinder, fuel-efficient engine, and is available with cab or ROPS frame.

Our 8000 Series also offers new features like a synchromesh transmission, with 14 forward and 4 reverse speeds. An improved turning radius provides even greater maneuverability, making the 8000 Series a welcome addition to any farm.

Our new generation of tractors shows how easy improving on affordability can be. When you're the company that sets the affordability standard, that is. With our new features and design, plus our ease of maintenance, you've got the tractors that see you through a full day's work.

The 8000 Series has four versatile models to suit your individual needs. Choose from the two-wheel drive 8011 and 8311, or the tough four-wheel drive of our 8045 and 8345.

COMBINE VIDEOS & BOOK

NEW VIDEO! THE TWO THOUSAND MILE HARVEST. Every year, ten of the world's largest combines follow the grain harvest for a five month journey from Texas over the heartland of the U S A to Lethbridge, Alberta. The crew of eighteen show what life on the road is like through their working days - coordinating moves from site to site, coping with the machinery on a grand scale, progressing with humour and ingenuity through the unpredictable and evocative midwestern landscape. This is the ultimate harvester's road movie. VHS Colour 60 minutes $34.95

NEW VIDEO! CLASSIC COMBINES Viewers both young and old will enjoy watching 150 years of harvesting grain, from the days of the scythe to the satellite. Covers Claas, International Harvester, John Deere, New Holland & many more makes. See machinery in full action. VHS 60 minutes $34.95

WORLD HARVESTERS Book from McCormick's 1831 reaper to the computerized mobile machines of today. Complete details about manufacturers & technical aspects are covered. Covers models from U S A, Canada, Britain, Australia. Most detailed book available. 70 colour, 60 b&W photos. 112 pgs. hardcover $29.95

SPECIAL! Both above videos plus book, reg $99.85 value for $79.85

Claas of America offers the RU 450 row independent converging corn head for its self-propelled forage harvesters. The RU 450 enables corn to be harvested no matter the row spacing or direction harvested and features a working width of 14'9".

The head features three rotating drums which cut and deliver the crop. Double transport discs on each drum capture the corn plants for crop delivery. The mowing disc, located under the transport discs, cuts the crop and then delivers it to the feed augers. The three-symmetrical rotors assure even crop flow to the feed rollers.

The chairless rotor drive system is made up of universal drive shafts and oil bath gearboxes. Drives are protected by low maintenance overload clutches. With fewer moving parts than a conventional corn head, the RU 450 requires less maintenance resulting in higher output.

Transport of the head is done by activating a hydraulic valve from the cab which folds the outer rotors into a vertical position.

Gentle GIANT.

When it comes to performance, the MF® 8570 Rotary combine is an absolute giant.

Its patented rotor system lets you harvest circles around other combines of comparable capacity. Yet it produces outstanding sample quality with extraordinarily little grain damage. One reason is its simplicity of design, with far fewer augers, conveyors, and other moving parts than other combines.

Stop in today and find out more about the amazing MF 8570 combine. Now In Stock.

FORAGES

ARE THE SECOND MOST IMPORTANT INGREDIENT OF ANY DAIRY RATION (BEHIND WATER)

Excellent forages are the beginning for any successful ration and now is the time to start preparing for next year's forage crops.

Many of the decisions you make now can have a great impact on the quality of the forages you harvest next year and the level of herd performance you experience as a result of your forages.

SOME INDUSTRY ACCEPTED GUIDELINES

- When selecting a silage corn variety use plant energy density as the first criteria followed by total plant yield and digestibility.
- Harvest forages on the basis of plant maturity first and then store in the form best suited to existing weather conditions.
- Chop corn silage short (3/8" to 1/2") and haylage longer (3/8" with 15-20% greater than 1 1/2")
- Forages harvested with greater than 70% moisture run a significant risk of Clostridia Fermentation.

PROPERLY HARVESTED AND STORED FORAGES ARE KEY TO TOTAL HERD PERFORMANCE

These Research Proven Products are Designed to Help You In the Successful Harvesting and Storage of your Important Forages, and Are Now Available with Special Pricing Incentives During MASTER MIX FEEDS 1997 Forage Treatment Booking Program.

ALLIANCE PRO-SILAGE BUILDER - Available in a liquid or dry form this product is formulated with both Lactic Acid and Propionic Acid producing bacteria and is an excellent product for storing and preserving wrapped baled hay. This product is especially effective for wrapped high moisture small square bales. The Propionic acid will help to preserve forages in a non air tight environment. This product may Also be used as an economical way to Improve TMR bunk life.

ALLIANCE SUPER SILE - Available in a liquid or dry form this product is the new version of the popular Master Mix Feeds Silo Booster product. Super Sile is a highly concentrated source of Lactic Acid producing Bacteria which aide in the rapid fermentation of ensiled forages. Excellent for Corn Silage, conventional Haylage, and High Moisture Grains.

ALLIANCE SUPER HAY - Available in 5 gallon and 55 gallon containers, Alliance Super Hay does an excellent job of preserving baled hay harvested with moisture levels up to 25%. Alliance Super Hay replaces Master Mix Feeds Bale Booster, is buffered to avoid corrosion damage to equipment, and aides in increasing digestibility of treated forages.

Farming's Future: Regional Strength Or Coming Calamity?

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — With market demand for healthy, nutritious foodstuffs as solid as ever, it's remarkable that the Northeast's largest industry — agriculture — is also one of its most endangered.

"We're losing farmland at a quicker rate than anybody ever expected," said Jill Schwartz, American Farmland Trust Mid-Atlantic field director. "Working together to save farmland is more critical now than ever before."

Others in farming, government, and communities throughout the region agree.

Presentations about innovative partnering for farmland preservation and ways of enhancing farm vitality are a key part of the "Farming for the Future" conference on Feb. 7-8 at the Nittany Lion Inn on the Penn State Campus, University Park.

Sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA), the conference includes dozens of sessions for food producers, resource managers, other agriculture professionals and consumers, a trade exhibit of sustainable products and services, and plenty of discussion sessions and networking with participants, including the "Chat 'n Chew" cafe.

"To maintain a vibrant agriculture in Pennsylvania and the Northeast, it's time for serious cooperation on behalf of our soil and other resources, our farm families, and our communities," said Tim Bowser, executive director of PASA. "This year's conference looks at a number of ways to encourage cooperation through farm-protection programs, community-based marketing, farm improvement clubs, better grazing, integrated pest control, wise nutrient management, recycling of organic materials ... and more."

Featured presenters include:

•Montana rancher and keynote speaker Tom Elliott, who will describe some of the value-added food production, educational outreach and cooperative marketing methods of his 48,000-acre N-Bar Land and Cattle Co. Elliott and the N-Bar staff market nearly 1,000 head of Angus cattle yearly with the help of on-ranch livestock auctions. and the Internet, pasture 3,500 sheep each summer in a cooperative venture with their neighbors and sell bulk organic grains and specialty crops to food stores and restaurants.

into cover crops to improve soil, manage pests, and increase profits. He'll also review the potential for 15-inch rows to boost corn yields and improve weed control while reducing herbicide costs.

•Maryland organic farmer and county planning commissioner Marty Rice, on Frederick County's AgriFuture Roundtable and other efforts to ensure farming is part of a community's economic development plans. "Farmland more than pays its way in property tax revenues, while residential and commercial development often demand far more in services than they pay in taxes," said Rice, based on results of a recent Roundtable study.

•Dairy farmer Roman Stoltzfoos and other pasture-based producers, hosting a mini-conference on grazing management, meeting nutritional needs of pastured cattle, extending the grazing season, and marketing strategies.

•Compost consultant and soil specialist Will Brinton, founder of Woods End Research Lab in Maine, reviewing ways to minimize expenses when composting and the latest on using compost for disease suppression in crops.

The conference includes input from the New York Sustainable Agriculture Working Group (NYSAWG). Nonprofit, member-based organizations, PASA and NYSAWG promote ecologically sound, economically viable, socially responsible, and community-based food and farming systems.

Walk-in registration and single-day conference attendance will be an option. To find out more or to request conference registration materials, contact PASA, P.O. Box 419, Millheim, PA 16854, (814) 349-9856.

EFFECTS OF HEAT ON FEED INTAKE OF STEERS

A series of controlled experiments recently reported by the University of Nebraska has shown the effects of environmental temperature for feeding steers.

In the first study, the steers were either exposed to temperatures exceeding 100°F or left in a thermal-neutral environment of between 72 and 88°F and the effects of time of feeding were determined.

It can be postulated that afternoon feeding in high temperatures may be more advantageous because the heat generated by digestion will not peak until later in the evening. However, these workers (Mader et al) showed that either a morning feeding of the day's ration or a split feeding (both the morning and the afternoon) would result in higher levels of feed intake.

In fact, intake was greatest for the split-feeding regimen for both morning and afternoon feeding under both hot and thermal-neutral environments. The afternoon feeding may in fact be helping maintain a higher body temperature even when the air temperature is cooling in the evening. Therefore, after an afternoon feeding on a hot day, it will be necessary for the air temperature and the temperature/humidity index to be significantly lower at night in order to maintain acceptable levels of feed intake.

A second study (Mader et al) investigated the effects of air temperature on how newly-arrived steers adapted to step-up rations. The rations were changed at 5-day intervals from 40 percent to 25 percent roughage and then to 10 percent roughage after 7 days.

Steers were exposed to both hot (daytime temperatures of 100°F) and thermal-neutral temperatures (72-88°F.) All steers were fed in the morning ad libitum amounts.

They found that, as temperature increased during the step-up process, there was a significant decrease in feed intake. This factor is particularly critical in newly-arrived feeder cattle, since it is important to get the cattle eating as quickly as possible to insure good performance and help reduce sickness.

A third study investigated the effects of three feeding regimens under both hot and thermal-neutral environments. The feeding programs included ad libitum amounts of high energy feed (6 percent roughage), a restricted allowance of the high energy feed (90 percent of the intake of the steers fed ad libitum), and a high roughage diet (28 percent roughage.)

The results of the test indicated body temperature was greater under the hot condition for all three groups, but that dry matter intake was not different for the high energy and the high roughage groups under either temperature treatment. However, the steers on the restricted diet did a "flip-flop" on intake depending on which temperature group they were in. Those in the thermal-neutral environment tended to have the lowest dry matter intake, while those in hot conditions had higher intake than either of the other two feeding programs.

Comments: While these studies were conducted under very controlled conditions, there are some important points to remember. If daytime temperatures are going to be high (in excess of 90°F), then steers should be fed in the morning or the ration should be split to both morning and evening to help maintain intake. Newly-arrived steers may need more than a couple of weeks to adjust to high-energy diets if there is a period of hot weather after they arrive in the feedlot.

Canale Offers Dairy Nutrition Expertise

SHIPPENSBURG (Cumberland Co.) — Pennsylvania dairy-men committed to continual improvement in their herd's nutritional program will welcome the return of Christopher Canale, Ph.D., to Pennsylvania.

Canale, director of technical services for Keystone Agway Agricultural Products and Agway Inc., has returned to Pennsylvania to support the Agway dairy feed sales force staff in improving the nutritional programs of their customers' dairy herds. He will be based in Agway's Keystone Enterprise office in Shippensburg.

Canale's responsibilities include continual updating of feed ration formulation software, coordinating research at Agway's Dairy Research Center, keeping Pennsylvania Agway sales force current on the latest in dairy nutrition and production management, and working closely with them to solve nutritional challenges in their customers' herds.

Canale's entire career has centered on forage nutrition. He earned a doctorate from Penn State University in dairy nutrition in 1989, then went on to spend a year as a post doctoral research fellow at the USDA Beltsville Agricultural Research Center, Beltsville, Md., in 1990. He also earned a master's degree in animal nutrition from the University of Maine in 1984 and a bachelor's degree from Cornell University in animal science in 1981.

Canale has published several articles in the area of forage composition, structure, and digestibility. He is a member of the American Society of Animal Science, the American Dairy Science Association, American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists, and is certified as a charter diplomate of the American College of Animal Nutrition.

Canale worked as a dairy nutrition consultant for three years before joining Agway in 1993. Since then, he has developed customized computer software programs, including Brill and DHI records analysis software. For Agway Inc. Canale works with researchers at the Agway Farm Research Center in Tully, N.Y., and serves on the Dairy Research Team and Planning Board of Cooperative Research Farms.

Case Answers Ultra Narrow-Row Trend With Corn Head

RACINE, Wis. — Case Corporation has solidified its commitment to ultra narrow-row corn producers by acquiring the rights to a unique combine corn head that will harvest crops planted in rows as narrow as 15 inches.

With the acquisition of exclusive development, manufacturing, and marketing rights for the ultra narrow-row corn head, Case indicated the corn head can harvest ultra narrow-row corn in row spacing ranging from 15 - 22 inches.

Case acquired the corn-head design from Marion Calmer, a farmer in Alpha, Ill. Calmer, also the owner of Calmer Agronomic Research Center, is a pioneer of ultra narrow-row corn and designed the corn head to which Case now owns the rights.

"Farmers planting ultra narrow-row corn have reported significant yield increases and lower input costs compared to those planting traditionally row-spaced corn," said Jon Carlson, Case vice president and general manager, North American agricultural operations.

"Farmers throughout the Corn Belt have been experimenting with narrow and ultra narrow-row corn for years, and there's been a recent resurgence as more and more corn producers realize the benefits.

"A combine corn head capable of harvesting ultra narrow rows — to complement our ultra narrow-row planters — will expand Case's line of equipment to meet this growing trend."

Ultra narrow-row corn, which includes 15-inch rows, offers many advantages, such as higher yields, a faster spreading canopy for fewer weeds, and enhanced sunlight gathering, more even distribution of residue, better planter-spacing performance, and greater ease of harvest.

Case's Gerry Salzman, product development director, crop harvesting, said Calmer's research indicates that the five-year yield potential will be about one-bushel increase for every one-inch decrease in row spacing.

"The move toward narrower row spacing may be the next significant practice farmers implement to improve yields," said Salzman.

Calmer's design — tested on a Case IH Axial-Flow® combine during this year's harvest — stems

Vermeer Celebrates 25 Years

PELLA, Iowa — One of the most significant and revolutionary developments in the evolution of mechanized farm equipment happened nearly 25 years ago with the introduction of The Big Round Baler by Vermeer Manufacturing Company.

It happened in January 1971, during an early Sunday morning walk, when one of Gary Vermeer's personal friends told him he intended to sell his cow-calf business "because of the heavy burden of baling hay ... and the problems (he) faced finding dependable hired hands to put it up."

Inventing new machines was nothing new for Vermeer, and his friend's statement was just enough "spark" to ignite Vermeer's imagination. Vermeer envisioned a machine that dramatically changed the practice of hay harvesting — hay packaged in 2,000-pound bales, the giant bales being moved mechanically, and, most importantly, the entire operation accomplished by one person from the tractor seat.

Next morning, with help from new product engineers in the experimental department, Vermeer literally chalked the initial design of the original Vermeer Baler right on the factory floor. Shortly afterward came diagrams for the machine's construction. Forty-five days later, in late February, the first prototype unit rolled out the door for testing.

First stop? Gary's farm ... to bale some grass. Initially, the baler threw the grass out as fast as it entered the bale chamber. This brief setback led to some old-fashioned American ingenuity .. and some old discarded fence posts nearby. By placing one inside the bale chamber, the grass could form around this "core," and, that's when the first large round bale was produced.

Actually, that first hay packaged was only a partial bale, because the drive line broke. But, after it was fixed, Vermeer and his team baled up every fence post they could find.

"We quit baling when we ran out of fence posts," Vermeer said, "but we knew we had a concept that worked. All we had to do then was get the bugs worked out."

The first baler, admittedly "homely" by anyone's standards, formed a 6 foot wide by 7-foot diameter bale. It weighed more than a ton. Next problem? Moving the bale. But, it wasn't long before Vermeer built tractor- and trailer-mounted bale movers/carriers to handle that job too.

After weeks of modifications, a public demonstration of the unit was conducted in southwest Iowa, the first of several dozen stops during an extensive "demo" tour that took it all the way from the southwest to southern Canada and everywhere in between.

As with every new idea, this new concept was met with a blend of laughter, skepticism, and enthusiasm. But little did anyone realize at the time how much the "big yellow round baler" would revolutionize the hay harvesting industry.

By 1975, at the height of round baler popularity, Vermeer was building 52 balers a day and shipping nearly 8,600 a year. The first baler, the Vermeer 706, was discontinued when a smaller 605 Series (producing 5 foot wide by 6 foot diameter bales) proved to be more practical for most operations.

In the 25 years of full-scale production since that first prototype, the Vermeer big round baler has continually been improved to provide farmers a quality product designed to help them make their haying operation more efficient and profitable. To date, Vermeer has produced nearly 100,000 balers.

FTC Clearance Of Sandoz-Ciba Merger Produces Third-Largest Field Corn Seed Company

GOLDEN VALLEY, Minn. — Federal Trade Commission (FTC) clearance of the Ciba-Geigy Ltd. and Sandoz Ltd. merger into a new company called Novartis clears the path for a stronger competitor in the North American field corn seeds market.

The marriage officially brings together Northrup King Co. and Ciba Seeds, leaders in the development of corn borer resistant Bt and other corn hybrids, into the Novartis Seeds sector. Combined, the companies this year held an eight percent field corn market share in the U.S., a market which historically has been highly fragmented.

Ciba Seeds is currently marketing its Maximizer™ line of insect-protected hybrids and Northrup King this year received EPA approval to begin selling its Bt corn lines. Globally, the combined Novartis seeds product line includes corn, soybeans, alfalfa, sorghum, sunflowers, wheat, sugarbeets, vegetables and flowers.

Ed Shonsey, formerly president and CEO of Northrup King Co., has been named president and CEO of the Novartis Seeds field crops business, which will be headquartered in suburban Minneapolis, where Northrup King has maintained corporate offices for more than a century. The field crops business of Novartis Seeds employs 1,200 people throughout the U.S., Canada and Mexico and maintains a dealer network of more than 5,000 nationwide.

In addition, the company will maintain biotechnology research facilities at Research Triangle Park, N.C., Stanton, Minn., and Toulouse, France. Seed production sites are located throughout the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Structure Ranks Among EQIP-Approved Manure Management Solutions

DEKALB, Ill. — The recently-passed Environmental Quality Incentive Program (EQIP) bill provides federal cost-sharing assistance to large livestock producers who, faced with significant manure management challenges, implement authorized structural and land management improvements to reduce odors and the contamination of our natural resources.

20-inch spacing.

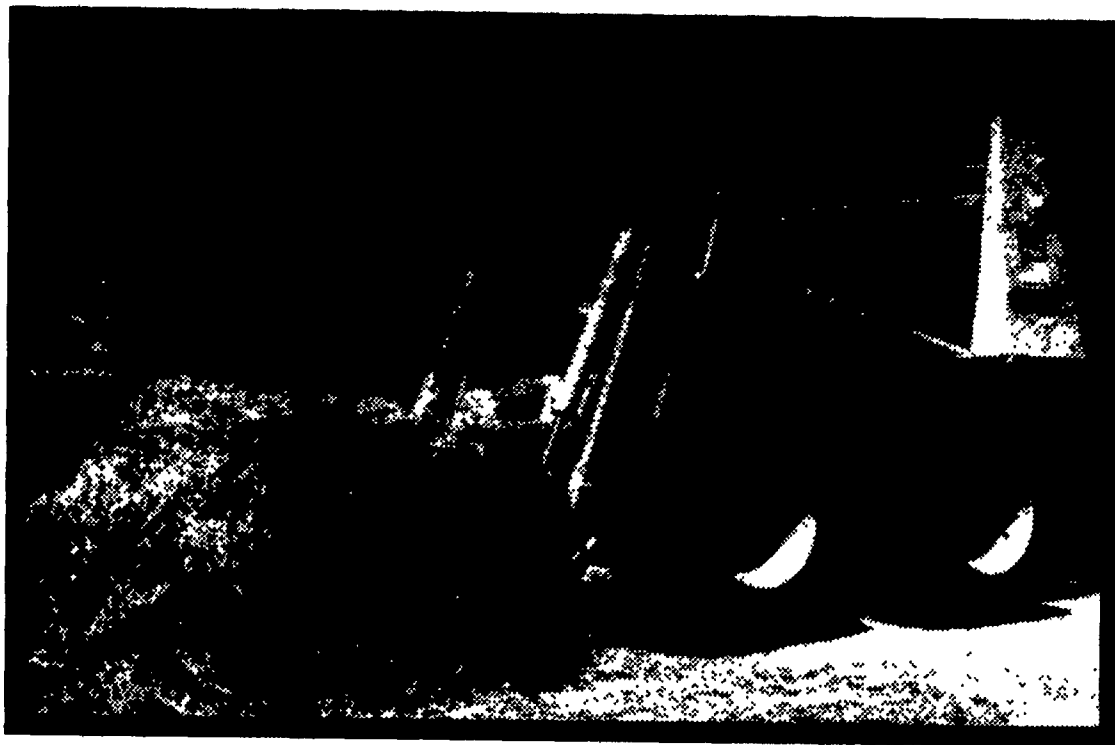

"In addition to lower input costs and increased yields, 15-inch spacing allows farmers to reduce their capital investment because they can plant both corn and beans with a single planter," said Salzman.

He noted that Case IH 955 Series Early Riser® planters are designed in a "splitter" configuration, meaning farmers can plant in either 15- or 30-inch rows with the same machine.

Slurrystore structure from A.O. Smith Harvestore Products, Inc. has made the list of EQIP-approved manure management practices. Individual EQIP payments granted by the secretary of agriculture to qualified applicants will help defer Slurrystore owners' costs of storing and recycling manure safely.

The Slurrystore structure's positive, above-ground containment helps protect surrounding land and water while contributing to odor reduction efforts. You can conveniently recycle the manure as nutrient-rich fertilizer where — and when — it's needed.

All large livestock producers are urged to learn more about EQIP funding. Contact your local Harvestore Products dealer for information on how to equip yourself with the Slurrystore structure as part of a complete manure management system that meets the environmental challenges of the future.

When started as a small farm equipment dealership in Shiloh, New Jersey, has become the only full-line Case IH dealership in the state. Since Donald Strang started Farm-Rite in 1966, the business expanded and was moved in 1978 to its present, modern facilities northwest of town on 14 acres just off of Route 49.

Farm-Rite is looking to the future. Dealership personnel include experienced veterans as well as a talented group of young people, including Strang's son Don, who are committed to maintaining the level of service customers expect from Farm-Rite.

Farm-Rite provides a complete line of Case IH tractors, combines, tillage and forage equipment. In addition, they also offer a full service irrigation department, lime and fertilizer sales and application, and a grain brokerage service.

"We do the best we can to take care of our customers," says Strang. "We offer everything from combines to sprayers to center pivot irrigation systems to provide equipment and service for our customers." Farm-Rite maintains extensive parts and service departments to support the products they sell. Strang believes that the Case IH Magnum tractors and Axial Flow combines have proven themselves to be leaders in the field and looks forward to new innovations and product introductions by Case IH.

Soil Penetration, Loosening Help Improve Corn Standability

wet spring followed by a wet summer followed by... well, despite all that, the corn went in on time and did well.

About 350 corn growers and agri-industry representatives, including a large contingent of Penn State extension staff, were on hand to show the results of Bt corn, corn variety trials, and use of starter and sidedress fertilizers at the Crop Field Day held at Long Acres in September last year.

According to one of the parners, Clarence Beck, who helped stage the field day, the number one message

Beck said that the partnership uses a four-year rotation corn, followed by soybeans or oats, followed by potatoes or wheat, then back to corn. The important thing to remember, noted Beck, is that the farm doesn't follow corn with corn.

"We also have learned to subsoil the ground to 18 inches deep and keep the soil real loose to benefit the root system," said Beck. Even in a dry year, he said, subsoiling is "very beneficial" for a healthier, more productive crop.

The wet weather this year was a real challenge. It "held us back in terms of subsoiling and tillage," Beck said.

What farmers are discovering, he indicated, was that the use of a starter fertilizer in the row with a lot of urea can have detrimental effects on a crop.
The fertilizer can burn the root system.

What Long Acres has done is make use of a monammoniated phosphorous (MAP) and sulphur-magnesium

Burcucumber Busts Out In Pa. Corn Fields

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff
LANDISVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Burcucumber — also known as "wild pickle" — has been "exploding" in many Pennsylvania corn fields, said a Penn
State weed specialist.

According to Dr. Bill Curran, Penn
State associate professor of weed science, the cumbersome weed can cause heavy damage in corn and soybean fields with potential significant loss of yields.

To make matters worse, the weed is extremely difficult and can be expensive to control. However, the alternatives of using no control or not changing control strategies could prove catastrophic for corn growers.

Curran said the vine-type weed, which looks just like a cucumber plant with broad, five-sided leaves, can branch out through fields of corn and soybeans for great distances. The plants can choke off corn stalks and envelope soybean stands quickly if left untreated.

Worse, the plant produces clusters of seed with 16-20 seeds per cluster. "There overwinter. In addition, the clusters can attach themselves readily to clothing or fur cover and can be spread easily by rodents or man.

"This is a bottom-ground, wet and heavy soil type of vine weed," said Curran. But in a growing season that was as continuously wet as this past one, any type of field could fall victim. Growers realized, according to the weed specialist, that "no herbicides provided residual control good enough to control the weed all season long."

The problem is made worse by the fact that the vines and seeds pose real hazards at harvest.

"Burcucumber clogs up combines, wraps up in the reels, and clogs up silage choppers," said Curran.

The seed, when it germinates, is very competitive, can reduce yield on crops significantly, and spreads quickly.

Some fields can get so infested with the weed that they simply cannot be chopped for silage or combined.

For corn fields that are past treatment and to be used for silage, there is hope:
Curran says, however, that Curran shows

CFTC Adviser Urges Farmers To Diversify Marketing Plans

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. — Richard Ellinghuysen, a member of the Agricultural Advisory Committee to the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, predicts farmers will see a roller-coaster ag marketing ride in 1997.

"Not since Franklin Roosevelt and the New Deal has such a farm policy revolution occurred in America. In 1997, the new farm bill will cause market swings that only allow very narrow windows of profit opportunities, and along with that the potential to give producers lower prices and more financial loss than perhaps they've ever experienced before."

Ellinghuysen, NFO director of program development, spoke to national convention goers and stressed the need for a year-round, disciplined marketing plan in 1997.

Ellinghuysen underscored the importance of establishing a comprehensive plan that uses futures, options or forward contracts and group marketing as tools in a disciplined marketing strategy. "Price risk management strategies must be used so that favorable market opportunities are locked in, floor prices are established, and price risk is controlled."

Ellinghuysen said the implementation of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) and the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) will result in new market dynamics.

National Farmers National Grain Department Director Randy Pederson agreed with Ellinghuysen's assessments. "Exports are in bad shape," Pederson said. "For instance, corn exports are down millions of bushels, and barley has also taken a serious hit."

"The U.S. became the sole supplier of soybeans this fall because South American sold out their crop beforehand," Pederson said. And, the U.S. historically has 45 percent of the world production of soybeans."

"However, world soybean acres are rising, as land comes out of the Conservation Reserve Program here, and South American converts forests to crop land," Pederson explained. "Coupling these issues with the impacts of GATT and NAFTA, creates quite a future of risk for American farmers."

The world crop-year ending stocks to demand ratios must also be factored in, said Warren Myhre, National Farmers north regional grain director. "If we get into weather problems, we're probably going to see some real volatility on the up side," Myhre said. "But the market could really head south, as well."

"Fortunately, the National Farmers Organization offers the most comprehensive grain sales system in the business," Pederson said.

"The next several years — leading to the year 2000 — will be years in which we, as an organization, as farmers, lay the foundation, for how well we will manage the world's food production system of the next millennium," Ellinghuysen said.

Direct Marketing Conference Feb. 18-20

OWEGO, N.Y. — The 34th annual New York State (NYS) Farmers' Direct Marketing Conference will be held here Feb. 18-20.

This year's conference theme is "Back to the Family." This theme reflects the nature of direct marketing businesses where family values and traditions are an integral part of market operations, employee and customer relations.

The theme also reflects the goals of the NYS Farmers' Direct Marketing Association to serve the needs and interests of members — the families involved in direct marketing of farm products across the state.

Opening day is split into three separate areas. The NYS Berry Growers Association is putting on a daylong program on small fruit production and marketing topics. Another program will focus on farmer's markets. This program will be of interest to farm market vendors as well as market managers. And finally, on opening day, a bus tour will visit local markets, including a winery and lunch at Bakers Acres tea room.

The second day of the conference focuses on seminars and promises to be informative on many levels. There are four consecutive sessions scheduled. Two sessions are geared toward enhancing an already ongoing farm market operation with festivals, special events, workshops and many other useful ideas. Another seminar is sponsored by the NYS Christmas Tree Growers Association and will deal with topics relating to Christmas sales, events, and promotions. Finally, a computer seminar will help show uses of computers in our operations beyond just for basic book-keeping. This will be done with a hands-on approach.

The New York State Farmers' Direct Marketing Association will hold its annual meeting Wednesday afternoon. Judy Schmidt, from J. Schmidt Advertising, will speak about the new promotional efforts of the association and the new logo.

Wednesday evening is set aside for fun and interaction. The events start off with taste testing sponsored by the trade show participants. This is back by popular demand. Following this will be an hour of roundtable sharing of information and ideas between conference attendees. To top the evening off is the annual ice cream social and auction.

Thursday, the final day of the conference, offers a wide range of strategies for improving your business. Whether it be through more effective promotion, new market ideas, or more effective debt and risk management, Thursday's programs should be of benefit to any marketer. Also on Thursday, the Long Island Extension is sponsoring a full day seminar on cut flowers. This will deal with production topics as well as promotion and marketing aspects.

Running throughout the conference will be a trade show hosting more than 30 vendors. They'll be showing all the latest in direct marketing products, from gourmet foods to promotional materials.

To attend, contact Andrea Eichhorn, conference chairman, at (607) 862-3985 for registration information.

Don't Let Compaction Grinch Sneak Up On Your Fields

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Agricultural engineer Randall Reeder calls this research finding, "the compaction Grinch that stole Christmas," or an end-of-the-year sobering thought for farmers who think they've licked a soil compaction problem.

Crop yields appeared to be recovering at Ohio State University experimental plots that Reeder had intentionally compacted seven years ago. This fall, however, crop yields declined dramatically, as the effects of compaction reared its ugly head again.

"The point is, deep compaction can linger a long time and can rise up to bite you, even if you think it's disappeared," said Reeder.

Reeder thinks the growing season's topsy-turvy weather conditions — heavy spring rains followed by a bone-dry summer — were the main factor that limited crops' performance in compacted plots. "Once it stopped raining, it stopped raining," he said.

Ohio State agronomist Peter Thomison concurred, saying that soil compaction probably aggravated an already poor growing season for Ohio's crops. Cold, wet soil conditions through mid-June restricted root growth development, he said. The less-porous, poorly aerated, compacted soils impeded the stunted root systems from reaching deeper into the soils during the moisture-short growing season.

"In a normal year, major yield losses might not show up in compacted soils, because adequate rainfall makes up the difference," Thomison said.

Reeder started his long-term study in fall 1987 when he used a single-axle, 600-bushel grain cart to compact soils with 10-ton and 20-ton loads after three consecutive harvests at the Northwest Branch of the university's Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, at Hoytville. He left another plot non-compacted for control purposes.

The last compaction treatment was in fall 1989. Yields continued to show deep declines compared to the non-compacted plots for the next three years. Yields started to get better in 1993. The soils compacted with the 10-ton cart have equaled those from the control plots since 1993.

In 1994 and 1995, the heavier-compacted soils had recovered enough to show only a 7 percent yield decrease compared to non-compacted plots. Then came the big downturn of 1996.

The severely compacted soils saw soybean yields drop by 25 percent compared to non-compacted sites. Corn yields dropped by 15 percent compared to the control plots.

Reeder thinks the yield drop is a one-time phenomenon that will not likely be repeated when he continues the project next year. However, the long-term effects of compaction are clear, he said.

"A farmer needs to be aware if he sees reduced yields after compaction has occurred, and he can't think of any other explanation for it, the compaction may very well be the cause," Reeder said.

Reeder said his results are consistent with work done in other Midwestern states. For example, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service compaction study in Minnesota showed a significant one-year yield loss 12 years later.

Meanwhile, Reeder's research shows that a subsoiler can help a farmer repair compacted soils. Tillage 18-inches deep improved yields in plots compacted by the 20-ton grain carts, but subsoiling produced even better yields in non-compacted plots. Furthermore, Reeder offers these suggestions for fighting compaction:

- Use big tires, duals or rubber tracks to minimize soil pressures.
- Use precision traffic patterns in fields. Farmers can confine compaction to as little as 20 percent of the field by running equipment on the same track patterns every year.

Farm 'A' Syst Being Adapted For Use In Several States

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Groundwater supplies the water for 95 percent of our nation's rural residents. Ground and surface water are valuable for farmers, communities, and wildlife.

Responding to environmental concerns, the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) Cooperative Extension Service and Natural Resources Conservation Service in cooperation with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency developed the Farm 'A' Syst program to determine site conditions on farms that have the potential to impact water quality. The national program model was developed in Wisconsin.

The national Farm 'A' Syst model program is being adapted for regional use in several states. Les Lanyon, associate professor of agronomy, Penn State, has been instrumental in adapting the national program to match Pennsylvania conditions and needs.

The Pennsylvania version was developed as part of the Pequea-Mill Creek Environmental Farmstead Evaluation Project. Three different groups of dairy producers have been involved with the Environmental Farmstead Evaluation.

The first group was randomly selected farmers from the Pequea-Mill Creek Project in Lancaster County. Also participating were farmers from an organic milk marketing group and Atlantic Dairy Cooperative members. Farmers in central and southeastern Pennsylvania were introduced to the Environmental Farmstead Evaluation concept as part of field days and pasture walks.

According to Lanyon, the environmental farmstead evaluation serves two purposes. The first is to recognize those farmsteads that are managed in an environmentally sensitive way. Surface and groundwater are protected by the management of the farmstead in these situations. The second is to promote awareness of existing site conditions that threaten the quality of ground and stream water. As potential contamination sources are identified, it can be much easier to develop future plans for change that fit the means and needs of individual sites.

The Environmental Farmstead Evaluation has six categories. The categories are barnyard management, stream and drainage management, pesticide storage and handling, milkhouse waste, home sewage systems, and well condition and construction.

The scoring of environmental site conditions in each category is based on a relative comparison. It does not indicate exactly how much each area will affect water quality. Only extensive site investigations can provide that information. The scoring does rank the site conditions based on the best information available at the time of the evaluation.

Jerry Martin, an extension agent with Penn State University, has been working in the Pequea-Mill Creek Project in Lancaster County with dairy producers.

"The work that was completed in Lancaster County with the Environmental Farmstead Evaluation will benefit the entire state. In 1997 a version suitable for the entire state called Pennsylvania Farm 'A' Syst will be published and distributed statewide," said Martin.

The Dairy Network Partnership (DNP) is another organization involved with the Environmental Farmstead Evaluation. The DNP is comprised of the Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Rodale Institute, Chesapeake Bay Foundation, Pennsylvania State University, Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture, and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The DNP is collaborating with the staff of the Pequea-Mill Creek Project to visit dairy farms and complete the farmstead evaluation. The DNP will be using the Environmental Farmstead Evaluation in their continuing efforts to enhance environmental quality and profitability on dairy farms.

"Everyone benefits from good environmental management. As the DNP progresses in its efforts to gain alternative sources of funding to assist in getting best management practices implemented the Environmental Farmstead Evaluation will be an important component of our program," said Lori Sandman, project management for the Dairy Network Partnership.

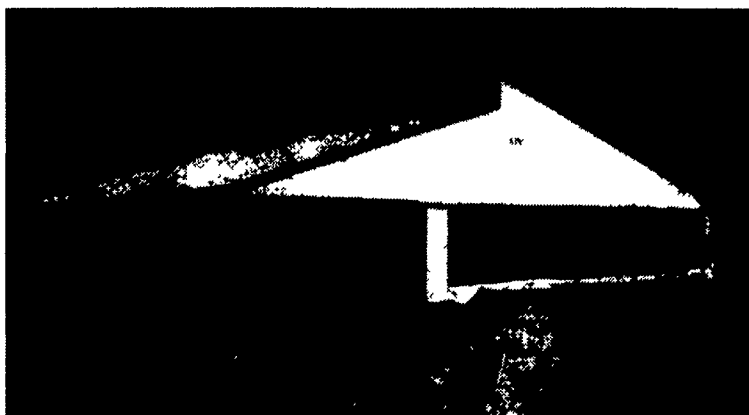

For more information about the Environmental Farmstead Evaluation, contact Jerry Martin at (717) 396-9423.

Pennsylvania Farm Link To Hold Beginning Farmer Workshop

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — In an effort to promote and sustain family farming in Pennsylvania, the Pennsylvania Farm Link program is sponsoring a beginning farmer workshop here at the Days Inn, on Feb. 15.

According to Farm Link Coordinator Marion Bowlan, "In the next 10 years, 10,000 Pennsylvania farms will change hands. The future of Pennsylvania agriculture depends on young people being able to enter farming, or its position as the state's leading industry will be threatened. Barriers to beginning farmer entry remain formidable, but there are still opportunities for motivated and committed individuals."

Because it is a capital-intensive business, many young people do not have the economic resources needed to start up a farm. At the same time, many older farmers are finding it difficult to phase out of farming and maintain adequate resources for retirement. Farm Link can help both beginning and retiring farmers plan a gradual transition of the farm from one generation to the next, creating a win-win situation for both.

The New and Beginning Farmer Workshop will focus on both the business and production basics beginners must tackle in order to develop a successful enterprise. Record keeping, cash flow projection, legal aspects, marketing, farm loan options, and developing a farm business plan will give beginners the foundation for establishing a farm business. Breakout sessions will address production methods in vegetable, fruit, dairy, and cattle. Startup strategy sessions will include management intensive grazing, evaluating alternative enterprises, and methods of marketing. Other sessions will discuss how the Farm Link Program works and successful methods local farmers have used to get started.

New and beginning farmers and those who would like to learn more about business and production methods are invited to attend this workshop. There is a fee to cover lunch, breaks, and administrative costs.

Contact the Pennsylvania Farm Link office at (717) 787-9555 to obtain registration information. Deadline for registration is Feb. 10.

Corn Soy Conference, DPI Plan Joint Meeting

NEWARK, Del. — Big changes are planned for the 1997 Corn and Soybean Technology Conference and the Delmarva Poultry Industry's grower education meeting.

The two meetings will be combined on Thursday, Feb. 13, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center in Salisbury, Md. The meeting is designed for growers and producers throughout the Delmarva region.

The format of the educational conference has changed as well. Conference attendees will choose from an array of workshops and presentations that will include information on marketing, small grains, poultry, agronomy, and environmental issues.

Bud Scott, president of the Corn and Soybean Technology Conference, said the changes mark a couple of advances.

"The goal of the conference has always been to bring the latest technical information to growers on growing and marketing grain crops on Delmarva," Scott said. "We're always looking for ways to improve the conference. The first change, a merge with the annual Delmarva Poultry Industry's grower education meeting, will appeal to more of Delmarva's farmers, many of whom have diversified operations. It also will result in an even larger trade show than before. We expect attendance to increase by a few hundred, and exhibitors to number about 60."

"We're also changing the format from one large session to many smaller concurrent one," he said. "This will allow attendees to choose from a selection of sessions. We'll be able to offer a wider range of specific topics and give more detailed information. It will also allow for more involvement from the audience."

Doors open at 8:30 a.m. The program begins at 9:30 a.m. Dr. Keith E. Rinehart of Purdue will address the entire group with a topic that pertains to both grain and poultry growers — feed formulation. The remainder of the day, conference attendees will choose from breakout sessions. Final sessions will end at 2:45 p.m.

A full barbecue lunch, including chicken and pork, will be subsidized by the conference sponsors. Tickets, at $5 each, must be purchased in advance from cooperative extension agents or industry representatives.

Montana Rancher To Kick Off Sustainable Ag Conference

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Effective cooperation and strategic marketing will be two key themes of the "Farming for the Future" Conference, Feb. 7-8 here at the Nittany Lion Inn.

The Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture's (PASA) annual conference attracts hundreds of farmers, resource managers, educators, policymakers, and others for informative talks and plenty of networking.

Keynote speaker for the conference will be Montana rancher Tom Elliott Owner/operator of the 48,000-acre N-Bar Land and Cattle Co., Elliott relies on ecological, whole-farm management strategies and innovative marketing methods for this uniquely successful operation.

The N-Bar specializes in performance-tested, pasture-worthy Angus cattle and genetics and certified organic grains, vegetables, and forage. In the past 20 years, Elliott has emphasized many of the sustainable land and community values that characterized the N-Bar in the decades after its founding in 1885. In the process, he has made an effective transition from what some call the "hard-core transition ag" of the 1950s and 60s to diversity and value-added food production.

"Stewardship is one of the highest returning investments we can make," said Elliott, who believes a truly sustainable food system also requires close ties with consumers. "Reconnecting" the public with nature and the land through its food producers and farm heritage rewards everyone, he has found. "We view our customers more and more as partners rather than as economic transactions. If we don't add value to their lives, then we have no reason to be in business," he said.

Elliott and the N-Bar staff market more than 1,000 head of cattle yearly, pasture 3,500 sheep each summer in a cooperative venture with their neighbors, and sell bulk organic grains and specialty crops to food stores and restaurants. As part of its sales and educational outreach program, the N-Bar holds on-ranch livestock auctions, hosts numerous tour groups, meetings and an overnight guest service, publishes an electronic newsletter and maintains an Internet informational and marketing web site. Elliott will review some of these and other cooperative marketing methods used by the N-Bar. He'll also offer tips on diversifying your operation and adding value to what you produce.

Many other cooperation-encouraging, resource-enhancing presentations are slated for the conference, including:

- Starting a Farm Improvement Club: Farmers Helping Farmers.
- Forming Partnerships to Save Farmland (and Communities).
- New Approaches to Starting Producer Co-ops.
- Operating a High-Participation Community Supported Agriculture Project.
- Small-Scale Food Processing: On the Rise in the Northeast.
- What Every Farmer Needs to Know to Convince the Public to Buy Locally Grown.
- Keep Your Soil Alive: Controlled Microbial Composting, Green Manures & Rotations.
- Large-Scale Organic Vegetable Production.
- Improving Corn Production and Environmental Stewardship with Narrow Rows.
- Management and Marketing Strategies for Grazing Profitability.

To find out more or to request conference registration materials, contact PASA, P.O. Box 419, Millheim, PA 16854, (814) 349-9856.

N.Y. Vegetable Conference Feb. 11-13

LIVERPOOL, N.Y. — The 9th Annual New York State Vegetable Conference will be held Feb. 11-13 here at the Four Points ITT/Syracuse Sheraton.

This event draws more than 1,200 fresh market and processing vegetable growers and allied industry representatives from around the state, the Northeast and Canada.

Educational sessions run concurrently each day and include kraut cabbage, onions, potatoes, leafy greens, snap beans, labor regulations, pesticides and health issues, crop recordkeeping and enterprise analysis, soil quality management, organic production, leafy greens, and electronic online services. Of special interest this year will be a potato marketing short course and an in-depth, all-day sweet corn school.

The popular social hour is on Tuesday evening, Feb. 11, and will include a special tribute to the late Robert Becker who died unexpectedly in July 1996. Becker was a special friend to growers and the New York State (NYS) processing industry. Also, with the NYS Vegetable Growers Association having observed its 85th Anniversary in 1996, a history exhibit is also planned.

The overflowing 80-exhibitor trade show always offers the latest in equipment, supplies, services, and information, and is open all three days, ending at 2 p.m. on the third day. There is no separate admittance to the trade show.

In addition, the annual meetings for both the NYS Vegetable Growers Association and the Empire State Potato Club will be held, as will also various processing commodity organizations.

Pesticide recertification and crop adviser certification credits are available.

The annual published "Proceedings" from the conference will be available at the conference or by mail afterward.

This annual statewide event is cosponsored by the NYS Vegetable Growers Association, Empire State Potato Club, Cornell Cooperative Extension/NYS College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, and Associated NYS Food Processors.

Detailed program and registration information is available. To receive the program and registration information, contact NYS Vegetable Growers Association, P.O. Box 4256, Ithaca, NY 14852-4256, (607) 539-7648.

Pesticide Certification

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Pesticide certification examinations will be given at the Penn State Cooperative Extension, Wayne County office "North" meeting room, Courthouse, Honesdale, on the following Thursdays: Jan. 16, Feb. 20, March 20, and April 17, starting at 8:30 a.m. and ending at noon. Persons with disabilities that anticipate needing any type of accommodations or have questions about the physical access provided, contact the Cooperative Extension Office at (717) 253-5970 ext. 239 in advance of your participation or visit.

The exam is open to anyone wishing to become certified as private, commercial, or public applicators. Private applicators are those who are farming and applying restricted-use pesticides to their own crops. Commercial and public applicators are those who are applying any herbicide, insecticide, fungicide, or other pesticides to property of other people. Also requiring certification is the application of pool treatments such as chlorine and algicides by commercial pool service companies.

The examination is a pass-fail, open book, proctored test. Examination fees are non-refundable. The following fees shall be charged: Private applicator exams are free. Public and Commercial Applicator's core examination is $50 plus $10 for each category examination. A check or money order is required prior to testing payable to "Commonwealth of PA."

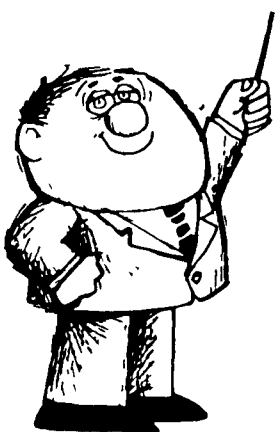

Testing is also available on working Monday mornings at the Pa. Department of Agriculture office on Route 92 just south of Tunkhannock.

THINK CONCRETE WHEN PLANNING YOUR FEED STORAGE!!

"HOW WILL YOU BE STORING YOUR VALUABLE FORAGES AND GRAINS IN THE 21st CENTURY?"

It's not too early to begin planning your storage and feeding systems for the year 2000 and beyond.

As margins narrow, dairymen need to invest in efficiency; this can have as great an influence on PROFIT as milk price changes.

Protect your valuable feeds from the elements... increase the efficiency of your feeds, your animals, and your labor.

Jamesway Technology Takes a Giant Leap Forward!

BIG JIM Quantum SYSTEM

FOR CONVENTIONAL SILOS AND BOTTOM UNLOADING SILO CONVERSION SYSTEMS (B.U.C.S.)

Big Jim QUANTUM™ is a totally redesigned, heavy-duty system that offers the best features of both Jamesway's Big Jim and B.U.C.S.® unloading systems, plus a whole lot more. Now no matter what type of forage silo you own - conventional or oxygen-limited - you can look to the future with a system that truly handles big capacity and fast feeding better than any unloader, top or bottom. A system that's easy to own with no doors to change or dirty chutes to climb. A system that makes it easy for you to control ration feeding. And a system that puts your tower silo investment to its best use far better than any type of bunker silo. With Big Jim QUANTUM you get

- FASTER FEED UNLOADING - up to 35 tons per hour or up to 1,166 pounds per minute
- HIGHER SILO CAPACITY - pack up to 35% more forage into your silo
- GREATER FEED VALUE - ensile forage between 55% to 65% moisture content
- EASIER MAINTENANCE AND REPAIR - less wear and tear and components are accessible

ROTO-MIX FEED MIXERS

The ROTO-MIX professionals know that quality feed means increased consumption, therefore, higher production levels. With ROTO-MIX IV you reduce fines, minimize shrinkage, and eliminate dead spots. The gentle tumbling action mixes fragile flaked and high-moisture ingredients without grinding, resulting in a fluffier, more nutritional ration. Nothing robs a ration of nutritional value more than fines. Conventional auger mixers use pressure to move the feed through the mixing chamber, thus crushing the feed and creating fines. But the ROTO-MIX patented mixing system uses a rotor to gently lift the feed past the wedging point of the lower side auger, keeping fines to a minimum and reducing nutritional loss. Even the most nutritious ration is effective only if the cattle eat the complete ration. Improperly mixed feed allows the cattle to "nose out" what they don't want, disrupting the balance of nutrients. But the ROTO-MIX end-to-end... side-to-side mixing system provides the most thorough TMR available, ensuring that your cattle will consume a balanced ration of nutrients in every pound of feed they eat

Rural Economy

Cost-efficient Centurydrain™ roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too.
Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

GIVE'EM HELP WITH PRO-LIX
the profitable liquid feed for your cattle
They'll give it right back to you, with interest, in:
• Healthier Calves
• More Economical Production
• Better Reproduction Performance
PRO-LIX delivers the protein, vitamins and minerals your cattle need-when they need it and in the amounts they need. It increases cattle weight, fosters healthier calves and often helps to produce more calves. PRO-LIX is an extremely smart investment in the beef or milk that produces your profits-all year long.

IN ALUMINUM BODIES EBY BUILDS IT

M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24', landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- LANDSCAPE BODIES - Lengths to 12', We'll build to your specs!

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

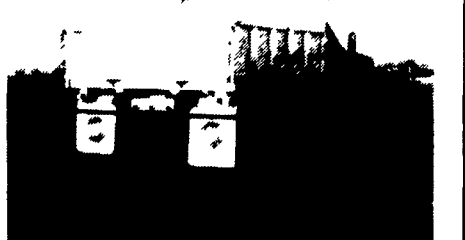

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer customer options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business - building bodies to haul it is ours.
